Hurricane warning sounded

It's been 19 years since a hurricane has struck the City of Virginia Beach — too long ago for the average Beach resident of 24 to remember.

There lies the danger. To put residents on guard against hurricanes and to make them aware of the dangers, City Council Monday afternoon proclaimed June 3-9 Hurricane Awareness Week.

The last hurricane to hit the city was Donna in September 1960 which wasn't so bad as hurricanes go. It left damage consisting of blown-out windows, torn-off roofs and destruction of the corn and soybean crops.

The last severe coastal storm wasn't a hurricane, but a northeaster in March 1962 which lasted three days and five tide cycles.

The highest recorded tides for the city were produced by a "category one" hurricane in August 1933 (one if the least severe of five categories). Camille, in 1969 was a category five hurricane with sustained winds of 155 miles per hour. It created a 24-foot wall of water known as a "storm surge" which hit the

Police, fire fighters benefit from City Council go-around

Charges of politics and "personal swipes" peppered a discussion by Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon and ended with the approval of increased educational incentives for police and fire officers.

An across-the-board one-step (approximately five percent) pay increase for police officers and fire fighters recommended by Councilman R.L. Riggs was defeated by a vote of 7-4. Council, however, approved by a vote of 9-2 another motion to increase the benefits of the city's educational incentive plan.

The verbal by-play started when Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf explained her "yes" vote on Riggs' motion. "We need to pay the police a decent wage," she said.

Councilman J. Curtis Payne Jr. retorted, "That sounds like someone running for office. If we consider (an increase) for one department we should consider one for all." Mrs. Oberndorf is the Republican candidate for state senator.

Councilman Reid Ervin, who voted against the Riggs' motion along with Payne, said, "Mr. Payne, you're certainly entitled to your opinion on this matter, but I think it's about time you stopped taking personal swipes and (stop thinking) your opinion is the only one that is valid."

Councilman John A. Baum entered the fray with, "I'm not trying to be personal..."

"You've been so personal all through the year," noted Ervin.

Baum continued, "When I came on council I was a populist...If there's an organization (in council) it's the most poorly organized organization I ever saw." He said that because of the requirements of the law (the Freedom of Information Act) "we have to sit in an emotional climate and decide issues."

Payne, who had cautioned Ervin not to go too far, said that he thought Ervin would be the last one to say what he did "after taking pot shots at most..."

Councilman Donald Merrick with the defeat of the across-the-board pay hike, moved to approve the recommendation of City Manager George L. Hanbury to increase the educational incentive pay from $250 to $500 for 30 semester hours; from $600 to $1,200 for an associate degree; from $800 to $1,600 for a bachelor's degree, and from $1,000 to $1,800 for a master's degree.

While the present educational benefit policy amounts to approximately five percent of the average police officer's salary, Hanbury said, the approved increases amount to approximately 10 percent of the average salary.

Riggs and Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr., who were interested mainly in seeing that all the officers received a pay increase, voted against the motion. McCoy said that he thought the officers were concerned with "putting food on the table."

A motion made two weeks ago by Merrick to increase police pay by two steps effective July 1 was defeated by a 6-5 vote. His recommendation was also tied to educational requirements and while stipulating the increase be given to all police officers, those who did not have an associate's degree would be given five years to get one.

Approving Riggs motion for the across-the-board one-step pay raise were Councilmen Riggs, Councilwomen Meyera Oberndorf and Barbary Henley and McCoy. Voting against the motion were Councilmen Baum, Ervin, George R. Ferrell, Clarence A. Holland, Merrick, and Payne, and Mayor Patrick L. Standing.

Hanbury said that the incentive pay will be given only for programs related to law enforcement. The cost of the program will be an additional $50,000 compared to $404,404 which would have been the cost of the one-step increase.

McCoy remarked that "this has been the most botched up thing we've done in a long time...I voted once with the organization and once with the populists, if that's what we're going to be called, so I guess I'm the oddball." He said his "no" vote on the successful motion was more of a protest. "I still think we should take care of the other first."

Bill Drinkwater of the Virginia Beach Lodge of the Fraternal Order of Police Associates (FOPA) said the lodge supported the one-step increase.

John McGowan, state FOPA vice president and immediate past president of the Norfolk FOPA, said he supported the one-step increase and the two-year degree requirement.

Explaining why police officers should be considered separately from other city employees, he said that "besides a judge, the police officer is placed in a position of taking the life of another human being. He is forced to make a life or death decision."

Doug Aydtlette, president of the beach FOPA, said, "We can see the motion is going to fail. I have to take a little offense about what was said at the informal session." He referred to a statement made by Baum that the wage increase agitation originated before the "last political campaign," the council campaign in May of last year, in which the police department participated.

He said that while the statement was unkind, it was not untrue but that "we were forced to do it." He said, "We will come back (but) will not do anything abrasive or offensive to the fine city of Virginia Beach. He said he was in favor of Riggs' five percent and that the group had not met to discuss the compromise.

J.G. Harris, president of the Tidewater Builders Association, said that he was concerned "that the budgetary process of the council-manager form of government had been circumvented." He said that he heard a comment, presumably from a police officer, that "if this was New York City they'd be throwing things and carrying banners." He said that he felt intimidated. "I don't think that's a responsible way to talk. I have not heard one word about inflation and holding it down...We're a

Public transit promoted as alternative to cars

An increase in the Virginia Beach transit subsidy from $275,000 to $550,000 in the 1980-81 operating budget is recommended in a Public Transportation Study prepared by the Virginia Beach Development Council.

The additional funds will be needed, according to the study, to investigate, test and implement recommendations for increasing public transit in the city as an alternative to the use of private automobiles.

Recognizing the impracticability of fixed bus routes in the sprawling city, the Authority committee promotes the use of subscription bus, van and car pools for home-to-work commuter transportation.

Conrad H. Reid, chairman of the Authority committee, presented the transit report to City Council Monday afternoon.

The Tidewater Transportation District Commission (TTDC) which worked with the committee on the report, has already started a van pool program. The report recommends that Virginia Beach and TTDC jointly undertake a pilot program to identify, notify and subscribe workers to participate in pools through special advertising, civic associations and special mailings.

The report also recommends that:

- The city enlist the Armed Forces in promoting car pools, van pools and bus use.

- Coordinate all transportation services for the elderly, handicapped and poor through the TTDC with the TTDC owning, maintaining and insuring the vehicles and leasing them to various agencies. This is already being done.

- Virginia Beach should encourage the consolidation of taxi cab regulation and service in Tidewater providing centralized dispatching, maintenance and insurance. The taxi companies, said Reid, have refused to participate in the shared-ride taxi service recommended in the report. According to James Echols, executive TTDC director, the companies have refused to operate even with subsidies from the TTDC.

Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr. said that the taxi companies feel threatened. The committee, however, feels that the proposals would tend to strengthen the taxi market by providing more efficient services.

- The city should support the addition of high-occupancy vehicle lanes to the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway and Interstates. Also, the committee recommends that vehicles carrying four or more passengers be exempted from tolls at the toll plaza.

- The city and TTDC should develop and fund a special advertising program to encourage TTDC ridership.

- That the city preserve the Norfolk-Southern Railroad corridor as a possible future fixed-rail mass transit corridor.

- The city and TTDC should begin to design a "shuttle-transit" service to transport passengers from the Arts and Conference Center to and along the Oceanfront.

- The city should proceed with the one-way pairing of Atlantic and Pacific Avenues which would help the shuttle transit service. However, business interests along Atlantic and Pacific opposed the one-way pairing earlier in the year.

- The city should encourage the extension of the "Sunshine Special" to other development corridors, particularly in the Holland Road-Independence Boulevard corridor and the Great Neck Road-First Colonial Road corridor. A Chesapeake Bay destination may also be considered.

- Mass transit (bus) needs and bike lanes should be made an integral part of all new road-improvement projects in Virginia Beach.

- The city should begin planning for bus service to Lynnhaven Mall-Oceana West Industrial Park area.

- Special event and special shopper special bus services should be implemented and advertised.

- The city should study encouraging a substantial increase in land use densities along major development corridors and a corresponding decrease in density outside these corridors because this pattern of land use

Dredging of Rudee Inlet cuts into public funds

Virginia Beach City Council shelved out another $108,212 for the dredging of Rudee Inlet and wondered how to get out of the continued spending in the future.

Legally it's the city's responsibility to keep the inlet open, but Monday afternoon Councilman Reid Ervin said council has "to decide who is going to maintain the inlet. This old pork barrel has to stop. We're using public funds to fund the Erosion Commission dredging."

The money appropriated Monday brings to $168,212 the total spent on the dredging this year. The city contracted with Cottrell Engineering Corporation to complete the dredging after Erosion Commission equipment proved to be inadequate. The cost was escalated by the weather conditions.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said the city's Research Committee is doing a cost-benefit survey on Rudee Inlet which may supply council with the answers it seeks.

Impact of Knotts Island causeway on Beach pondered by City Council

Virginia Beach City Council next week during its informal session will discuss the possible impact of the proposed causeway over Knotts Island on the city.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley said that the causeway may be incompatible with the city's land use plan and in conflict with the agricultural and tourist industries.

The causeway, which would be built over the Virginia portion of Knott's Island, will provide access to the outer banks in North Carolina and to False Cape State Park.

Mrs. Henley said that although the Department of Interior wants the causeway for access to portions of the outer banks which it expects to purchase, it would logically follow that it will be used to get to the developments farther south.

The only approach to the causeway from the north is from Route 615 in Virginia Beach, Mrs. Henley said. The resulting additional traffic through the area would lead to demands for development of auxiliary services such as motels and service stations, threatening the preservation of the agricultural areas. She added that North Carolina establishments would reap the benefit from tourists in False Cape State Park where no overnight accommodations will be available.

Referring to a letter from U.S. Rep. William Whitehurst, who has supported the causeway, she said that City Council should voice some sentiment on the matter.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing agreed and said that he was concerned "about what it (the causeway) can do and that council should voice some sentiment."

Area students earn Ferrum College degrees

Seven Virginia Beach students have been awarded associate degrees from Ferrum College. They are:

Beverly Jeanne Dunn, daughter of Mr. Helen Heflin; Robert Preston Midgett II, son of Mr. and Mrs. R.P. Midgett; Jody Ann Blum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael L. Blum; Alfred Lee Wood Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Wood; Andrew Lee Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Russell; Steven Lee Swecker, son of Mrs. Kathryn Swecker; and Katherine Ann Blackburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan P. Blackburn.

Former Beach resident receives bachelor's degree

Mary Henry, a former Virginia Beach resident, was awarded a bachelor's degree from Emory & Henry College during May 26 commencement exercises. She is a graduate of First Colonial High School and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Henry, formerly of Virginia Beach and now residing in River Ridge, LA.

Mary Henry

A mass communications major, Ms. Henry plans a career in journalism. At E&H, she was 1978-79 co-editor of "The White Topper" newspaper and 1977-78 assistant editor. She completed an internship with "The Plow," a monthly news magazine of the Appalachian region, headquartered in Abingdon, VA.

Barondess on dean's list

David P. Barondess has been named to the Deans List at Old Dominion University for the summer semester.

Barondess, a business administration major, will continue his studies this fall at Virginia Polytech University in Blacksburg, VA. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart H. Barondess of Virginia Beach.

Beach student accepted at Berklee College of Music

Boston's Berklee College of Music has accepted Bryan Compton, son of Admiral and Mrs. Bryan Compton, Hermitage Road, Virginia Beach, for entrance to its intensive special Seven-Week Summer Program which commences in June. His curriculum will include private instrumental instruction, arranging, improvisation and solo/orchestral performance.

The Seven-Week Program is designed to assess the musical talent, capacity and growth potential of the student considering music as a vocation. Through the development of special techniques and testing methods, the individual's aptitude and talent is measured prior to his/her embarking on the long training course of a formal musical education on the college level.

Compton will be instructed by the regular Berklee faculty and will have exposure to many educators and professionals enrolled in this summer program.

Eubank graduates from vet school

Gray F. Eubank, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Eubank of Virginia Beach, was among the recent class of graduates from the University of Georgia, College of Veterinary Medicine.

Eubank received his under-graduate education at Old Dominion University in Norfolk, and Virginia Military Institute in Lexington. He plans to enter a small animal practice with Dr. Robert Baisch at the Tidewater Animal Hospital in Norfolk.

Bryan wins award at Tech

Darrell Bryan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Bryan of 2217 Powhatan Ave., has been awarded the Donald W. Smith Memorial Award at Virginia Tech. The award is given each year to an outstanding student in the surveying curriculum within Tech's Engineering Department.

Bryan graduated from Frank W. Cox High School in 1974. He is a graduate student at Tech.

Mrs. Margaret Smith presented the award in memory of her late husband, Donald W. Smith, who was the former head of the surveying program at Tech.

Virginia Beach cadets honored at VMI year-end ceremonies

Year-end ceremonies at Virginia Military Institute brought awards to three Virginia Beach cadets who were recognized for excellence and leadership in Navy ROTC at the Institute. One of three was also recognized for academic excellence. Receiving awards were:

Cadet Captain John A. Brown Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J.A. Brown of Old Great Neck Road, the U.S. Naval Institute Award to the outstanding graduate of the Naval ROTC program;

Cadet Lieutenant Jamie L. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Randall C. Smith of Kingston Drive, the Reserve Officers Association Gold Medal for leadership in Navy ROTC and the Adolfo Ponzanelli Medal for distinguished achievement in the study of modern languages; and Cadet Stephen P. Dobler, son of Mrs. Gladys Cartwright of Rochelle Arch, the Sons of the American Revolution ROTC Medal for excellence and leadership among members of the freshman class enrolled in Navy ROTC.

Cadets Brown and Smith were graduated from VMI on May 19.

Cadet Captain John A. Brown Jr. of Virginia Beach is congratulated by Virginia Military Institute superintendent Lt. Gen. Richard L. Irbay at presentation of the U.S. Naval Institute Award recognizing Brown as the outstanding graduate of the Naval ROTC program at VMI. Presentation of the award was made during recent finals weekend ceremonies.

TCC student wins mariner's prize

Lawrence D. Lacerra, a computer technician studying electrical engineering at the Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College, has won second prize and a $100 cash award in the local competition of a national essay contest sponsored by the Merchant Marine.

Lacerra, who says he knew "absolutely nothing" about the Merchant Marine until he saw the essay contest notice on a TCC bulletin board, armed himself with a week's library research and a trip to the Mariners Museum. Based on that information, he wrote a 1400 essay entitled "Proudly They Sail," in which he discussed "the contributions of the American merchant marine to the development of this country and the nation's continued dependence on them now."

Lacerra is obviously thrilled about the award, not to mention the cash. The veteran of Army and Air Force services says writing is strictly a hobby and he has no intention of pursuing a career in writing. Aside from basic English courses required at Tidewater Community College, he has had no writing instruction. He says he was gratified with the second place award since an ODU creative writing student won first place.

The Merchant Marine award is Lacerra's second. In 1973 he received a George Washington Freedom Award sponsored by the Valley Forge Freedom Foundation for an essay he wrote entitled "Freedom Has a Price."

Library hosts ceramic art show

From June 11 to 18, ceramic students at Tidewater Community College and the Virginia Beach Art Center will present a show of their work at the Oceanfront Branch Library in Virginia Beach. The students are all studying under ceramics instructor, Sharon Bloodworth. The show will include over twenty pieces of wheel-thrown and hand-built ceramics in various mediums. Many of the pieces will be available for purchase after the show.

The Oceanfront Branch Library is located at 19th and Arctic Ave. in Virginia Beach.

Virginia Beach Arts Center begins summer classes soon

Summer classes at the Virginia Beach Arts Center begin June 18. Seventeen classes will be offered this summer including five designed especially for children. Class fees range from $29 to $55. You may register by calling the Virginia Beach Arts Center at 428-9294.

Bayside library presents folktales from around the world

On Thursday, June 21, the Bayside Branch Library will present a program of folktales from around the world. The program will begin at 10 a.m. and is open to children between the ages of 6 and 12.

Since the program is limited to 25 children, preregistration is necessary and can be taken care of by coming to the Bayside Branch Library between June 11 and 15 to sign a registration form.

Ms. Dana Jones and Ms. Dee Dallman will present a program of folktales from Germany, Africa, the United States and other countries and cultures. For further information contact either of these individuals at 464-9280.

The Bayside branch is located at 936 Independence Boulevard.

'Fiddler' proves delightful

"Fiddler on the Roof," now showing at the Tidewater Dinner Theatre, is a delightful, fast-moving musical comedy. The entire cast does a great job on this one. You, as a spectator, can almost feel the sorrows, and the joys that change at a fast pace throughout the play. Young and old alike will find this a fun way to spend an evening.

Hank Mauro, who portrays Tevye, is most convincing in his role, with the talented support of the rest of the cast to back him, he easily steals the show.

The orchestra, conducted by Chris Kypros, does an equally superb job.

Beach artist's works on display at Hilltop

An exhibit of art works by Ms. Harriet Kronick is being featured during June at the Artist's Corner of Mutual Federal Savings and Loan Association's Hilltop branch in Virginia Beach. The free exhibit features paintings, primarily portraits, and figure studies both in pastels and oils.

Ms. Kronick's oil paintings received an Award of Excellence and the Popular Vote at last year's Virginia Beach Art Center Members Show. In 1977, Ms. Kronick's pastel paintings won an Award of Achievement at the same show.

A former resident of Pennsylvania, Ms. Kronick received commercial art training at the Ad-Art Studio School in Pittsburgh and fine arts training at the Carnegie Institute, also in Pittsburgh.

Great Neck library conducts Father's Day craft session

The Great Neck branch of the Virginia Beach Public Library will conduct a Father's Day Craft session on Friday, June 15, at 3 p.m.

The class will be for children ages 7-12 years of age and limited to fifteen children. Registration is required and is currently underway.

This program is free and open to the public. No phone registrations will be taken. The Great Neck Branch Library is located in the Hilltop area of Virginia Beach at 1251 Bayne Drive. For further information contact Ms. Debbie Carter at 481-6094.

Phyllis Diller, Burl Ives and Marvin Hamlisch head Virginia Pops '79-80 series at Dome

Phyllis Diller, Burl Ives and Marvin Hamlisch will share the stage with Walter Noona and the Virginia Pops in their '79-80 debut season. "Next season's plans are like a personal statement for me," says Maestro Noona. "My entire career has been built on the premise the Virginia Orchestra Group is promoting 'The best of both musical worlds!'"

The Virginia Pops will perform three concerts on the Virginia Sunday Pops (formally the Virginia Beach Pops Symphony) series of seven concerts at the Virginia Beach Dome. The Virginia Sunday Pops will also be conducted by Walter Noona, and will consist of a core of amateur instrumentalists basically forming the heart of the Virginia Beach Pops Symphony. The Virginia Sunday Pops will perform its successful "cabaret-style" concerts with wine and cheese available for purchase.

The Virginia Pops will host a new Chrysler Hall series of three Saturday night pops concerts. The Virginia Pops will host a new Chrysler Hall series of three Saturday night pops concerts. The Virginia Pops under Maestro Noona's direction, will also perform the traditional New Year's Eve concert -- a special non-subscription concert at the Omni Hotel next December 31.

Phyllis Diller, the lady with the outrageous laugh, will join Maestro Noona and the Pops on January 26 in Chrysler Hall and on January 27 at the Virginia Beach Dome. Miss Diller was engaged after expressing enthusiasm for her orchestra during her engagement at a Virginia Beach night club.

Miss Diller is acclaimed as the world's only female stand-up comic of international fame, but has added another dimension to her career having made sixty appearances with symphony orchestras as a concert pianist. Miss Diller will tackle a Beethoven concerto in her VOG debut with the Virginia Pops.

"Burl Ives in America's most beloved singer of folk songs. He has sung America high, wide and long....In his songs, he has made American history and legend shine like stars." Virtuoso guitarist, Burl Ives will join the Virginia Pops on February 23 in Chrysler Hall and on February 24 at the Virginia Beach Dome and at the Warwick Auditorium in Newport News.

Academy-award winning composer Marvin Hamlisch, whose string of hits include, A Chorus Line, themes from the films, "The Spy Who Loved Me," "Ice Castles," "The Way We Were" and the arrangement of "The Sting" joins Walter Noona and the Virginia Pops on May 17 in Chrysler Hall and on May 18 at the Virginia Beach Dome. Hamlisch, known for his appearances on talk-shows as well as for his composing talents, was honored in 1976 by the Pulitzer Prize for his work on A Chorus Line. His current contribution to Broadway is They're Playing Our Song starring Lucie Arnaz and Robert Klein.

The Virginia Pops Chrysler Hall series of three concerts are now on sale. Prices for the series of three concerts are discounted and will be available at $27.50, $22.50, $19.50, $17.50 and $11.50 with additional discounts available for senior citizens and students.

The Virginia Pops/Virginia Sunday Pops -- Virginia Beach Dome series of seven concerts are also on sale. Prices for the series reflect a discount of 14 1/2 percent, and are available at $41 and $35 per person at reserved tables of four and eight, respectively, and $29 for general admission.

For further information on these two series call the VOG Ticket Hotline at 623-2310. Master Charge, VISA, American Express and Smith and Welton charge cards are accepted.

Beach girls can register for Girl Scout camps

Oak furniture a good buy

Around the turn of the century, oak was one of the favorite woods for furniture. It was rare indeed for a home not to have at least one piece of good, sturdy oak...a desk (roll top, of course!) or bookcase or perhaps a china cabinet. Because oak stands up well under years of use, furniture made from this solid wood abounds today. Overlooked for years by collectors and dealers, oak furniture has now come into its own and pieces are rising in value.

Oak furniture, today, is a good investment, and will be worth more as time passes on.

There is a multitude of unusual pieces, that when refinished, will enhance just about any decor. Most oak is easy to strip and refinish, when done properly.

In answer to this week's questions:
Q. What is Mary Gregory glass? L.G., Virginia Beach.

A. Mary Gregory glass is identified by a characteristic white figure painted on dark glass. It was made from 1870 to 1910. The name refers to any glass decorated with a white silhouette figure and not just the sandwich glass originally painted by Miss Mary Gregory.

A Virginia Beach woman has won $1,000 in McDonald's "Gold Rush" game.

Ruby M. Williams of Silina Drive, Virginia Beach, won the prize at the McDonald's located at 3825 Virginia Beach Blvd.

During the contest, customers in any area McDonald's were eligible to win up to $25,000 in gold or cash in the "Gold Rush," a game styled after the 1849 California Gold Rush.

Invitation sent Moss, Norway

Virginia Beach City Council will extend an invitation to the Moss, Norway, Brass Band to visit the city in 1980.

Moss is a sister city of the Beach and was visited by the then Beach Mayor Clarence A. Holland last year.

Rolf Williams, Norwegian consul, said the band planned to present concerts while here and to participate in recreational and education activities.

Council Monday afternoon voted unanimously to extend an official invitation to the band.

Commentary

Telling it like it isn't

President Carter struck a responsive chord with the American people when he complained some months back that he had difficulty in understanding many of the reports submitted to him by the Washington bureaucracy. There were national cheers when he directed officials to write in plain, understandable English.

This, of course, is a consummation devoutly to be wished for. But before we can expect bureaucrats to express themselves clearly, we'll see the budget balanced, inflation licked, the United States exporting oil to Saudi Arabia, and the Soviet Union practicing unilateral disarmament.

In a fast-changing world, one constant we can be sure of is the bureaucrat who writes, not to communicate, but to impress — not wisely but too well.

Unlike the president, who can call upon staff assistants to obtain translations of bureaucratese, the average citizen may face penalties or loss of funds because he doesn't know how to comply with the government gobbledygook.

One of our readers recently asked help in deciphering Medicare Bureau form TM 1759, now being sent to citizens processing health insurance forms. It does not speak for itself.

"The Medicare Bureau has determined that, effective February 1979, certain laboratory services and items of durable medical equipment will be subject to new reasonable charge criterion known as the lowest charge level (LCL). The LCL is the 25th percentile of all charges incurred or submitted for an item or service and will be used as the maximum reimbursement amount. Therefore, payment for services affected by the LCL is the lowest of the actual, customary or prevailing charges."

What this means, a Medicare spokesman explained, is that if a patient, for example, wishes to buy a wheel chair, Medicare will pay 80 percent of the cost in the lowest 25 percent price bracket of wheel chairs.

Now we all know.

Letters

Bikeways should be included before it is too late

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

As our major arterial roads are reconstructed in Virginia Beach, a separated strip of pavement for the use of bikers, joggers and pedestrians should be included. These "peoplesways" or "bikeways", approximately five feet in width, may be separated from the main road by only a white line. When these areas for non-motorized traffic are included as the arterial roadway is being reconstructed, the cost is very small. The State of Virginia will include these bikeways as a part of any state highway project in Virginia Beach, simply upon the request of our City Council. Not more than 10% of the small additional cost will have to be borne by the city.

With the cost of gas skyrocketing and air quality standards becoming more stringent, it will become increasingly important for people to be able to safely walk, bike or jog to stores, schools, libraries and places of recreation.

Virginia Beach is now in the process of reconstructing many of its major roads without providing this means for safe transit for non-motorized traffic. Omitting these safety lanes when the means are so readily available to include them, would be a tragedy. We must act now, with our individual letters and group resolutions to our City Manager and Council. Tomorrow might be too late. Our major arterial roads will have been permanently reconstructed and our great opportunity in Virginia Beach to provide a safe means of travel for those wishing to ride a bike or walk to their destination will have been lost.

Yours very truly,
Glenn B. McClanahan, Member
Virginia House of Delegates from Virginia Beach
Reba S. McClanahan, Immediate Past President
Virginia Beach Council of Civic Organizations

Increase approved

When City Council passed the current operating budget for the present fiscal year City Manager Roger Scott informed councilmen that the welfare department's budget would be increased, but that he would not know exactly how much until sometime in the future.

He informed them Monday that an additional $87,128 in local funds would be needed to balance the department's current budget, based on requirements that must be met to receive federal and state funds.

Several councilmen grumbled that the city had so little control over the welfare budget, that it was set up by other agencies and that the city had to foot the bill.

Then council unanimously agreed to appropriate the funds, as expected....

Kids could walk to school

Three hundred thousand books would make quite a stack.

That's the approximate and admittedly conservative number of new text books ordered for the Virginia Beach public schools for this fall. That is not the total number of text books which will be purchased, for many parents buy as many used books as they can or pass them down from one child to another when it is feasible.

Parents, especially ones new to the area, often complain about the high cost of books. Others point accusing fingers at Norfolk schools, which provide free books for children. The overlook one big difference. Virginia Beach provides transportation for students; Norfolk does not. That item added $935,000 to the 1969-70 Virginia Beach School budget.

If parents are buying all new books for their children this fall, the price tag will read like this: first grade, $7.55; second, $8.76; third, $14.47; fourth, $19.56; fifth, $15.25; sixth, $15.19; seventh, $21.51. The jump in price in the fourth grade is accounted for by a dictionary....

VBDC presents study

City Council Monday formally was presented with the Virginia Beach Development Council study of tourism and industry. A VBDC committee had made a detailed study of the practices surrounding both being employed in Jacksonville and Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

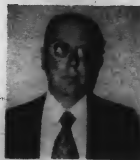

The chairman of the committee, Richard Cockrell, presented five recommendations that he said he hoped the city would adopt as soon as possible.

They include the establishment of a new city department of Economic Development, directly responsible to the city manager. Two divisions, one for tourism and one for industrial development, would be part of the new department. The Industrial Authority and a new advisory board would work closely with the new department.

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Your number's up

By Harvey J. Midinger, Field Representative

A frequent question that we get from people on Medicare or approaching retirement is how much health insurance they need to supplement their Medicare protection.

The question stems from the fact that Medicare does not cover all hospital or medical expenses. Many people feel the need to purchase additional insurance to pay for any charges not covered by Medicare.

Hearings held during recent months by the Senate Committee on Aging pointed up the fact that there is a great deal of confusion among Medicare beneficiaries as to how to purchase supplementary health insurance.

Some people tend to purchase much more than they need. Others fall prey to high pressure salesmen and buy insurance that doesn't really meet their needs.

It is estimated that about 65 percent of the 25 million people now on Medicare rolls have supplementary private health insurance.

I can't give you any hard and fast rules on how to select a supplemental insurance policy or whether you should. It's a decision that people need to make based on their personal situations. However, it may be helpful to discuss some of the considerations that should influence your decisions.

Anyone selecting health insurance to supplement their Medicare protection should be sure to get information in three areas: (1) what Medicare does and does not pay for, (2) the economics of health care delivery (to determine what is practical to insure against) and (3) how private health insurance works (or what to look for in selecting a policy).

You can get information on what Medicare pays for from "Your Medicare Handbook." If you don't have one, call your social security office and have them send you one. The phone number in Norfolk is 441-3401.

Information on the economics of health care delivery should include data on hospital use by older people, what is insurable from a practical standpoint, and the cost of covering certain types of risks.

Information in this area may be more difficult to get, but a likely source would be the insurance company you've been affiliated with during your working years. They may also be able to provide information on how private health insurance works and what to look for in selecting a policy.

For information on individual insurance companies operating in your area, your state consumer protection division or state insurance commission may be able to assist you in obtaining information.

However, there is certain basic information in these areas that you should know if you are selecting supplemental health insurance or assisting an older relative or friend to do so.

Medicare consists of two parts. Hospital insurance helps pay hospital-related bills and for certain follow-up care. Medical insurance helps pay doctor bills, outpatient hospital bills, and for certain other services not covered by hospital insurance.

In a nutshell, Medicare hospital insurance pays for all covered services for the first 60 days of a hospital stay except for the first $160 in a benefit period.

From the 61st day to the 90th day in a hospital stay, Medicare will pay all but $40 a day, and for each of the 60 reserve days, Medicare will pay all but $80 a day.

Medicare medical insurance does not pay the first $60 of covered medical bills incurred during the year. Medicare cannot pay for out-of-hospital prescription drugs, most nursing home care, routine physical examinations, eyeglasses, hearing aids, or dental care.

Medicare cannot pay for the portion of doctors' fees that exceed a reasonable charge, as determined by the medical carrier. It does pay, however, 80 percent of the reasonable charge after the $60 annual deductible has been met.

Once you determine what Medicare does not pay for, the question becomes how do you pay for the anticipated exclusions. This is called the "economics of health care"—figuring out, based on how the system works, what is practical to insure against and what would be better to pay out of pocket.

Many people want insurance coverage for extensive hospital stays beyond the 60 or 90 days that Medicare covers. However, they may not realize that only about 5 percent of Medicare patients spend more than 60 days in the hospital during a stay.

A new benefit period begins 60 days after discharge from a hospital or skilled nursing home stay. This means that if a person becomes ill again, he or she starts all over again, just as though no Medicare hospital days have been used.

Other people like the notion of obtaining insurance coverage for initial deductibles—$60 under medical insurance and $160 under hospital insurance. In general you pay more for coverage of the deductibles than for some other types of health care insurance.

Some people seek supplemental insurance to pay for the higher than "reasonable charges" for which Medicare cannot pay. However most private insurance companies do not cover such charges for the same reason—that they are not considered "reasonable charges" for treatment of the condition.

There is a feeling that to cover such charges would encourage the charging of inflated fees and provide inflationary pressures on health care costs.

Once you know what Medicare cannot pay for and you have decided what risks you want to insure against, you need to review what private health insurance policies can meet your needs.

You probably have noticed that insurance policies vary widely in terms of coverage and costs. Of course, I can't tell you what type of policy would be best for you, but there are some experiences that Medicare beneficiaries have had that may prove useful.

If you are a member of a group health insurance plan in connection with your job, fraternal organization, or other group, check to see if it carries some coverage after retirement. Many do and can provide a basis for filling in Medicare gaps.

If your present plan doesn't carry over into retirement or if you don't have one, be sure that the policy you are looking at covers what you have decided you need insurance for.

For example, you may be surprised at how many health insurance policies actually exclude from coverage the same general areas that Medicare excludes—out-of-hospital prescription drugs, most nursing home care, routine physical examinations, eyeglasses, hearing aids, dental care, or doctors' charges above the reasonable charges.

So the most important step in selecting a health insurance policy is to determine precisely what it will actually cover.

Another common misconception held by people who purchase more than one health insurance policy, is that they are paying for increased insurance—doubling or tripling their protection. That may not necessarily be true since most policies contain what are known as "coordination of benefits" clauses. This means that if there is overlapping coverage of a particular condition, only one policy will pay.

Thus, a person who buys two policies to cover the $60 medical insurance deductible will actually receive just $60, not $120. The first policy will pay for the loss but not the second.

Some companies indicate in their advertisements or through their agents that they have some kind of affiliation with Medicare or the federal government. This is not true and whenever such a question arises, you should contact your social security office immediately to find out the real story. Medicare cannot endorse any private company for the purpose of providing supplemental health insurance.

Finally, it's probably a good idea to have someone else go over the policy you have decided upon before making a final decision. In this way you can be sure you are getting what you understand you are paying for.

TIDEWATER COMMUNITY COLLEGE-VA. BEACH

Today College Counts

By B. William Bridges
Director of Continuing Education

Tidewater Community College makes facilities and personnel of the college available to provide specialized services for the community in response to identified needs. These services include cultural events, workshops, lectures, conferences, seminars and special community projects which are designed to provide cultural and educational opportunities for the citizens of the Tidewater area.

The Virginia Beach campus has an active community services program, providing facilities, services, education, training and personnel in a variety of areas. For example, the Virginia Beach campus is used by a number of organizations as a location for meetings and other activities. Two childbirth education groups hold lectures and show films at the campus; the Virginia Beach Council of Civic Organizations holds its monthly meeting here, and the Virginia Beach Chess Club holds weekly meetings and tournaments. Both the Virginia Beach Kennel Club and the Tidewater Kennel Club hold dog shows on the TCC grounds.

The Virginia Beach campus provides facilities and instructors for the Gifted Students' program in the Virginia Beach Public School System. During winter quarter for the past five years, 5th, 6th, and 7th grade gifted students have attended special Saturday morning classes taught by TCC faculty members at the Virginia Beach campus.

As another community service, the Virginia Beach campus serves as a test center for the standardized Real Estate Licensing Examination. Our counseling department administers the examination.

In the area of educational services, the Virginia Beach campus offers in-service programs for several area businesses and industries in the area of human relations and leadership training.

The Virginia Beach campus speakers bureau can provide faculty and staff members to lecture on a range of subjects. Speakers appear at no charge to the group or organization. A brochure listing speakers and subjects can be obtained by calling the Office of Continuing Education.

In addition to the community services programs offered by the Virginia Beach campus, members of the administration, faculty and staff serve as representatives of the college to various numerous civic organizations and committees.

In short, the community college attempts to serve the community in as many ways as possible. We are always open to suggestions and requests.

Community services can be arranged by contacting the office of continuing education at the Virginia Beach campus, 427-3070.

More on home maintenance

By LIN J. COOPER
Director of Communications
Tidewater Builders Association

Paying attention to basic maintenance items around your home can be every bit as important to you in the long run as the equity you're building up by reducing the principal each month on your mortgage loan. In fact, keeping up your home will add immeasurable to its future selling price.

A few weeks ago I began offering, in alphabetical order, tips on home maintenance. I continue where I left off:

Cabinets. Kitchen and bathroom cabinets (or vanities) should never be cleaned with harsh abrasives. The counter tops are generally heat and stain resistant under proper care, but protect them from hot irons and pots, pans, or baking dishes taken directly from a burner or oven. Wood cabinets may be cleaned as any other wood furniture unless it has been plastic coated. Counter tops and cabinets made of plastic-coated wood or metal may be cleaned with a detergent solution. Never cut anything directly on the cabinet top; the knife may dent or nick the surface. Keep cabinet doors and drawers closed when not in use.

Chopping Blocks. If a section of your work surface is unfinished wood, it will require special care. To protect it from spills, coat it lightly with olive oil (don't forget the edge). Let the oil soak in for a few minutes, then rub dry with a soft lintless cloth or paper towel. Several thin coats will provide better protection than a heavy one.

To remove stains, sand lightly with a fine grade sandpaper and reoil. Don't use the board for 24 hours after oiling. To remove onion, garlic, or other odors, rub with a slice of citrus fruit (lemon, or orange, etc.), sprinkle lightly with salt, and wipe immediately with a soft cloth or paper towel. If you do not have a built-in chopping block, buy and use a portable chopping block or cutting board to protect your counter tops and drain boards.

Cooling. Thermostats. The thermostat helps keep your house at a comfortable temperature throughout. Individual room temperatures may be further regulated by adjusting the registers in the various rooms or the dampers in the ducts from the furnace to the registers. If your home is heated by a warm-air system, your thermostat may also contain controls for converting the cooling system to the heating system and vice versa. A significant reduction in your heating bill can be made by simply reducing the thermostat setting in the home either during sleeping hours or when the home will be unoccupied for some time.

Some homes are equipped with automatic set-back thermostats that can be set to reduce the thermostat setting shortly before bedtime and return it to normal prior to morning wake-up.

Because of the special characteristics of heat pumps, a constant setting on the thermostat is recommended.

Registers. The registers throughout your house help to regulate the flow of air and to maintain the desired temperature. By opening and closing the registers and dampers, you can determine the amount of cool air that enters a room.

In addition to the air outlets your house will have an air intake register. Many houses have more than one. Neither these nor the other registers should ever be obstructed by furniture, drapes, or other objects.

Filters. Most central air-conditioning systems have an air filter to help keep the air in your home clean. For maximum efficiency, this filter should be periodically cleaned or replaced. The instruction manual for your cooling system will tell you the location of the filter and how to clean or replace it. Clogged filters are a frequent cause of inadequate cooling.

Annual inspection. A central air-conditioning system, like your heating system, should be periodically checked and cleaned by a professional, repairman. See your instruction manual for the frequency of this care.

Future columns will be carrying more information on home maintenance. Next time: disposals and doors.

Brand Distributors to open third catalog show room at Hilltop North

Brand Distributors, locally owned and operated catalog showrooms, will open a new showroom at Hilltop North, Virginia Beach, in early July.

The new showroom will be located between Rose's Variety Store and People's Drug Store on the north side of the shopping center. It will encompass 18,000 square feet.

President Milton Kaplan of Brand said, "This is our first step to bring our showrooms nearer the population centers of Tidewater to reduce driving and shopping time. We're pleased to be able to find our third location in the busy Hilltop North center."

Allen Nordlinger of S.L. Nussbaum handled the transaction.

Bus tour of property listings proves beneficial to sales associates

Lawrence A. Sancilio, president of Larasan Realty/Better Homes and Gardens, found a unique answer to the gas shortage. He hired a big bus for his sales associates to use on a recent tour of property listings. By having over 50 of his people tour together on a bus not only did they save gas but several other benefits came of the adventure. All associates felt this was a truly great idea.

The bus visited ten newly listed homes and then paid a visit to one of the recently opened new home sites handled by Larasan Realty/Better Homes and Gardens. The builder personally conducted the tour of model homes at Cedar Ridge in Green Run.

The sales associates felt this new innovation gave them a chance to know the agents from the five offices better. Listing agents spoke about each home before seeing it.

The hostess for the tour was Barbara Kendrick, manager of the Kempsville office. She planned the complete tour with the assistance of the managers of the other four offices, who planned a complete cross section of properties.

Sancilio said, "the tour was so well received, we plan to repeat it monthly as part of our joint sales meeting held the second Wednesday of each month."

Ms. Kendrick stated, "Even though each of the five offices conduct tours weekly, this bus tour received very favorable comments from homeowners, who felt we were going all out to sell their home."

Plummer named regional sales manager

Charles W. Plummer of Virginia Beach has been named Mid-Atlantic Regional Sales Manager for AMF Alcott/Paceship, the sailboat division of AMF Incorporated.

In this position Plummer will be responsible for appointing, maintaining and servicing AMF Alcott/Paceship dealers in a seven-state territory.

Prior to joining AMF Alcott/Paceship, Plummer served as Sales Manager for Atlantic Marine in Virginia Beach, as well as in a variety of marine sales and service capacities in the mid-Atlantic area.

A four year Navy veteran, and a graduate of Northeastern University, Boston, MA, Plummer is an avid cruising sailor and is active in the One-Design Yacht Racing Association of Annapolis.

Investments and tax shelters to be taught at TCC

The Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College will offer Investment and Tax Shelters in its summer schedule of non-credit Spectrum courses.

Designed for the individual or business investor, the course offers information on stocks, bonds, stock options and tax shelters. The instructor is a qualified investments counselor affiliated with the local office of a national investments firm.

The class will meet Thursdays, 7-9:30 p.m., June 21 through July 12. The registration fee is $10.

Registration is under way and may be completed either by mail or in person. To obtain information and registration forms, contact the Office of Continuing Education at 427-3070.

Office personnel elect officers

The Virginia Beach Association of Educational Office Personnel held its annual Bosses' Night Dinner at the Commodore Country Club on May 24.

George Chandler was selected as the Administrator of the Year. Joyce Christmore was selected as Secretary of the Year. The Lennie Johnson Scholarship was awarded to Tracy Ann Phillips.

The following ladies received their Certification: Mary Morris, Velma Haynes, Ruth Holloman. Those who received their PSP Certifications were: Frances McClenny, Pat Kilmon, Lynn Spangler, Lee Perry, Bernice Woodfin, Hilda Cramer, Anita LaBahn, Barbara Eward, Sue DeVaughn.

Mrs. Minnie Taylor installed officers for the 1979-80 year. They are:

president, Lynn Spangler; president elect, Bert Gourley; recording secretary, Rose Cohen; corresponding secretary, Cheryl Weaver; treasurer, Anita LaBahn.

Shrubs for a shady location

There are a very few shrubs that actually require shaded conditions in order to grow well. However, there are a number of attractive plants that will withstand it. Most of your shrubs will not flower or produce fruit as well in the shade as in the sun; and the deeper the shade, the fewer the flowers and fruits.

The following are among the plants that will do well in Virginia in a shaded or partially shaded location. All of these plants may not be readily available at your local nursery but are worth seeking if you have the right location for them.

Five-leaved Aralia (Acanthopanax scheidtiana)—Valued chiefly as a foliage plant, it has the admirable trait of growing well in the shade and withstanding city growing conditions, one of the best shrubs for both purposes. Not commonly found.

Fringetree (Chionanthus virginicus)—The native Fringetree is quite ornamental, with fleecy white flowers produced in the utmost profusion. Closely related to the lilac, this species also must be watched for scale infestations.

Siberian Dogwood (Cornus alba 'Sibirica')—This variety is a splendid addition to the shrub border because of its numerous white flower clusters and its conspicuous white fruits. For winter display few other deciduous plants surpass it in colorful effectiveness because of its vivid red bark.

Common Witch-hazel (Hamamelis virginiana)—This native American shrub, common in the woods of nearly half the United States, is the last shrub (in the North) to bear flowers in the fall. Because of this and its bright-yellow autumn color, it is valued.

Mountain-laurel (Kalmia latifolia)—A very lovely native American evergreen shrub, widely planted and appreciated. It requires acid soil but given that and a mulch of pine needles or well-rotted oak leaves, it will do well.

Summersweet (Clethra alnifolia)—This shrub is excellent for fragrant summer bloom. It does will at the seashore and just as well inland along the coast. If the soil is too dry, it tends to get infestations of red spider that mar the foliage.

Cornelian-cherry (Cornus mas)—One of the earliest blooming of the spring-flowering shrubs with flowers before the leaves. A sturdy, vigorous plant, useful as a specimen in the shrub border or as a hedge.

Arrowwood (Viburnum dentatum)—A vigorous shrub with many shoots coming from the base, this is not a viburnum for specimen use, but it grows well in almost any soil in almost any situation. It can be used as a "filler" in any shrub border or massed for general foliage effects, for it grows rapidly.

Landscaping for ease of maintenance

Maintaining the home landscape can be made easier by careful planning. The major time-consuming elements in such maintenance are: the lawn; the hedges; the flower border; the foundation composition; and control of insect and plant diseases, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture Cooperative Extension Service.

The Lawn—Some suggestions for cutting down on lawn maintenance include:

1. Keep the lawn area open to allow easy movement of power equipment. Where trees or isolated shrubs are planted in the lawn area, use a mulch around the tree trunks so that hand trimming of grass will be eliminated.
2. Eliminate small lawn areas by using ground covers where it is difficult to use the power lawn equipment.
3. On slopes that are too steep to mow conveniently or safely, plant in ground covers, masses of shrubs, or naturalize the slope in trees and shrubs.
4. Under heavy shade, where the growing of grass may be difficult, plant a suitable ground cover or use pebbled stone, decorative bark or pave the area with flagstone with open joints between the stones to allow water to seep into the root area of the tree.

Hedges—Hedges that are clipped in a formal manner at a specific height and width are a high maintenance item, because it is often necessary to prune this type of hedge several times during the work season. To eliminate maintenance work, consider maintaining the plants in an informal style. Also, choose plants that normally grow to the approximate height desired and, thus, eliminate having to do too much pruning for controlling the height of the hedge.

The Foundation Composition—Plants in the foundation composition of a structure often require annual pruning, feeding, mulching, weed control, and insect and disease control. Some of the work can be lessened by selecting plants that will grow to about the size envisioned as being most suitable for the location. Avoid pruning plants in a formal manner. Mulch around the plants to help conserve moisture and suppress weed growth. Avoid using plants that are insect or disease prone. Select plants hardy to the area where they are to be grown.

Avoid over fertilizing. All plants do not need to be fed every year. In fact, feeding trees and shrubs that are growing as fast as desired or that have reached the desired height for the best landscape design effect will often result in excessive growth; the plants will then require extra pruning to keep them at the desired height.

The Flower Border—Annual or perennial flower beds or border require a good deal of maintenance to establish them each year and to keep them looking good during the growing season. Roses, especially, require a good deal of attention. If time and energy is limited, other less demanding plants should be substituted for roses, annuals, and perennials.

If cut flowers are desired, reserve a special area in the vegetable garden where a few rows of flowers can be grown and cultivation can be handled by mechanical equipment. Combining portions of the perennial or annual border with shrubs helps to provide some year-round structure to the border. Naturalizing bulbs provides low maintenance color.

Insect and Disease Control—Avoid using plants that are insect or disease prone. Time can also be saved if proper spray equipment is available and in working order.

Renewing the forest

Getting new trees to replace old, keeping the land in full production is a continual effort on the part of scientifically trained foresters — and they do it in a variety of interesting ways.

Foresters sometimes use seed from the air, using helicopters or airplanes to drop seed. The potential number of trees per pound of seed dropped depends upon the species. A pound of Southern pine seed will average 18,400 seeds while a pound of Douglas fir seed averages 42,000 seeds.

Some seedlings are placed in the ground by hand, usually at the age of six months or more.

Styrofoam boxes of seedlings fit onto special backpacks worn by planters. Each seedling, with its well-formed roots, is plucked from the box and planted. In flat lands, it is possible for a quick planter to set out as many as 2,000 trees a day, but in steep areas, hand-planting is a good day's work.

When a coast redwood is cut, the stump almost immediately puts up sprouts all around itself. The more dominant of the sprouts will develop into full-grown adult trees standing in a ring. This species, one of America's fastest-growing trees, has been called "almost immortal."

In new and growing forests, three practices contribute to the speed with which the trees mature: using chemistry to kill unwanted species that compete for nutrition and light; fertilizing and thinning to provide room for growth; and using methods to subside naturally, or by fire or other means necessary,

Beach, blind & boat: Best week on flounder— Black Drum tapering off

By ED LEWIS
Virginia Beach Sea Fisheries Writer

If you've yet failed to land one of those prizes of Cape Charles (black drum), you'd better get going. Emmet Bailey of Bailey's Bait and Tackle Shop told me that they're leaving the area and that only a few are now being taken. Most of the charter boats are now fishing for blues or grey trout because there's not enough drum action to keep the fishing parties happy. Emmet did report, however, that grey trout are still plentiful at the plantation light, and that most anglers are using sting-ray grubs with a strip of squid or peeler crab.

At Wachapreague, April Mason told me that flounder fishermen have enjoyed their best fishing this past week. She said that most of the charter boats have been catching over a hundred per boat, and that last Thursday, Capt. Bobby Turner and his party caught 110 flounder and 65 trout. That is really a fine day's fishing, especially when they released approximately 50 that were under twelve inches. Captain Bill Colson on the charter boat "Capt. Bill" also had good luck; his party caught 112 flounder.

As we come back to the western shore, Herman Garreger of Harrison's Fishing Pier told me that they are having good luck on small spot and flounder; at night they're catching large blues in the ten to eleven pound class. Herman also told me that they've had more round head (sea mullet) caught this year than they've had in the last seven or eight years.

At the Lynnhaven Fishing Pier, Jamie Abasalom told me that they are catching plenty of small spot, flounder, croaker, round head and grey trout. The grey trout are biting under the lights after dark. Jamie also told me that crab fishermen have been catching all they wanted, so if you like steamed crabs, here is your chance.

The charter boats at Rudeg Inlet Sports Fishing Center have been having pretty good luck on blues and grey trout. The head boats have also been doing well at the off-shore wrecks with nice catches of sea bass and ling cod.

The Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel is still yielding plenty of grey trout especially in the area of mile post eleven and thirteen. Fishermen drift-fishing in the Thimble Shoal and Baltimore channel have noted increases in the number and size of the flounder in these areas, as well as an increase in croaker activity.

At Nags Head, Milton, of Tatum's Bait and Tackle told me that they've been catching plenty of flounder and drum (channel bass) on the north side of Oregon Inlet. The drum fishermen are using cut mullet for bait and thus catching large blues in addition to the drum. Milton also told me that they're starting to catch a few cobia at Hatteras Inlet, and that if the warm weather holds up, the action should increase by this weekend.

On the fresh water scene, Otis Nelson at the Northeast River Campgrounds reports that the fishing has picked up in his area. Ray Franklin of Portsmouth caught 21 nice bream on Monday. Also on Monday, Robble Robertson (a game warden at Lake Smith) caught 30 bream, three bass and 4 catfish. That's a real fine catch and a nice variety. Otis also told me that one of his old regulars, Rev. Carter caught five bass and 7 bream. Rev. Carter seems to catch enough fish each week to really help out on his grocery bill.

If you're one of those fishermen that likes to use strips of squid as a primary bait for bottom fishing, here is a tip that might make things a little easier for you. Buy several packages of squid, clean it, and then cut it into strips the size you prefer (that is, according to the type of fishing that you are going to do) the get yourself some of the plastic margarine bowls with tops that many people save for storing left overs in. Place the squid in the plastic containers fill with water and then freeze. As you're day of fishing progresses, your bait will be thawing as you need it, and already cut.

If you are planning a fishing trip this week, here are a few that are starting to run pretty well at area hotspots.

Spot are being caught off Chesapeake Beach in the area of the Bridge-Tunnel and West to Buckroe Beach. They can be caught from the boat or on some of the fine fishing piers that are in our area. My favorite bait for spot is blood worm cut into small pieces approximately 1/4 inch long.

Grey Trout are being caught along the pillings of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel (mainly between mile post eleven and thirteen), at the Plantation Flats Light, by the concrete ships at Kiptopeake, and a few at Lynnhaven Inles Bridge. Mr favorite bait for grey trout is Stringray grubs with peeler crab or white bucktails with peeler crab. The lures should be cast up in to the tide and then jigged as they are reeled in slowly.

Croaker are being caught off area piers and between the Hampton Roads Tunnel and the Thimble Shoals light. I like to use squid for croaker. Squid will enhance your chance of picking up a flounder or trout as you make your drifts. You should use a Chesapeake Bay bottom rig with a round sinker of sufficient weight to hold bottom as you drift.

If you've caught some fish and would like for me to write about it — or if you have a fishing tip that you would like to share with other anglers — drop me a line (and pictures if possible) and mail it to: Ed Lewis, Chesapeake Post — 1024 North Battlefield Blvd. Chesapeake, Va. 23320.

If you're planning a fishing trip to the Outer Banks this week, here is a tide table for the week of June 8 thru June 14, 1979. The table is calculated for Oregon Inlet. For Cape Hatteras subtract 41 minutes for high tide and 58 minutes for low tide. Good fishing.

Free boat safety inspections Saturday at Beach

In the interest of promoting boating safety, Flotilla 37, U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, Virginia Beach, will participate by holding boat safety inspections. Inspectors from the Flotilla will be at the following locations from 7 a.m. until 1 p.m. on June 9:

Lynnhaven Dry Storage Marina, Lynnhaven waterways Marina, City Marina, Boat ramp at Seashore State Park, Boat ramp at Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base.

The boat safety inspections are a free service.

Following are some tips for a fun and safe boating season.

- Pleasure boating can depend on the weather, and even the brightest day can turn dark quickly. The National Safe Boating Week Committee suggests you check the current weather reports before you set sail for a day on the water.

- Boating is more fun when your boat is properly equipped. Do you have the minimum U.S. Coast Guard required equipment on board? Your local United States Coast Guard Auxiliary can give your boat a free, courtesy examination, and can also recommend some additional equipment for greater preparedness afloat.

- Read any good capacity plates lately? The one on your boat will tell you how many people your boat can safely carry and the maximum safe horsepower your boat can handle. Read it and heed it. The National Safe Boating Week Committee.

- Kids love boats, but they also need special attention. The Committee for Virginia Beach Safe Boating Week advises that small children should always wear proper flotation devices and should be taught to keep seated and not lean over the railings.

- Boating fun is for everyone. Boating safety if every boater's responsibility. Know your boat. Know the rules. Know your boating waters. It's more fun the safe way.

- The rules say that, in most cases, sailboats have the right of way over other boats...But there's such a thing as common sense. In a narrow channel it is required that a small vessel keep out of the way of a larger vessel...like a tanker or freighter. The larger vessel cannot maneuver as well as your smaller pleasure boat.

- Take this good word of advice from boatmen who know...If your boat should capsize or swamp, don't try to swim for shore, because it's probably a lot farther than it looks. Stick with your boat, or any other floating object.

LOCAL TOUCH

No other medium is bound up with the everyday life of your community more than your hometown newspaper.

- Your Safe Boating Week Committee reminds you that the federal regulations require boats over 16 feet in length to carry a U.S. Coast Guard approved wearable device for each person aboard, plus at least one throwable device...buoyant cushion or ring buoy. A buoyant cushion is still okay on boats under 16 feet in length.

MARKET PLACE

The classified section of your hometown newspaper is essentially the bulletin board and market place of the community. It locates the interested customer as no other advertising can do. This is because the customers in your neighborhood turn to the classified pages and search out the advertisement for what he or her wants to buy.

VIRGINIA: IN THE CLERK'S OFFICE OF THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE CITY OF VIRGINIA BEACH

LEONA R. PAYTON,

Complainant,

vs.

SHIRLEY O'NEIL PAYTON, et al,

Defendants.

Virginia Beach Public Notices cont'd

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is for the Complainant to establish, by satisfactory evidence, that Shirley O'Neil Payton, her husband, is deceased, based upon a presumption of death from an absence of more than seven years, uninterrupted and without having been heard from in any manner since the original disappearance on August 18, 1971.

The Complainant claims an interest in certain property, both real and personal, as follows:

(a) Leona R. Payton and Shirley O'Neil Payton were seized in fee simple of certain real estate as tenants by the entireties with right of survivorship as at common law at the time of his disappearance on August 18, 1971.

(b) Shirley O'Neil Payton, on August 18, 1971, was the owner and insured under a policy of life insurance with the Minnesota Mutual Life Insurance Company, policy number 997844, in the face amount of $20,000.00, which Leona R. Payton claims as beneficiary.

(c) Shirley O'Neil Payton, on August 18, 1971, was the owner and insured under a policy of life insurance with Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company, policy number 4302579, in the face amount of $10,000.00, which Leona R. Payton claims as beneficiary.

An affidavit has been made and filed that due diligence has been used by or on behalf of the Complainant to ascertain in what county or city the Defendant is, without effect, and that Shirley O'Neil Payton is not a resident of the State of Virginia and his last known post office address is 3045 Coach House Lane, Virginia Beach, VA 23452.

It is ORDERED that the Defendant is hereby required to appear and protect his interest on or before the 18th day of July, 1979, which date is not sooner than fifty (50) days after the entry of this Order of Publication. It is FURTHER ORDERED that this Order of Publication shall be published once a week for four (4) successive weeks in the Virginia Beach Sun, a newspaper having general circulation in the City of Virginia Beach.

GIVEN under my hand this 25th day of May, 1979.

City agency to oversee loan and grant program

The Community Development staff of Virginia Beach, rather than the Community Development Corporation, will administer the federal loan and grant program in target areas.

By a 6-5 vote by City Council Monday afternoon, the city agency was selected over the independent agency with the provision that the work of the department be reviewed in a year.

The Citizen's Advisory Committee for Housing and Community Development (CAC) had supported the use of the corporation to oversee the loan and grant program.

Beverly Woodhouse, who opposed the recommendation of City Manager George L. Hanbury to have the city agency administer the funds, said that the one house which has already received a loan through the city department already wall-to-wall carpeting. She said that she understood that the loans and grants were to bring the homes in target (low-income) areas up to minimum standards. "I didn't know wall-to-wall carpeting was necessary to bring a house up to minimum standards."

Hanbury said that since March 1, the staff has developed loans and grants. At present, he said in his letter to council, more than 60 applications for loans and/or grants are in process. The city had been given an ultimatum to make loans by March 1 or risk loss of the Community Development funds for this purpose.

The Community Development Corporation had been formed to administer the Department of Housing and Urban Development funds because there were conflicting opinions over whether the city could legally make loans to private individuals. The matter was resolved on Jan. 1 when the General Assembly took action permitting a city agency to make loans and grants to citizens.

Fred Hodges, CAC vice chairman, speaking for himself and not as a member of the committee, said he favored Hanbury's recommendation. He said that the CAC spent almost three years trying to "get something that would be approved by HUD." He said he voted for the Community Development Corporation, but that now he wanted "to end the conflict and use what we have."

He said there is a safeguard in that if the city department does not deliver, the corporation will be here to take over.

He said that he was impressed by the progress of the loans and grants being made by the city agency — one loan and six grants are being processed.

Thomas Jennings, representing the United Civic League of Newlight, Stumpy Lake and Centerville Turnpike areas, said that the people wanted to use the Corporation.

Sam Houston, a former chairman and member of the CAC, said that he was "a little surprised" that Hodges, who has been a member of the CAC since it started, has recommended going with the city agency. He said that Hodges was taking a stand "diametrically opposed" to what the people want.

He said that HUD's March 1 deadline was not the fault of the CAC but of administrative failure. He added that the formation of the corporation was not an attempt to build a bureaucracy.

Hanbury had suggested that there was a danger of forming a bureaucracy with a new agency such as the corporation.

Councilman Reid Ervin said that he understood that there was a credibility gap between the people and the city government.

Houston replied that he knew of no credibility gap but that "we have a liaison with the community that the city may not have."

Mayor Patrick L. Standing said that regardless of who handles the funds, the CAC will play a role. He said his concern was that the funds be used to the maximum extent possible. "There's been a lot of confusion about the program. I would hate to make the confusion even worse."

In answer to a question from Ervin, Hanbury said that eleven city employees are on the community development staff.

Ervin said that "for someone who's concerned about building a bureaucracy, that seems to be a lot of people." He said that the people want someone they can go to other than the city and moved that the corporation be approved for one year. If its work is not satisfactory, the agency can be changed, he said.

Hanbury said that the city started to build the community development staff four years ago and that the loans and grants are only part of its responsibilities. "The people will have to have confidence in Mr. Moore (Benjamin C. Moore, community development director.)"

Councilman John A. Baum offered to substitute motion to approve the city agency to administer the program.

Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf pointed out that Councilwoman Barbary Henley had asked three months ago to have the two methods "spelled out." She asked that the program under the corporation and under the community development department be "set down on paper." The last time she asked was two weeks ago, Mrs. Oberndorf said, and she still has received no answer.

Hanbury said that processing loans and grants will take no more than two people.

Moore said that "if there is anything about this program, it's that we are addressing the need of the people. ...If we put in wall-to-wall carpeting, it's because there was a concrete floor. But we have not put any in. If we let the corporation...do what they want, we will have another Norfolk Development Corporation...When things break down, (the people) will be back here before council."

He explained that all loans are made through the VNB Mortgage Company and are reviewed under guidelines of the Energy Conservation and Rehabilitation Loan Program.

Standing said that his answer "would be the city manager's employees because we have more control."

Mrs. Oberndorf said that the corporation members are dedicated, idealistic people. "We're condemning a group of people who have dedicated their time...I can't see why both groups can't work together."

Ervin added, "It's easier to get rid of a corporation after a year than the staff."

Voting for Baum's motion were Councilmen Clarence A. Holland, George R. Ferrell, J. Curtis Payne Jr., John A. Baum, Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr. and Standing. Voting against the motion were Councilmen Reid Ervin, Donald Merrick and R.L. Riggs, and Councilwomen Oberndorf and Henley.

is more conducive to public transit, the conservation of energy resources and the preservation of agricultural areas and important open-space features.

The recommended subsidy level would come to $2 per capita and represents what the committee believes is a minimum commitment to the development of a transportation system.

The city's subsidy is matched by a federal subsidy with the remaining cost of the operation paid for in fares.

Serving on the Authority committee with Reid were Timothy Barrow, vice chairman; James R. Bergdoll, Maj. David Lytle, Capt. D.J. Michaels, Barbara Racine and William Walsh Jr.

The proclamation was recommended by Lee Eskey, civic defense coordinator.

fiscally responsible city...If we continue we will be like New York City. He said that the police department is the best paid in the area and the city has the lowest crime rate.

Merrick said that he previously had recommended upgrading the department, and that upgrading isn't included in the President's guidelines for keeping inflation down.

Mrs. Henley said, "I agree we have to be fiscally responsible. This is a safe city. That's one of the reasons people want to move into those homes you're building."

Referring to Harris' remark that the police were the highest paid in the area, Mrs. Henley pointed out that compared to other people in Virginia Beach they are not higher paid.

Reid remarked that when Harris opposed the shore protection act in Richmond, "You said we wanted the same thing. You are doing the same thing with Mrs. Henley," he said, implying that this was not the case.

As for circumventing the city-manager form of government, he said, "Time and time again the city manager has recommended appropriations not in budget but that the council only goes along if the money is available."

During the earlier informal session, Councilman Holland said that the police and fire departments have the only employees who get additional salary benefits for education.

Hanbury said that in other departments these are ample opportunities for upward mobility in the job description itself. He said that the police and fire employees are different because of the semi-military nature of their work and that there is less opportunity for upward mobility.

Riggs commented that apparently not all city employees are treated equal now.

Payne said his concern was with the method and procedure. "It was handled after the budget procedure was over..." He denied saying that he thought the city manager should run the whole show.

Ervin said, "This thing was discussed before the budget was approved...For Curtis to say we were guilty of gross malfeasance not to consider it until after is not correct."

Standing said that he "tried to get everyone to wait until the wage and job classification plan was completed."

Hanbury said that it would be started in July and was expected to be completed early next year. He said that all 3800 city employees had to be interviewed.

Ervin raised the specter of unionization. Standing said he felt "certain that the people of Virginia Beach will rebel against unionization."

Mrs. Henley said, "My concern is that we're going to wait for the survey and not do anything again."

Merrick said that federal funds under the Integrated Criminal Apprehension Program are being used to retrain patrolmen so that the arresting patrolman can follow through on a case to court. Until this program, is carried through, he said, it is necessary to have more formal education and more training in the police department.

Brown

David A. Brown, son of Mrs. Mavis I. Brower of Whitney Court, Virginia Beach, has received his first promotion in the U.S. Air Force.

Brown, promoted to airman, recently completed technical training at Lowry AFB, Colo. He now serves at Spangdahlem AB, Germany, as a material facilities specialist with a unit of the U.S. Air Forces in Europe.

Airman Brown is a 1978 graduate of Manor High School, Portsmouth.

Palombo

Allan J. Palombo, son of retired U.S. Navy Chief Warrant Officer and Mrs. Orlando L. Palombo of Jack Frost Road, Virginia Beach, has been commissioned a second lieutenant of the U.S. Air Force upon graduation from Officer Training School at Lackland AFB, Tex.

Lieutenant Palombo, selected through competitive examination for attendance at the school, now goes to Keeler AFB, Miss., for training as an administrative officer.

The lieutenant, a 1968 graduate of Bayside High School, received a B.S. degree in 1975 from James Madison University, Harrisonburg, Va.

Pretzman

Steven R. Pretzman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Pretzman of Bob Lane, Virginia Beach, has been promoted to senior airman in the U.S. Air Force.

The airman, a telecommunications operations specialist at McConnell AFB, Kan., serves with a unit of the Air Force Communications Service.

Airman Pretzman is a 1975 graduate of First Colonial High School.

Ballard

Rita L. Ballard, daughter of Mrs. Gloria Anuszewski of Wildflower Court, Virginia Beach, has been promoted to airman first class in the U.S. Air Force.

The airman, an education specialist at Langley AFB, Va., serves with a unit of the Tactical Air Command.

Multer

Airman Richard P. Multer Jr., son of retired Navy Commander and Mrs. Richard P. Multer of Laurel Cove Circle, Virginia Beach, has graduated at Chanute AFB, Ill., from the U.S. Air Force technical training course for jet engine mechanics.

Airman Multer, now trained to inspect and repair turbojet and gas turbine engines, is being assigned to Myrtle Beach AFB, S.C., for duty with a unit of the Tactical Air Command.

The airman, a 1975 graduate of Frank W. Cox High School, received an A.A.S. degree in 1978 from Tidewater Community College.

New Jersey NJROTC cadets visit NAS Oceana

Eight Naval Junior ROTC cadets and their escorts, retired Navy Lieutenant Commander D.A. Tilton and his wife, Claire, toured Naval Air Station Oceana in Virginia Beach recently. The group was from Eastern Regional High School in Gibbsboro, New Jersey.

While at the air station, the cadets toured Attack Squadron 42, Fighter Squadron 101, and ate lunch in the Enlisted Dining Hall. Attack Squadron 42 is NAS Oceana's training squadron for pilots who fly the Navy's multi-purpose all-weather attack aircraft, the A-6E Intruder. Fighter Squadron 101 is NAS Oceana's training squadron for F-14A Tomcat pilots.

At VA-42, the high school students were treated to a command audio-visual slide presentation by the squadron's Public Affairs Officer, Lieutenant Steve Wiestling. The New Jersey group also had a close up look at an A-6E Intruder, an explanation of functions of the jet, and an opportunity to take a close look inside the aircraft's cockpit.

While visiting VF-101, the NJROTC cadets were shown a movie on the history of jet fighters and Navy pilots who fly them. Highlighted in this movie are some of the main characteristics and capabilities of the Navy's F-14A Tomcat. After the movie, the group departed for Hangar 404 where they had a close look at one of the Tomcats flown by VF-101. An opportunity was also given the students for a close up look inside the Tomcat's cockpit.

When asked at lunch how she liked Navy chow, one teenager told the tour director, "I like it. It's even better than my mother's home cooking." After lunch, the New Jersey visitors departed NAS Oceana for the Mariners Museum in Newport News, Virginia.

In addition to NAS Oceana and the Mariners Museum, while in the Tidewater area, the New Jersey high school students visited Langley Air Force Base, U.S. Naval Amphibious Base Little Creek, Naval Station Norfolk, the General MacArthur Memorial in downtown Norfolk, and the beach resort area in Virginia Beach.

Butler

Navy Chief Engineman Robert G. Butler Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Butler of Salem Road, Virginia Beach, recently returned from refresher training in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

He is a crewmember aboard the destroyer USS Peterson, homeported in Norfolk.

Refresher training is designed to improve such areas as damage and ship control, plus combat, engineering and gunnery readiness. Additionally, his ship participated in training exercises off Andros Island, Bahamas and Vieques Island, Puerto Rico and visited Port au Prince, Haiti.

A 1969 graduate of Kellam High School, Butler joined the Navy in July 1970.

Widen

Navy Data Systems Technician Second Class David B. Widen, whose wife, Gloria, is the daughter of Walter and Gloria J. McDonald of Salem Road, Virginia Beach, recently returned from refresher training in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

He is a crewmember aboard the destroyer USS Peterson, homeported in Norfolk.

Refresher training is designed to improve such areas as damage and ship control, plus combat, engineering and gunnery readiness. Additionally, his ship participated in training exercises off Andros Island, Bahamas and Vieques Island, Puerto Rico and visited Port au Prince, Haiti.

Widen joined the Navy in September 1974.

Harman

Navy Chief Aviation Ordnanceman James A. Harman Jr., whose wife, Jacalyn, is the daughter of Eva P. Carr of Wolfsnare Road, Virginia Beach, has reenlisted for four years while serving with Fighter Squadron 84, based at the Oceana Naval Air Station, Virginia Beach.

He joined the Navy in January 1966.

Gregory

Pvt. Pamela G. Gregory, whose husband, Robert, lives in Cape Girardeau, Mo., recently was assigned as a microwave radio repairman with the 36th Signal Battalion in Korea.

She is a 1977 graduate of Floyd E. Kellam High School, Virginia Beach.

The private's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Hills, live on Bethune Drive, Virginia Beach.

McNamara

Navy Seaman Kathryn McNamara, daughter of Bernard H. and Theresa C. McNamara of Biltmore Drive, Virginia Beach, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Orlando, Fla.

During the eight-week training cycle, trainees studied general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in their studies were seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid.

A 1970 graduate of F.W. Cox High School, and a 1975 graduate of Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Va., with a Bachelor of Arts degree, she joined the Navy in December 1978.

Elsbery

Marine Private Bernard Elsbery Jr., son of Mary A. and Bernard Elsbery Sr. of Daytona Drive, Virginia Beach, has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C.

During the ten and one-half-week training cycle, he learned the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline were emphasized throughout the training cycle.

A 1975 graduate of Great Mills High School, St. Marys County, My., he joined the Marine Corps in January 1979.

Holub

Pvt. Timothy F. Holub, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Holub, Walnut Hill Road, Virginia Beach, recently was assigned as a wire system installer and operator with the 541st Signal Company in Kaiserslautern, Germany.

He entered the Army in January of this year.

Lynch

Navy Ocean Systems Technician Seaman Apprentice Leona A. Lynch, whose husband, Leo, is the son of Cmdr. Tony and Mary A. Lynch of Seagull Road, Virginia Beach, has reported for duty at Coos Head Naval Facility, Charleston, Ore.

She joined the Navy in October 1978.

Winnings

Navy Aviation Machinist's Mate Second Class Harold M. Winnings, whose wife, Margaret, is the daughter of Lorn and Joan Ausley of 21st St., Virginia Beach, received a Letter of Commendation.

He was cited for superior performance of duty from December 1977 to July 1978 while serving as maintenance crewleader with Fighter Squadron 84, embarked aboard the aircraft carrier USS Nimitz.

The letter praises Winnings for his expertise in aircraft jet engine maintenance which enabled the squadron to sustain outstanding aircraft operational readiness.

Additionally, he established and implemented an efficient precision measuring equipment calibration program which contributed to the squadron's material readiness and unblemished safety record.

Winslow

Airman Thomas M. Winslow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur A. Winslow of Stumpy Lake Lane, Virginia Beach, has graduated at Sheppard AFB, Tex., from the U.S. Air Force technical training course for electrical power production specialists.

Airman Winslow, now trained to operate and maintain electrical power generating equipment, is being assigned to Indian Springs Air Force Auxiliary Field, Nev., for duty with a unit of the Tactical Air Command.

Advice from the Veterans Administration

Q - I am considering obtaining a VA guaranteed home loan. However, I have an outstanding education benefits overpayment. Will this affect my obtaining a guaranteed home loan?

A - VA now requires that education overpayments and education loan defaults be cleared before approval of a home loan.

Q - I am a widow who no longer receives a VA pension because my income exceeds the limit permissible. However, I am receiving pension for my minor son who will soon be 18. I have been told that the pension will stop as of his 18th birthday. Is this true?

A - Your son may continue to receive VA pension until his 23rd birthday if he remains single and enrolled in an approved school. Verification is required and must be provided on VA Form 21-674, available at any VA office.

Q - What is the present hourly rate for students working under the Veterans Administration's work-study program?

A - VA work-study students receive $2.90 per hour.

Q - I receive a widow's pension from the VA. If I receive a cost of living increase in my social security this year, will my VA pension be reduced?

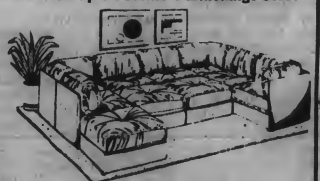

A - Public Law 95-588, effective January 1, 1979, prevents any decrease in pension solely due to a social security cost of living increase.

Q - Can I receive educational assistance for an on-the-job training program at a half time rate?

A - No. Education benefits can only be paid for full time apprenticeship or on-the-job training.

City funds transferred

Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon approved the transfer of $26,287 within the Police Department budget to supplement a federal grant designed to utilize outside consulting services.

The city received a $60,000 grant from the Division of Justice and Crime Prevention for the program, but the lowest bid for the service was $86,287.

The added appropriation will make it possible for the city to accept the bid which meets all specifications.

Viable water sources are reality for Virginia Beach

Virginia Beach can finally look ahead to a time when it will slake its thirst with its own water from its own resources.

The city, which has always been dependent on Norfolk to supply its potable water, may have not one but two of its own water sources.

City Council learned Monday afternoon that fresh ground water could furnish at least 10 to 15 mgd (million gallons per day) and probably more.

The city has also been approved as the site of a federal desalting plant and has also received favorable reports on the quality of the brackish water which will be used in the operation.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said that the water supply is "the most important subject we will address in our lifetime." He said that the water source study under way at the beach now is the city's first extensive study on the subject. While the rest of the jurisdictions in the Southeastern Virginia Region are talking about various regional water source plans and rejecting the use of water sources and while North Carolina rejects the use of sources which may affect that state, "We'll be able to solve our own problems."

He added, however, that the city should not depend solely on desalting or solely on fresh ground water, and that all options, including a regional source, should be left open.

A U.S. Corps of Engineers study to locate a regional source has run into snags because various Virginia localities as well as the state of North Carolina are reluctant to approve the use of their waters in other localities.

Hanbury remarked that the State Water Control Board is not really a control board for water.

Councilman Donald Merrick said that "Somebody in the state should say who's to get the water."

James J. Geraghty, of Geraghty & Miller, Inc., consulting groundwater geologists and hydrologists, Monday reported that findings from the Pembroke pumping tests, five other tests and the reconnaissance studies carried out by the firm indicate that the Water-Table and Yorktown Aquifers have a good potential for producing appreciable quantities of ground water in many parts of the city.

He said that the Water-Table and Yorktown Aquifers are present practically everywhere within the city boundaries and in all likelihood contain fresh ground water in most places.

A very conservative estimate of the potential quantity that could be developed from this source is from 10 to 15 mgd, he said. It is possible that the total quantity of water that could be developed will be considerably greater than that.

He said that environmental studies need to be made to determine potential for contamination from existing pollution and impact on nearby privately-owned wells. Geraghty also said that precautions have to be taken to make sure that brackish water from a deeper depth is now drawn through the fresh water level.

Hanbury said that the more than anticipated fresh water supply combined with the desalted water will give Virginia Beach its own viable water source for the first time. He said that Virginia Beach will be placed in a better negotiating position with Norfolk when its water contract with Norfolk runs out in 1993.

Utilities director Aubrey Watts said that Virginia Beach has been selected as the Number One city for the Department of the Interior's desalting program and has received strong Congressional support.

A two-million-gallon a day plant has been considered the proper size for the experiment and the ferry slip site as the best location, he said. The final decision will be made by the Department of the Interior in two weeks.

He added that Norfolk has done a substantial amount of work on the rate base for its water and that the Appamatox River Water Authority has indicated willingness to work with Virginia Beach. The beach, in the latter case, would have to build mains, dams and treatment facilities.

Which road will lead to False Cape Park?

Of the nine possible ways of getting to False Cape State Park only one seems to be compatible with the development plans of Virginia Beach. And this one had met with opposition from the property owners in Sandbridge.

At present the 2,120-acre park is accessible only by pedestrian and bike traffic. No roads lead to the park which is separated from Sandbridge by the Back Bay National Wildlife Refuge.

Monday afternoon by a vote of 7-1, Virginia Beach City Council registered disapproval of one corridor, endorsed by local Congressional representatives, which would carry traffic to North Carolina and across Mackay Island national Wildlife Refuge and Knotts Island to False Cape Park.

City Manager George L. Hanbury told council that all of Princess Anne Road, the only link to the proposed highway, would have to be improved as a four-lane divided highway which would open up agricultural land for development. He said that the city's comprehensive plan calls for continued agricultural use in the southern part of the city, while major thoroughfares tend to stimulate development.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley last week asked for council discussion of the matter since U.S. Rep. G. William Whitehurst had endorsed the Knotts Island route in a letter which was also signed by U.S. Sen. John Warner and U.S. Rep. Robert Daniel. She said that Virginia Beach should have some input on access plans through the city.

The resolution approved Monday expresses opposition to access to False Cape State Park and the Curruck Outer Banks through southern Virginia Beach and across Knotts Island. It also extends continued support for the development of False Cape State Park as a major day-use beach for all Virginians.

Of the nine corridors which have been considered, Hanbury said at an informal meeting of council, only three or four are viable. After striking out the Knotts Island access, three viable routes, remain, he said, and of these the Sandbridge route is the least ecologically questionable. The two other routes would bring traffic across Back Bay and across Creeds Airfield.

The Sandbridge access would follow existing roads through the Sandbridge resort community but would require federal approval to continue the road behind the refuge dune line. If the state and federal governments swap land, Hanbury said, there would be no need to cross federal property.

Except for the Sandbridge access, all routes under consideration would tend to bring development into the city's rural area. Hanbury said the city has no major road plans for the southern part of the city.

The resolution states that the Knotts Island route will adversely affect the fragile ecology of the Back Bay system; will create a great demand for support facilities such as gas stations, restaurants, stores and even hotels which will initiate an irreversible transition in the character of the area from rural agricultural to resort commercial, will require the extension and build-up of city services into the area including additional police, fire, public utilities and highway construction. The resolution further states that the access is completely inconsistent with the goals and policies of the draft comprehensive plan for the city.

The resolution also requests the Governor of Virginia and the Joint Task Force studying alternative accesses to select an alternative which will impose the least environmental, social and economical impact on the citizens of Virginia Beach.

Councilman Reid Ervin suggested that the partial road which now exists across the refuge could serve as a terminal from which some type of mass transportation could take people to the state park.

Councilman Clarence A. Holland who voted against the resolution, said that thought should be given to what the rural plan does to the people in the northern part of the city. He said that this area will bear the brunt of further development and intensive population growth. He said he was not sure that the northern part of the city should be left with all the development. "People in the northern part like to see farming continue."

Mrs. Henley said that the Knotts Island route would open up an area in North Carolina which would compete with the city's tourist industry.

Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf pointed out that the state mandates that the cities develop a land-use plan, but apparently do not take it into account in state plans.

Holland said that he could support a resolution saying that the beach should have input, but not the resolution under consideration.

Councilman J. Curtis Payne Jr. said, "We don't know everything that's going to come from the (task force) study."

Councilman John A. Baum said that not all rural landowners are satisfied with keeping development out of the farm areas. Some think they could make more money by opening up the farm land to development.

Baum said the access route would definitely be a major impact on the city. "I don't know what Whitehurst was thinking," Baum cited the traffic on Battlefield Boulevard in Great Bridge which leads to the outer banks as an example of what can happen in Virginia Beach.

Holland said that if all access to Carolina from Commercial vehicles may park in residential neighborhoods

In consideration for businessmen who use large trucks to drive to and from work, Virginia Beach City Council refused to approve an ordinance which would have prohibited the parking of commercial vehicles from parking in residential neighborhoods.

The proposed ordinance prohibited anything of any commercial vehicle over three-quarter tons to be parked at a residence, except during the normal conduct of a business.

Council Monday afternoon approved three other ordinance changes recommended by the Planning Department mostly for clarification as follows:

London Bridge business threatened by road expansion

Would London Bridge fall down with the eight-laning of Virginia Beach Boulevard?

Councilman Donald Merrick thinks so. He said that if the Boulevard is improved to eight lanes as recommended the London Bridge business community for all practical purposes would disappear.

The discussion caused one council member to quip, "London Bridge is falling down."

City Manager George L. Hanbury at an informal meeting Monday afternoon said he would recommend the endorsement of the eight-lane improvement because the pattern of the area would require "U"

Beach men honored as paramedics

Bruce W. Edwards, William E. Guy and Michael B. Player of Virginia Beach are among the first group of paramedics to be certified in Virginia. A paramedic is the highest level of emergency medical technician and is trained to provide comprehensive emergency medical care as a member of a rescue team. The 16 men and two women in this first group of paramedics attended a luncheon in their honor at the Regency Inn in Richmond last week.

A paramedic is qualified to provide advanced medical care under emergency conditions. Directed by an emergency physician through radio contact, paramedics can monitor a patient's heart beat, give injections, start intravenous fluids, and manage all types of life-threatening emergencies.

In establishing a program for training and certifying EMT-paramedics, the State Health Department and the National Registry of Emergency Medical Technicians allowed qualified cardiac technicians until June 30 to take the examination without formal training.

Persons seeking certification as a paramedic after June 30, 1979 must complete a curriculum requiring at least 384 hours. There are paramedic classes currently underway in several parts of Virginia.

Basting tips will keep the outdoor chef worry-free. Keep basting sauces hot on the grill; never brush hot foods with cold sauce. Brush sauces on food during the last 20 or 30 minutes of cooking to prevent burning.

Father's Day: June 17

Fathers honored in many ways

We honor Dad with a shower of gifts each Father's Day, but patriarchy elsewhere are recognized in very unusual ways.

A young African Dinka Tribesman, for instance, used to present his father with the most perfect present he could give: the skin of his first lion kill.

In old China, sons once showed their respect for an elderly parent by sewing a silk robe for him. Embroidered with the Chinese characters for "long life." This "Longevity robe" was thought to improve Father's chances of living to a ripe old age when it was put together by a person who was young enough to live a long time.

In this country the offspring of strict Puritan parents were told to address their sire as "honored sir" instead of just "father," while Trobriand Islanders called their dads "my mother's husband" in the belief that spirits are the true fathers.

Regardless of whose children he looks after, American Dads are honored the third Sunday in June because one grateful daughter, Mrs. John Bruce, Dodd, of Spokane, Wash., in 1910 arranged a special church service for her dad, who devotedly raised six motherless children.

In parts of the Near and Far East, though, it's grandfathers — not father — who maintains almost complete authority in the family.

Beach music professor to direct ensembles in New Mexico

Harold Weller

Harold Weller of Virginia Beach, assistant professor of music and director of orchestra at Old Dominion University has accepted a position as conductor of the University Symphony and Opera at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque beginning August 20. In Albuquerque Weller will also serve as assistant conductor of the New Mexico Symphony.

Weller came to Old Dominion University in fall of 1977 to build a university / community orchestra. In two years the orchestra grew from a 20 member string ensemble to a 78-piece orchestra of symphonic proportions.

Prior to coming to Virginia, Weller was conductor of the Ashland (OH) Symphony from 1970-1978, the Hamilton (OH) Symphony from 1963-1970, and the Opera Workshop productions at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music from 1962-1964.

He attended the Oberlin Conservatory of Music, Miami University and Ohio State University and has studied with Dr. Richard Lett, former conductor of the Berlin State Opera.

Are You "Soft-Soaping God?"

"Duz" you "Dreft" along with the "Tide" "Vol," now is the time to "Cheer" up. If you want "Joy," the "Trend" is to "Breeze" to church with "All" the family on Sunday morning. But, too many "Woodbury" their heads in a pillow and remain in bed or take their "Sweetheart" for a "Drive" or work to make their yards "Sparkle," forgetting that the Lord's day was made for "Lestall." Where the Lord is given first consideration, a "Dove" will never have to send an "S.O.S." "4-U" who put God Almighty last, trusting to "Lux" chances and who intend to miss church again this Sunday, maybe we ought to "Dial" you to remind you of the "Ivory" palaces you ponder. This is not just silly "Bab-D." Worship will "Ad" "Zest" and "Dash" to your "Lifebuoy." So why not "Wisk" yourselves out of bed every Sunday morning, dress up "Spic 'N Span" and "Dash" like a "Comet" to God's house. Then you sing "Praise to God," you'll get a wonderful "Klenzer" for your soul.

Gellinas recognized for academic achievement

Carmen E. Gellinas, daughter of Lcdr. and Mrs. Paul Iobst of Virginia Beach, was among 192 persons receiving bachelor of science degrees during the recent commencement at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science, Philadelphia, Pa.

A medical technology major, she was awarded a President's Award for high academic achievement. She also has a bachelor of science degree in microbiology from PCPS.

She has accepted a position in chemistry at Abington Memorial Hospital, Abington, Pa.

Degree awarded to Green

Perri Denise Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Archer Green of Virginia Beach, has been awarded the bachelor of arts degree in art from Hollins College.

Six named to dean's list

They are Karen L. Bates, Julia Fay, Melinda B. Ferrell, Natalie H. Ferrell, Mark Dennis Flitton and Deondra L. Waters.

FSC confers degree to Winn

Walter M. Winn Jr. of Oriole Drive, Virginia Beach, recently graduated from Frostburg State College, Frostburg, Maryland. He received a bachelor of science degree.

Kesler chosen for membership in Phi Kappa Phi

Nancy Smith Kesler, a Virginia Beach area resident and student at Virginia Commonwealth University, was recently tapped into Phi Kappa Phi, a national honor society which recognizes superior scholarship in colleges and universities.

Kesler is the daughter of Cdr. and Mrs. Harold A. Smith of Virginia Beach, where she attended Frank W. Cox High School. She received a B.S. degree in business administration and management from VCU on May 12.

Virginia Beach students receive commissions

Two Virginia Beach students are among eight Old Dominion University Army ROTC cadets who have been commissioned as second lieutenants in the U.S. Army during ceremonies at the university.

Receiving officer commissions were Richard J. Kiger, Finance Corps, and Bill C. Wells, Signal Corps.

Kiger received his appointment in the regular Army and will attend the Finance Officer Basic Course at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., prior to his assignment to the 1st Armored Division in Ansbach, Germany. Kiger is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kiger and is married to Mrs. Patsy Coons Kiger of Virginia Beach.

Wells received a reserve officer's commission and has been deferred from active duty to allow him to pursue a degree in law at the College of William and Mary. Upon graduation he will enter active service as a military lawyer. Wells is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wells of Virginia Beach.

Martin earns degree

Yvonne Martin of Virginia Beach was one of 125 persons to receive a Bachelor of Arts degree from Columbia College during recent graduation exercises.

Ms. Martin, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee M. Martin of Windom Place in Virginia Beach, received her degree in early childhood education.

Schools honored for SCA achievements

Thirteen Virginia Beach secondary schools have been honored for the achievements of their student cooperative associations.

In a ceremony recently at the school administration building, SCA representatives from those schools received the 1978-79 SCA Achievement Award from Dr. E.E. Brickell, Superintendent of Schools.

The schools were Bayside Junior, Brandon Junior, Cox High, First Colonial High, Independence Junior, Kellam High, Kempsville High, Kempsville Junior, Lynnhaven Junior, Plaza Junior, Princess Anne High, Princess Anne Junior, and Virginia Beach Junior.

The SCA Achievement Award, which originated in 1977, was established to encourage schools to develop sound SCA organization and programs, assist in the evaluation of the program and activities of the year, and recognize the efforts of individual SCA's in reaching and maintaining certain standards of achievements.

Beach high schools to graduate more than 3500

The six public high schools in Virginia Beach will award diplomas to 3,532 seniors on Sunday, June 17.

Commencement ceremonies are scheduled at 2 p.m. in the stadiums of Bayside, First Colonial, Kellam, and Princess Anne high schools. Cox and Kempsville will hold their ceremonies in their respective stadiums at 3 p.m.

Kempsville has the largest graduating class, with 798. There will be no traditional commencement speaker, but top students will make a few remarks. The co-valedictorians at Kempsville are Michael McLernan and Betsy Foster. The salutatorian is Fay Michael.

Kellam has 600 graduates, who will hear an address by Randy Brakeman of the youth group, Young Life. The co-valedictorians there are Janet McKissick and Roger Ballance.

At First Colonial, another 586 students will graduate. The principal speaker there is E. Bruce McQuinn, deputy superintendent of Virginia Beach Public Schools. The co-valedictorians are Brandon Smith and Steven Kuehn, and the salutatorian is Laura Woolridge.

The graduating class at Princess Anne is made up of 572 students. Federal Bankruptcy Court Judge Hal Bonney will deliver the main address of the afternoon. Princess Anne has four persons tied for the honor of being valedictorian. They are Dorcus Ascerson, Bruce Jones, John Atkinson, and Veronica Leitner.

Bayside has 503 graduating seniors this year. They will hear an address by Virginia's Attorney General, J. Marshall Coleman. David Casher and Grace Clark share the valedictory honors at Bayside, and John Stahl is the salutatorian.

The smallest graduating class in Virginia Beach is at Cox, where 473 students will receive diplomas. The principal speaker there is well-known Virginia author and poet, Louisa Venable Kyle. Linda Jean Love is the valedictorian at Cox, and Kevin Kattwinkel is the salutatorian.

Alternate plans for each of the graduation ceremonies have been drawn in the event of rain. Those plans are being announced at the individual schools.

VWC hosts boys basketball camp

NCAA district III "Coach of the Year" Don Forsyth of Virginia Wesleyan College will again direct a basketball camp this summer.

The camp, for boys aged 10-16, will be centered around

Cunningham Gymnasium on the Virginia Wesleyan campus. Beginning at 9 a.m. each day from June 25-29, the camp will cost $50 with family discounts available.

Campers will be grouped for team play and instruction on the basis of age and ability. The aims of the camp are to teach and emphasize the fundamentals of offensive and defensive basketball. Individual instruction and team play will be stressed.

Forsyth was also elected Dixie Conference "Coach of the Year" at the conclusion of the conference season for the second time. He has not had a losing season since 1972.

Information on the camp can be obtained by calling 461-3232 ext. 304 or 420-6332.

Engine maintenance, repair studied by Bryan at Beach

Denise Bryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Bryan, Norfolk, and a Lake Taylor High School graduate, has been awarded a scholarship by Sandler Foods of Virginia Beach to study automobile engine maintenance and repair at the Automotive Training Institute, Virginia Beach.

Following her graduation Ms. Bryan will begin studies at the OMC School in Atlanta, Ga., an institute offering advanced courses in marine mechanics. Ms. Bryan plans to return to Virginia Beach to specialize in maintenance and repair of vessel stern drives. She has already been promised a position with a marine firm located here.

H.E. Wittersheim, president of the Automotive Training Institute says she "has proven herself to be an above-average student." She is the institute's only female pupil.

New Bookmobile stops extend Beach library services

During the week of June 18 and 23 the Virginia Beach Public Library Bookmobile will be initiating several changes to its schedule. These changes will result in the extension of library services to several neighborhoods that have not previously been served by the Bookmobile.

Communities that will be receiving bookmobile service for the first time are:

Carper Housing -- Wednesdays from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Windsor Oaks Blvd. at Illinois Court.

Pungo Square Shopping Center -- Thursdays from 2 to 3 p.m. and on Saturdays from 10 to 10:45 a.m. in the parking lot of Pungo Square Shopping Center on Princess Anne Road.

Beach Senior Citizen Apartments -- Fridays from 1:15 to 2:15 p.m. on Old Virginia Beach Road at Lisa Square.

Grilled Lemon Potatoes are great with any barbecue meal. For 6 servings, cut 3 large, long baking potatoes in half length-wise; deeply score cut surfaces. Cover skin side with aluminum foil. Melt 1/4 cup butter and mix with 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt, 1 tablespoon seasoned salt, 1 1/4 teaspoons lemon pepper marinade and 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Generously brush cut side of potatoes with butter sauce. Cook, foil side down, on grill, until tender, about 45 minutes. Toward end of cooking, turn cut side down.

Keep that electric fan clean. Unplug it first, then wipe the motor casing and blades with a damp cloth. If the casing is especially dirty, dip a cloth in soap suds, wring it out and wipe. Avoid getting moisture in the casing. Rinse and dry the fan.

Lake Placid -- Fridays from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. on Olympic Drive at Placid Place.

Gill's Grocery -- Saturdays from 3:15 to 3:45 p.m. at 4700 Blackwater Road.

Several stops currently on the bookmobile schedule will necessarily be altered to accommodate the new locations. Residents of communities that are now receiving bookmobile service can check with the bookmobile staff or call the Extension Services Division at 340-7790 to determine the new time of their stop.

In Virginia Beach, the Bookmobile provides library information service to three groups of people: 1) rural residents, 2) residents living in the newest suburban developments, and 3) residents of established suburban communities that are distant from existing branch libraries.

The Bookmobile brings over 3000 books and magazines to each of its scheduled locations. Two trained staff members are always present on the Bookmobile to assist users in finding materials or information. In addition, staff can make available to Bookmobile users any of the services normally provided by the branch libraries, such as sculpture, original works of art, prints and records.

The Bookmobile is operated by the Extension Services Division. The Division welcomes questions about its services. Call 340-7798.

"Art of Healing" collection on display

The Eastern Virginia Medical Authority "Art of Healing" collection will be on display at Bayside Hospital in Virginia Beach through June 30 in the main lobby of the hospital. Artwork may be viewed during visiting hours, 1 to 8:30 p.m. Monday through Sunday.

The exhibit consists of the work of thirteen artists who developed the original black and white ink sketches for the EVMA, depicting the organization's basic tenets: medical education, research, and patient care. All original artwork was contributed to EVMA for use in the "Art of Healing" calendar and as a permanent exhibit. The collection is currently on tour of area hospitals.

Artists contributing their work to the collection include Skippy Anderson, J. Robert Burnell, Peyton Campbell, Edward G. Carson, Wilbur A. Chadwick, Beverly Furman Hoddinott, Bob Holland, Casey Holtzinger, A.B. Jackson, James Kirby, Andi Peck, Barclay Sheaks and John Alan Stock.

The "Art of Healing" project recently received two Awards of Excellence from the Virginia Society for Hospital Public Relations.

A limited edition of signed and numbered reproductions, size 19 x 25, are for sale through the EVMA Public Affairs Department. Proceeds will go to the Eastern Virginia Medical Foundation for the continued growth of the medical school.

Track and field competition for young people scheduled Friday at Bayside H.S.

The Athletic Staff of the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation invites all youth, both boys and girls, to compete in Hershey's Track & Field Youth Program, June 15 at Bayside High School. The winners from the competition that begins at 3:30 p.m. will later compete in district, state and finally national competition in West Virginia.

The competition is for youngsters between the ages of 10-15 years. The events in the competition include 50, 100, 220 yard dash, 440 and 880 yard run, 440 yard relay and the one mile run. Competition will also be held in the standing long jump and the softball throw.

Youngsters interested in participating in the Hershey's Track and Field Youth Program should contact the athletic staff at Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation, 4700 Recreation Drive, or call 467-4884.

Bowling and bridge activities planned at rec center

Bowlers and novice bridge players will find plenty to keep them busy during the upcoming weeks at the Virginia Beach Recreation Center in Kempville.

A two day adult bowling tournament will begin June 13 at 7 p.m. Handicap will be used in tabulating all scores. Trophies will be awarded for the first and second highest scores.

Adult novice bridge players are invited to participate in a tournament June 18 from 6:30-10:30 p.m. in Room 117. No partners are necessary to play in this tournament. Players may register at the recreation center.

For further information contact the adult staff at the VBRC-Kempville, 800 Monmouth Lane, or call 499-1281.

Square and round dance join in country hoedown

Square and round dancers from throughout Tidewater will be participating in a country dancing festival June 23 from 6-9 p.m. in the north parking lot of the Virginia Beach Recreation Center-Kempville. Square and round dance clubs from throughout Tidewater will be participating in this country hoedown.

You can join in on the fun whether you dance or just want to watch. For further information contact the adult services program at the Virginia Beach Recreation Center-Kempville, 800 Monmouth Lane, Virginia Beach, or call 499-1281.

Macrame class open to Summer Reading Club

On Thursday, June 28, at 10 a.m. a macrame class will be given at the Bayside Branch Library. The class is open to those individuals who are participating in the Summer Reading Club and are between the ages of 12 and 15.

The class is limited to 15 young people. Preregistration is necessary and can be taken care of by the young person coming to Bayside Branch Library with his or her Summer Reading Club folder between June 18 and June 22.

Ms. Gloria Winkler, currently working at a Virginia Beach craft shop, will talk about the history of macrame and teach the basic knots needed to begin most projects.

For further information contact Ms. Dana Jones or Ms. Dee Dallman at 464-9280. The Bayside Branch Library is located at 936 Independence Boulevard.

Compound bow seminar scheduled

Jennings Compound Bow Inc. will hold an appreciation seminar on Monday, June 18 at 6:30. The seminar will be held at the Princess Anne Bowmen Archery Range on Oceana Blvd. The session is free and open to anyone who wishes to attend. Designed to help you better enjoy your compound bow, the seminar will teach a simple method to balance and tune your bow, regardless of what make bow you shoot. Bring your own bow for inspection. For more information contact Bob Paulsen at 497-0629.

Beach public libraries sponsor summer job exchange

Young people ages ten and over can apply at any branch of the Virginia Beach Public Library to participate in a summer job exchange program. Members of the community can go to any branch library to check for available help for work such as ironing, pet sitting, lawn mowing, baby sitting or anything else for which the young people feel qualified.

For further information call Sandy Throckmorton at the Windsor Woods branch at 340-1043 or Debbie Carter at the Great Neck branch at 481-6094.

Teen centers offer special summer events

Eight summer teen centers will open in Virginia Beach June 20. Sponsored by the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation, the teen centers are open from 9 p.m. and will offer programs to teenagers 13 through senior high school.

The summer's special events will include tournaments in athletic events as well as special events. This program is free and teenagers are encouraged to participate.

For further information contact the youth activities staff at the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation, 4700 Recreation Drive, or call 467-4884.

This week's featured antique is an oak and walnut pie safe, built around 1910. This cabinet, along with many other fine antiques, can be seen at The Golden Harp, 1116 Virginia Beach Boulevard.

Learning about antiques

Pottery and stoneware

From the primitive earthenware of ancient times to the sophisticated products of the 18th century that have been produced the world over, there is a wealth from which to choose, if the collector brings his own knowledge, taste and enthusiasm to bear on the problems of discovery and attribution.

A basic knowledge at least of the various aspects of a potter's craft, and the terms used to describe them, is not merely desirably but essential for anyone hoping to build up a collection. He will learn as he goes along, getting to know the physical feel of the things, their texture and weight as well as their outward appearance.

The difference between pottery and stoneware is:

Pottery is the name for anything made of common clay — earthenware — and which is allowed to dry in the heat of the sun or baked — fired — in a kiln. It is usually porous unless glazed, and is opaque, so that not even a strong light can pass through it.

Stoneware is very hard pottery, which is fired at a high temperature and often "salt-glazed" when salt is thrown into the kiln. However, at its best it is so hard and close grained that it requires no glaze to be water tight, and can even be cut on a wheel like flint glass. It is usually opaque, but can sometimes be semi-transparent.

Commentary

The Flag represents us

Flag Day, June 14, begins a significant 21-day period extending through the Fourth of July which presents an opportunity for every American to assess what he or she is doing to help this country maintain its position as leader of the free world.

This period, the basic purpose of which is to Honor America, was established by a joint resolution of the Congress and signed into law by the President in June 1975.

One of the objectives of the 1979 Honor America campaign is to combat the idea that most Americans don't want to "get involved" in public affairs. Perhaps, like many similar notions, there is a small grain of truth here, wrapped in a large bundle of misunderstanding.

The Founding Fathers, in their public endeavors, pledged "Our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor." Rarely is an American called upon today in display such fortitude.

But millions of responsible Americans are getting involved in volunteer projects which enrich their lives and the lives of others, and in so doing enhance the quality of national life. It is not difficult to find illustrations.

In Texas last summer, 65 aging and ailing persons enjoyed a refreshing vacation at a no-cost state camp near Dallas. Young probationers in Illinois won a chance for a fresh start through a non-profit work program functioning in Peoria. Virginia found an array of productive tasks for a Young Adult Conservation Corps which cleared public lands, trimmed foliage impeding parkway vistas and painted schools and fire houses.

On a larger scale, Baltimore rehabilitated portions of its slum areas and erected private homes to upgrade the neighborhoods. The St. Johns River, which winds through half the length of Florida, has been rescued from its status as a huge dumping ground. The cleanup, undertaken by the city of Jacksonville with the cooperation of private industry, has already cost millions and may cost billions, but it has made a splendid contribution to the Florida environment.

These developments underscore the point that there exists in the United States a massive reservoir of generosity, self-sacrifice and willing effort. Moreover, they reflect a sense of responsibility toward meeting the country's needs, as well as a disposition to roll up one's sleeves and tackle whatever task that seems urgent.

How about you, Ms. and Mr. Citizen? If you hear an appeal to help establish a neighborhood playground, support a scholarship fund, assist a needy family or some similar project, don't automatically turn a deaf ear. In the 21-day period extending to the Fourth of July (patterned after the 21-gun salute to a head of state) there will be ample opportunity to lend a hand. Here are a few suggestions:

Encourage regular daily display of the American Flag—flags symbolize achievements, traditions and ideals; suggest that shopping centers sponsor historic displays and appropriate ceremonial programs; organize folk festivals with traditional food, dances, costumes and music. This list barely skims the surface.

Through such positive actions you'll be demonstrating how life works in a democracy and that the people are the nation. Then celebrate America's birthday on July 4th with a feeling of accomplishment.

Veterans honored

Hospitalized veterans in the Veterans Administration Hospital, Hampton, were remembered on Memorial Day by members of the Adam Thoroughgood Chapter, DAR, of Virginia Beach. The chapter was represented by Mrs. B.A. Weisheit, chairman of the committee for handling the flag of the United States of America, and Dr. Ann McDonald, chairman of the committee for services for veterans-patients, who planned and effected the program for the DAR chapter. The group visited the hospital's patients. Mrs. Weisheit, pictured here, presented them a flag of the United States that was in "Braille", in honor of Flag Day. The chapter also presented a gift to 62 veteran-patients.

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Your number's up

By Harvey J. Ridinger
Field Representative

Reminders to students who receive social security

About 850,000 student 18 to 22 receive $1.6 billion a year from social security because a parent is getting retirement or disability benefits or has died. If you are one; here are some important reminders as summer approaches.

If you will soon start your first job and don't have a social security card, apply for one at any social security office. This must be done in person since you are at least 18. Apply early as it takes about 6 weeks to receive the card.

Bring your original birth certificate (or church record of birth or baptism recorded before age 5) as proof of your age and place of birth. If you were born outside the United States, call the social security office before you come to find out what additional proof is needed. You also will need some current identification, such as a student I.D. card or a driver's license.

If you had a social security card but lost it, you can get a duplicate with the same number. Bring the stub that came with the original card, if you have it, and proof of identity when you apply for the replacement card. If your job will start before the card arrives and your employer wants proof that you applied, you can get a receipt from the social security office.

You can work and earn up to $3,480 in 1979 and receive all your social security checks. If you earn more than this amount, $1 in benefits generally will be withheld for each $2 in earnings over $3,480. Earnings for the entire year must be counted, including earnings in months before your benefits started and in months after they ended.

You can receive social security payments for the summer months as long as you plan to return to school full time next fall. If you aren't sure, it's a good idea to have your checks stopped so you won't be overpaid. Should you go back to school, back payments then will be made for the months checks were stopped.

It is important to let social security know immediately whenever you stop attending school full time, or if you switch schools. You must also promptly complete and return the reporting forms sent to you twice a year. The one that you should have received several weeks ago had a place at the bottom for the school registrar to verify that you have been enrolled in school.

Your benefits will stop if you do not send back the form. And an investigation will be made to determine if all past payments were correct. If you did not receive this reporting form (called "Report of Student Beneficiary at End of School Year"), call any social security office. The Norfolk Office is in the Federal Building, 200 Granby Mall. The phone number is 441-3401.

SUN Deadlines

News deadline for the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN is 5 p.m. Friday for the following Wednesday's edition. Articles must be legible, preferably typewritten, double-spaced on standard sized paper.

TIDEWATER COMMUNITY COLLEGE-VA. BEACH

Today College Counts

By Dr. William Bridges
Director of Continuing Education

The Virginia Beach campus is the base of operation for the Tidewater Virginia Alcohol Safety Action Program (VASAP) which serves the cities of Norfolk and Virginia Beach. The office of the Tidewater VASAP director is located in Building T-4, and in cooperation with local VASAP offices and the Virginia Highway Safety Division, the Virginia Beach campus conducts alcohol education classes.

The goal of the VASAP program is to get the dangerous drinking driver off the road. Individuals who are apprehended operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol may be referred by traffic courts to the VASAP program. Admission to the program is allowed only through court referral.

The director of Tidewater VASAP, Jack B. Andrews, says the Tidewater program serves more than 100 clients per month, drivers of all ages and economic groups who have been arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol. As an indication of the size of the problem, Andrews says statistics show that only one in 5,000 violators is ever arrested and charged. Additional VASAP statistics indicate that any time you pass 50 cars, one of those drivers is legally intoxicated.

In the Norfolk-Virginia Beach area specifically, holiday and weekend evenings between the hours of 11:00 p.m. and 4:00 a.m. are the most serious problem times. During those hours one in four drivers encountered is intoxicated, and in the high intensity areas of Shore Drive, Little Creek Road and General Booth Boulevard, one driver in two is driving under the influence of alcohol.

In Virginia, a blood alcohol content level of .10 percent results in a charge of driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI). (Virginia has an "implied consent" law which means that if you drive, you automatically agree to a chemical test for intoxication.) That .10 percent can mean half a bottle of wine, four mixed drinks at a party, or a six-pack of beer. Even half that amount of alcohol, resulting in a blood level of .05 percent, can be enough to impair driving ability.

Once a person is referred to the VASAP program, he or she receives individual rehabilitation through education and/or treatment. The VASAP program requires that the individual pay a participation fee and any additional fines and court costs as directed by the court.

Each participant in the VASAP program is assigned a case manager who makes recommendations for education and treatment, monitors the individual's progress in the program, and reports to the court.

Information on the program can be obtained by contacting the Virginia Beach campus at 427-3070.

Notes from the shelter industry

By LIN J. COOPER
Director of Communications
Tidewater Builders Association

This week's column continues in a series of alphabetically-arranged tips and recommendations for the maintenance of your new or old home.

DISPOSALS. Your garbage disposal is probably one of two basic types: continuous feed or batch feed with locking cover. Your instruction booklet will give you the precise directions for its operation.

Many people erroneously conclude that because their waste disposal is capable of grinding up most of their garbage, it is also capable of eliminating grease and other substances that they would not otherwise pour down a drain. In fact, you should be equally careful not to clog disposal drains with grease. When grinding greasy substances, use plenty of cold water. Always use cold water when the disposal is on. Should the drain stop up, do not put chemicals down the disposal.

Reset Buttons. Most disposals have a reset button that works in much the same way as a circuit breaker. Should your disposal become overloaded with a substance it cannot grind, it will turn itself off. If this happens, move the switch to OFF, remove the substance obstructing the disposal's operation, wait about three minutes, and push the reset button (See your instruction booklet for its location), and turn the switch to ON. If it still does not start, turn it off again and check to be sure you have not blown a fuse or tripped a circuit breaker. If the fuse or circuit breaker has not interrupted the flow of current, loosen the fuse or trip the circuit breaker, and use a mop or broom handle to turn the rotating plate in the disposal until it turns freely. Restore current, push the reset button again, and turn the disposal switch to ON.

Some disposals have a specially-shaped wrench that can be inserted in the hole in the bottom of the disposal (under the sink). Others have a two-pronged wrench that fits in the top of the circulating plate. Turning the wrench a couple of times will usually loosen the material enough that it will start.

Avoid putting large amounts of fibrous materials, such as newspapers or corn husks, down your disposal. WARNING: be absolutely sure the switch is at OFF before inserting your hand to remove materials when the disposal is stalled.

DOORS. All doors can cause minor problems, and from time to time some of them do.

Sticking. Sticking is the most common problem with doors. If the sticking is caused by swelling in damp weather, fold sandpaper around a wood block and sand the edge that binds. If the sticking is the result of uneven alignment, check to see that the hinge screws are tight and holding properly. If the hinge screws are tight and the door is still out of alignment, sand or plane the edge that binds. Always paint or varnish areas that have been sanded or planed. Paint or varnish protects wood from moisture and helps to prevent further door problems.

Warping. Warping is another result of too much moisture. Should a door ever warp, the best cure is drying in the sun. If drying the door thoroughly won't straighten a badly warped door, apply weights to the bulged side and leave it for two or three days.

Storm Doors. If your house has a storm door, using it may reduce heating costs. Storm doors may be made of aluminum, wood, vinyl-clad wood, or solid vinyl. Houses with insulated steel exterior doors do not need separate storm doors.

Weatherstripping. To maintain your home's energy efficiency, your exterior doors come equipped with weatherstripping, made from a variety of materials, including metal, plastic or rubber. It is important that this weatherstripping remain properly installed to insure against loss of your home's expensively conditioned air or infiltration of outside air. Metal weather stripping may need to be re-nailed if it becomes loose, bent out away from the edge of the door or if it does not seal tightly when the door is closed. This is a simple process and you need only a hammer or pliers to do the job.

For rubber or plastic weatherstripping, re-gluing or re-nailling should be all that is necessary. For re-gluing, use a strong, water resistant household glue. Do not use cyano-acrylic (super) glues.

Painting. Wood exterior doors should be varnished or painted when the house or trim is painted every four to six years. Aluminum, vinyl-clad wood, and solid vinyl doors do not need painting.

Garage Doors. The moving parts of garage doors should be oiled about every three months. The screws that fasten the hardware to a wooden door should be tightened in about a year because the wood shrinks a little as it ages, and this may leave the screws a little loose. If a wooden hinged door sags, tightening the appropriate turn buckle should bring it back into shape. Each garage door usually has two of these, one on each of two cables crisscrossing the back of the door. An overhead door may warp from being left up for long periods of time. Usually this can be corrected by adjusting the nuts on the metal rods, or straps across the top and bottom of the door. Sliding garage doors that drag can be realigned by tightening the bolts on the wheels that run on the overhead track. Check, too, to be sure that the floor guide is not out of line.

Locks. Locks should be located so that they cannot be reached by breaking out a small door windowpane. If your home has the type of lock that requires a key on the inside, make sure a spare key is always handy for anyone who might be trapped inside the home. Installation of any locks or chains will be most secure if the screws and bolts used for attachment go all the way through the door or frame and cannot be removed from the outside. A metal insulated door may require the services of an expert to properly install new locks.

June brides will really appreciate a vacuum cleaner because it performs so many functions. Besides floors and carpets, it cleans upholstery, drapes and many other household items. Remember all the things it does for you.

French firm to locate plant at Beach

A newly formed, wholly owned subsidiary of Sarneige S.A., a French company that manufactures foam mats used in gymnastics and wrestling, will locate its Western Hemisphere manufacturing and sales headquarters in Virginia Beach.

Sarneige of America Inc. will lease 22,500 sq. ft. in the Commonwealth Building, 5447 Greenwich Road. Manufacturing is expected to begin in August after production equipment has been installed.

Initially the company will employ 10 to 15 production, sales and management people at the beach site, with numerous additional sales representatives in the field. Employment is expected to reach 50 in three years.

Sarneige manufactures high-quality mats for all wrestling and gymnastic activities, and worldwide sales in 1978 were $5.5 million. The mats have been used during the past three Olympic Games, and will be used in the upcoming Moscow Olympics as well.

Announcing the company's decision to locate in Virginia Beach, Jean-Claude Lepoutre, president of Sarneige of America Inc., said he expects this subsidiary to generate annual sales of $1 million the first year and $3 million by the third year.

Lepoutre added that Sarneige mats have a flawless record in the Olympics. "There have been no accidents on our mats since they've been used in the games, while there have been some on other mats. So now we'll be supplying gymnastics and wrestling mats for the Russian Olympics. Because we have the safest mats, the athletes can try more things without being afraid of injury."

Sarneige of America Inc. will buy most of its raw materials from U.S. suppliers, and will split its new production equipment purchases between U.S. and European manufacturers.

Lepoutre listed several factors that led to Sarneige's selection of Virginia Beach for its headquarters.

"First, we wanted to be close to a port for exporting the product to the rest of the hemisphere and for importing some materials. Second, the productivity of Virginia's labor force is very good. The cost of transportation to the interior of the United States is also pretty good from here. All in all, it's much better to be here than anywhere else in this country."

"The cooperation we've received from local and state officials has been excellent, too," Lepoutre continued. "We received a good deal of help from the Industrial Division of the Virginia Beach Department of Economic Development, and from the Brussels and Richmond offices of the Virginia Division of Industrial Development. The Virginia Beach School System will even help us with our language difficulties by giving us special courses in English."

Harold Gallup, beach industrial coordinator, noted that Sarneige's decision to locate here adds to the growing list of foreign companies moving to the city. Since 1972, he said, 13 foreign-owned or affiliated companies have located in Virginia Beach.

"It's also a different kind of company," added A. James DeBellis, director of the Virginia Beach Department of Economic Development. "And it's this diversification that is helping Virginia Beach maintain its good business climate and economic health. Sarneige is a clean industry, and a business that's compatible with the general ambience of the beach. We're very happy to have them here."

DeBellis elected SECDA president

Household pests? Here's how to control them

Insect pests seem to be out in force during spring and summer. However, a great many of them are hardy year-round invaders that thrive on warmth, food, and water in our homes. The Better Business Bureau recommends consumers keep a year-round pest control watch. Insects and rodents can do a lot of damage before we even know they are at work.

The National Pest Control Association advises that the ten most common household pests, nationwide, are cockroaches, house mice, rats, termites, ants and carpenter ants, fleas, dog ticks, spiders, and silverfish. Fortunately, most of these pests can be controlled by the homeowner.

The first step is well-sealed exterior walls and foundations, and tight fitting screens, doors, and windows. But these precautions aren't foolproof. Pests can get indoors on shoes, clothing, grocery packages, or the family pet. Once indoors, they can multiply rapidly. It is wise to go after them at once with pesticides, but remember, every pesticide is potentially harmful if improperly used. Read the labels and use them according to the instructions.

Here are some tips from the National Pest Control Association to keep roaches, ants and other unwanted guests from making your home their home:

- Good housekeeping is a must, inside and out. Keep the house as clean and dry as possible, the outside well-painted and free of rubbish. Some pests love dirt; most love dampness, and all of them need a place to hide and breed.
- Pay special attention to the kitchen. Sweep up crumbs, wash dishes, glassware and utensils promptly, and store leftover foods in tightly covered containers. Given an open invitation to dine, pests will continue to live with you.
- Clean frequently around base boards, air vents and cracks and crevices in floors, and under stairwells. They are favorite breeding places for all kinds of pests.
- Also keep bathrooms clean and dry, as well as areas around basement sinks, water heaters and humidifiers. Pests need water as well as food.
- Keep trash and garbage buildup to a minimum. If it must pile up between pickups, store it away from the house. You'll want to keep those invaders at a distance.
- Don't be fooled into believing your new trash compactor will solve the problem. No matter how often you squeeze them or hit them with disinfectant, pests are hardy creatures and can turn your compactor into their own motel.
- Check grocery bags and soft-drink containers carefully when unpacking food. Roaches or ants in pairs may be hitchhiking a ride to start up another family in your home.
- Also carefully check screens in windows and doors, including attic windows. There may be holes that insects can pass through, or larger ones where mice, squirrels or other animals may enter.
- Look for holes or cracks along the foundation or around water pipes. Plug those you find with steel wool. Stuffing them with newspaper will not help because rats and mice would simply know the paper away.
- Try to keep dirty clothing from piling up, and never store garments that have not been cleaned. It's an open invitation to moths, silverfish and other pests to gorge themselves.

• Vacuum drapes and cornices and the underside of furniture frequently. Empty the bag promptly -- outdoors.

• Purchase only small quantities of food and store it in containers that insects or rodents can't penetrate. Any food contaminated by ants, weevils or other insects should be thrown away.

• Keep wood surfaces of your home well painted and check frequently for dampness or signs of rot. Make sure gutters are clear and downspouts keep water well away from the foundation. Remember, many of those pests love dampness.

Buying Pesticides

Protecting people and the environment from potential pesticide hazards is the responsibility of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. The EPA requires registration and labeling of all commercial pesticide products. This assures that the product should be safe and effective when used as directed.

Be certain to buy only products with an EPA registration number and complete label information. Before buying, make sure the product is for use against the pests invading the household. Read the precautions carefully. Danger-Poison, Warning, and Caution are used to indicate the toxic level of pesticide products and they must be used strictly according to the directions. Proper storage and container disposal is also important to protect children and pets from harm. In case of accident, read the first aid instructions on the label to know what immediate action to take.

While pesticides can be a boon in controlling pests, losing battles may require professional help. Pests such as termites and carpenter ants generally need to be professionally exterminated. Choose professional help with care.

Calling the Professionals

It is always helpful to have the recommendations of friends and neighbors who have used professional pest control services. Companies that are members of a local or state pest control association, or the National Pest Control Association have access to modern technical and management information on quality service.

It is advisable to get an inspection and cost estimate from more than one company, but find out in advance if there is a charge for the inspection. Before signing a work contract, know what the pest problem is, the kind and extent of any damage, the cost of the control work, and the terms of warranties. If there is structural damage, get repair estimates from at least two qualified companies.

Beware Of Scheming Pests

Summer brings two-legged pests to our doors every year with schemes to gyp us through scare tactics and false promises. The Better Business Bureau urges consumers to beware of any so-called "pest control" expert who comes to the door or telephone with offers of free inspections for termites or other pests. Always deal with recognized, established companies. If in doubt, ask the Better Business Bureau for a reliability report.

Early Riser is distributed to more than 150,000 corn, sorghum and forage producers in the U.S. and Canada.

Fiber — how important is it?

Fiber occurs naturally in fruits, vegetables and cereal grains. Many of us refer to it as roughage or bulk. Because it is a part of the plant's structure that is largely indigestible, it is also referred to as non-nutritive. We all know that fiber is important in our daily diet, but just how much we need and from what foods we should get it, is still under study.

Non-nutritive crude fiber is the term used on package labels to describe the fiber content of foods. Crude fiber refers to the amount of fiber residue remaining after a food has been treated in a laboratory with alkali and acid.

Our digestive system is not as efficient in breaking down fiber. The amount of fiber remaining after digestion is considerably more than the amount remaining after this crude fiber laboratory test.

A new method of measuring food fiber has been developed which more closely resembles the action of our digestive system. The fiber determined by this new method is referred to as "dietary fiber." Dietary fiber values are four to five times greater than those for crude fiber for the same food.

It is estimated that the current American diet provides less than 4 grams (28.35 grams equal one ounce) of crude fiber per day. Many nutritionists believe that we should increase this to about 6 grams. Since we know that there are different kinds of fiber and that they perform different functions in the body, it is recommended that our dietary fiber should come from a variety of sources.

Fiber is present in varying amounts in all foods of plant origin. It is not found in meat products. Muscle fiber in meat is made up largely of protein and is nearly all digestible.

Good sources of fiber are bran cereals, vegetables and fruits. For example, a 1/2-cup serving of 40% bran flakes supplies one gram of crude fiber, a 1/2-cup serving of baby lima beans provides 2 grams crude fiber and 1/2 cup of sliced strawberries supplies 1.5 grams crude fiber. Include 4 or more servings or whole grain cereals or bread, and at least 4 servings of fruits and vegetables in your daily diet to ensure an adequate intake of all the different kinds of fiber.

We know that some fiber has the ability to absorb water in the intestinal tract. This ability to bind water is the reason it aids in elimination and helps to promote regularity. Along with binding water, some types of fiber bind bile salts, cholesterol and other fats. The significance of this relative to such diseases as cancer, coronary heart disease, gallstones and appendicitis is still being studied.

Dietary fiber is largely non-nutritive, that is, it does not provide a significant number of calories. Therefore, foods that are relatively high in fiber may also be relatively low in calories.

Generic foods stretch budget dollars

Budget-conscious consumers are checking the "no frill, plain wrap" package and finding they can stretch their food dollar by buying generic foods.

Generic foods save consumers money because their ingredients are less expensive and distributors generally spend less money to advertise, package and label them. At the same time, generic foods are as wholesome and nutritious as brand name products.

According to Charles Handy, project leader in the food economics division of the United States Department of Agriculture, "consumers can expect to save an average of 24 percent over national brands and about 15 percent over store brands."

The growing appeal of generic grocery products across the country was one of the big marketing surprises of 1978.

A recent survey of 1,000 consumers by Consumers Response Corporation, a New York-based marketing research firm, found that nearly two-thirds (62 percent) of all Americans are aware of generics.

The survey found that almost all consumers (93 percent) who have purchased generic products are satisfied and nearly 9 out of 10 (86 percent) current buyers expressed interest in purchasing generic products again.

The standard minimum specification for generic foods is USDA grade C, with some grade B to fill in as needed. National brands and top-line store brands use primarily grade A and some grade B.

According to Handy, all three grades are safe, wholesome and nutritious and packed under the same sanitary standards. USDA grades B and C are acceptable quality for standard consumer table and cooking use. Grade C products may have less uniform size, color, texture and maturity.

Cheaper packaging and labels help keep costs of generic food down. Lighter weight packages, some with slight imperfections and more utilitarian packages (no spouts, protective coatings or pull tabs) are used.

Typically, generic labels are black and white, printed on lighter non-varnished paper. No back labels are used on glass jars.

More than 80 percent of the generic products offered have been food, of which vegetables are the most frequently purchased items, followed at a distance by fruits. Peanut butter is also a big seller. Many stores carry 25 to 30 of the 100 generic foods offered.

Among non-food generic products, paper goods are the best sellers, followed by laundry soap and detergents, plastic wrap, sandwich and trash bags.

Most experts say it is still too early to measure the long-run success of generic labels. But initial sales indicate they have hit a responsive chord for price - and - value - sensitive shoppers.

Pick-your-own vegetable guide

Virginia's popular Pick-Your-Own program has expanded this year to now include vegetables. For a complete list of the 17 vegetable producers who sell on a pick-your-own or fresh-picked basis, the 1979 Vegetable Guide is available free from the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services. For your copy, call marketing agent Ron Whitehead at (804) 786-3951 or write Vegetable Guide, 283 North Governor Street, Richmond, Virginia 23219.

The director lists the producers throughout the state, with a map and directions to their locations. It also stipulates whether or not to bring your own take-home containers to the farms. The variety of vegetables offered ranges from beans to zucchini, and some growers even have the new sugar snaps and spaghetti squash. Many of the farmers sell in bulk quantities for canning and freezing, as well as in smaller quantities for daily use.

Consumers should remember that the ripening dates listed are approximate and are advised to call for exact picking dates and field conditions before traveling to the farm.

You can't get vegetables any fresher than straight from the fields—so why not make it a family outing and visit a nearby farm to pick-your-own produce this summer.

Raising cane

Most of us think of America as the most industrialized nation in the world, yet we are also one of the greatest and most efficient agricultural nations in the world.

Interestingly, our own farms meet most of our needs even for two of our three largest food imports, sugar and meat. The third is coffee which we don't grow.

However, our own sugar industry, which contributes $10.5 billion to the nation's economy and employs over 100,000 people, is being threatened by the dumping of foreign surplus sugar on our markets.

Many concerned legislators are urging Congress to adopt a Sugar Regulation Act which would protect our sugar industry and keep us from becoming dependent on foreign suppliers. They are very aware of our continuing and bitter experience with OPEC oil countries.

Black electrical tape lures; Citation trout-cobia appear in Bay

Virginia Beach Sun Outdoor Writer

Mother nature smiled on us this week with six beautiful days for fishing. Temperatures were in the 80's, no rain, very little wind, and I had to work every one of those days. A few of my fishing buddies were able to get out on the water, however, and they say their luck was as good as the weather.

Paul Dodge, Danny Christmas and Roger McDaniels entered the Virginia Beach Trout Fishing Tournament and caught a nice string of trout. Their 10 fish weighed in at 93 lbs., and included an 11 1/4 pound citation boated by Danny. The fish were hitting on black worms and black Mr. Twisters, but as luck would have it, both were in short supply aboard the "Miss Quick"—four fish gobbled their supply. Still, it's hard to keep a good fisherman down; Roger fastened a six inch piece of black electrical tape to grey head and it wasn't long before Danny caught his citation on it. Normally I would find this hard to swallow, but knowing Paul and Roger's fishing ability I have to do as the fish did.

Two more of my co-workers made me very envious this past week. Chesapeake Police Dispatcher Danny McCoy and Patrolman Marty Williams spent a couple of days fishing the Outer Banks of N.C., and on Wednesday caught 41 flounder and six trout at Oregon Inlet. They were using cut bait and drifting in five feet of water. On Thursday they went to Cobia Stake in Hatteras Inlet, and there Danny lured his first Cobia of the season with a small spot.

Casting in on some of the other area hot spots, Jim Lewis at Wachapreague told me that the flounders are still going strong. Charter boats out of Wachapreague Marina are averaging 70 to 120 flounder, with some nice catches of grey trout to boot. He said that one boat had 86 flounder and 51 trout on Friday. Catches could be larger, Jim said, but charter boat captains are making their parties throw back fish under 12 inches. It's just common courtesy to save fish for next year's anglers, and I commend the captains for taking this action.

Wachapreague isn't the only place yielding flounder this week. I've also had good reports from Chincoteague, Quinby, Oyster and Magotha Bay. It seems that the old door mats are biting along all the Eastern Shore channels, as well as the York Spit and Thimble Shoal channels.

Emmet Bailey at Bailey's Bait and Tackle Shop in Cape Charles had some good news for me this week. Emmet said that cobits have moved into the bay and that anglers are already catching two to three per boat. The cobia boated in the bay this season was landed by Bill Van Fleet on Capt. Ben Wall's charter boat, "El Pescador" out of King's Creek Marina. The season's first weighed-in at 29 pounds and was taken at buoy 13.

Emmet also told me that the trout fishing is still pretty good. Capt. Walter Lewis on the "Nancy May" put his party on them the other day, and Rich Marsteller topped the catch off with a 14 lb. 9 oz. citation. Capt. Lewis was fishing at the Plantation Light of Cape Charles, and Emmet said that they are catching plenty of small (pan size) trout at the Concrete Ships at Kiptopeke and also at the Fishermens Inlets bridge.

On this side of the bay, Katie at D&M Marina told me that the fishing has been good for the boats out of her port—plenty of blues and grey trout. Katie also weighed some citations this week, including a 142 pound tuna boated by Robert Galler on the "Corgelo." Robert caught this trophy at the Southeast Lump. Some of the other citations brought to Katie by area anglers were:

A five pound, eight ounce sea bass caught by Lenard Denver of Virginia Beach on the Head boat "Big D."

A six pound sea bass caught by Albert Hatchenson of Virginia Beach on the "Big D."

A five pound, four ounce sea bass caught by Fred Duan of Newport News on the "Big D."

A five pound, four ounce sea bass caught by Carl Cross of Portsmouth on the "Big D."

Katie also told me that Billy Carroll of Virginia Beach had a real close encounter on his boat "Close Encounter." Billy was fishing the Southeast lump, reeling in a large blue, and—after a long hard fight—managed to bring the monster along side. As it turned out, the blue was actually a 10 1/4 foot mako shark, which Billy—being a shark fisherman—estimated as around 600 lbs. Billy says he would've fished it up with the blues had it not snapped the 401 test line he was using.

At Nags head, Milton of Talem's Bait and Tackle told me that the fishing has been a little slow, as has been the case at most area piers. He said that bottom fishermen are catching a few flounder, croaker, spot, sea mullet and trout, but nothing to brag about...crabs seem plentiful, however, and Milton said that the bluefin tuna are running off shore. He also said to say that the marlin Tournament started June 11.

On the freshwater scene, June at Robbie's Bait and Tackle had some fine catches brought into her this week. She said John A. Michalek of Chesapeake caught a 15 lb. 2 oz. citation channel cat at Back Bay, and that Bill and Chris Spivey—also of Chesapeake—boated 26 bass and 30 blue gill with a fly rod. They released all but 16 of the bass, while one of Chris' blue gill was a citation.

June told me that Allen Morse and his son David also caught their share of fish at Back Bay on Thursday. They caught 304 white perch and 11 bass while using grass shrimp for bait. On Saturday, Allen returned to Back Bay with his wife this time, and she didn't hurt his luck one bit. They caught 156 white perch and 30 bass, releasing all but 16 of the bass.

If you frequently go flounder fishing and have bull gudgeons and shiners left over, don't throw them away. Frozen minnows seem to work as well as live ones and can even be frozen over again. By hooking the frozen minnows through the eyes, you will get life-like action out of them as you drift with the tide.

If you have some fishing news or tips that you think are worth sharing, please send them to me. I will be more than glad to use them and give you credit for them. If you have pictures I will try to use them also, but I prefer that they be in black and white.

If you are planning a fishing trip to the Outer Banks this week, here is a tide table. The table is computed for Oregon Inlet; to obtain Cape Hatteras subtract 41 minutes for high tide and 58 minutes for low tide.

Boating

Cavitation plates have Important function

All outboards and stern drives have cavitation plates.

These are flattened but well-streamlined metal fins located just above the propeller.

The purpose of a cavitation plate is to act as a barricade between the air just above and the propeller spinning rapidly just below the surface.

Without it, air could tend to push down into the frothy water and reach the spinning prop.

If that happens, the prop will cavitate, or lose its firm grip on the water.

It will spin wildly, losing much of its thrust while at the same time allowing the motor to over-speed.

This creates a sensation that makes you think the engine has suddenly slipped out of gear.

It's annoying and sometimes startling to a boat's occupants, and certainly hard on the engine.

Most well-tested boats never experience cavitation.

When they chance to/it often happens when making sharp turns.

The attitude of the boat in the water then may be changing the way water flows into the prop so as to allow air to reach it.

Should you some day experience cavitation, look first for such obvious causes as a nicked propeller blade or weeds that have draped themselves around the lower unit.

If correcting such things fails to stop cavitation, it's wise to visit a marine dealer and let experienced boat and motor mechanics look over the rig.

You can learn methods to avoid fish injury

Catching and then having to release fish is a strange thing to fishermen who have usually kept most of their catch.

But with more people fishing these days, biologists are imposing length limits on many species in order to assure continued good fishing.

In doing so, they realize that some fish will be injured and will die without being utilized as food for humans.

But the dead fish will likely be used as food for other kinds of animals, so all is not lost.

Fishermen can help to reduce the mortality rate of released fish by using proper release techniques.

Keep the fish in the water and cut the line near the hook.

One catch-and-release method which many anglers shun, but which is recommended, is a landing net.

Trap the fish in the net, slide it to the boat, reach down, release the hook and turn the fish loose.

This simple method eliminates handling the fish and thus destroying the protective slime on its body.

Plus, the fish isn't injured by lifting it from the water and placing undue strain on its internal organs.

If you don't have a net, you can hold toothless fish by the lower jaw, remove the hook, and release the fish.

Toothed fish can be held over the back just behind the gills. All this is done in the water.

The biggest dinosaur to roam the earth was the Supersaurus. That prehistoric creature was three times taller than a giraffe and weighed as much as 14 elephants. The smallest dinosaur was the Compsognathus, about the size of a chicken.

Not all minnows are miniscule. The Colorado River squawfish, the largest minnow in the world, can grow to be six feet long and weigh as much as 80 pounds.

Complainant, IN CHANCERY NO. C79-952

SHIRLEY O'NEIL PAYTON, et al, Defendants.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is for the Complainant to establish, by satisfactory evidence, that Shirley O'Neil Payton, her husband, is deceased, based upon a presumption of death from an absence of more than seven years, uninterrupted and without having been heard from in any manner since the original disappearance on August 18, 1971.

The Complainant claims an interest in certain property, both real and personal, as follows:

(a) Leona R. Payton and Shirley O'Neil Payton were seized in fee simple of certain real estate as tenants by the entireties with right of survivorship as at common law at the time of his disappearance on August 18, 1971.

(b) Shirley O'Neil Payton, on August 18, 1971, was the owner and insured under a policy of life insurance with the Minnesota Mutual Life Insurance Company, policy number 997844, in the face amount of $20,000.00, which Leona R. Payton claims as beneficiary.

(c) Shirley O'Neil Payton, on August 18, 1971, was the owner and insured under a policy of life insurance with Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company, policy number 4302579, in the face amount of $10,000.00, which Leona R. Payton claims as beneficiary.

An affidavit has been made and filed that due diligence has been used by or on behalf of the Complainant to ascertain in what county or city the Defendant is, without effect, and that Shirley O'Neil Payton is not a resident of the State of Virginia and his last known post office address is 3045 Coach House Lane, Virginia Beach, VA 23452.

It is ORDERED that the Defendant is hereby required to appear and protect his interest on or before the 18th day of July, 1979, which date is not sooner than fifty (50) days after the entry of this Order of Publication. It is FURTHER ORDERED that this Order of Publication shall be published once a week for four (4) successive weeks in the Virginia Beach Sun, a newspaper having general circulation in the City of Virginia Beach.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

The Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries at a meeting held in Richmond, Virginia, on April 13, 1979, adopted the following amended or new regulations pursuant to Sections 29-125, 29-126 and 29-127 of the Code of Virginia, to become effective July 1, 1979.

CHAPTER 2. In General (Game).

R2-5. It shall be unlawful to take or attempt to take wild animals and wild birds, with the exception of crows, by the use or aid of recorded wild animal or wild bird calls or sounds or recorded electrically amplified imitation of wild animal or wild bird calls or sounds.

R2-13. It shall be unlawful to set above the ground any steel leg-hold trap with teeth set upon the jaws, or larger than size #2, or with a jaw spread exceeding six and one-half inches.

CHAPTER 4. Beaver.

R4-1. It shall be lawful to trap beaver from December 1 through the last day of February, both dates inclusive.

CHAPTER 5. Bobcat.

R5-01. Except as otherwise specifically provided by the regulations appearing in this chapter, it shall be lawful to hunt bobcat by day and night from November 1 through January 31, both dates inclusive.

R5-01.1. It shall be lawful to take bobcat by hunting on the George Washington National Forest and on the Gathright, Goshen, G. Richard Thompson, Highland, Little North Mountain and Rapidan Wildlife Management Areas from November 1 through December 31, both dates inclusive.

R5-02. It shall be lawful to trap bobcat from December 1 through January 31, both dates inclusive.

CHAPTER 8. Fox.

R8-8. Except as otherwise specifically provided by local legislation and with the specific exceptions provided in the regulations appearing in this chapter, it shall be lawful to trap foxes from December 1 through January 31, both dates inclusive.

CHAPTER 12. Opossum.

R12-1 and R12-2. Prescribing the open season for hunting and trapping opossum, are hereby rescinded and new R12-1 through R12-6 are inserted in Lieu thereof.

CHAPTER 16. Raccoon.

R16-1. Except as otherwise specifically provided in the regulations appearing in this chapter, it shall be lawful to chase raccoon with dogs, without capturing or taking, from October 15 through November 14, both dates inclusive.

R16-7. Except as provided by local legislation, the bag limit for hunting raccoon shall be two per hunting party, taken between noon of one day and noon the following day. The season bag limit shall be twenty-five raccoons in the aggregate, taken by hunting and trapping combined.

Boulevard expansion threatens London Bridge businesses turns. Without the eight lanes, he said, "U" turns would not be possible. He said he would bring in a resolution next Monday endorsing this plan.

Alternatives discussed at a State Transportation Commission hearing included:

Leaving the road as is. Improving signalization.

Establishing one-way service roads with signalization.

Purchasing the right of way for an eight-lane road with curbs and gutters with one-way service roads.

The fifth is to eight-land the boulevard recommended previously. The last alternative, which would be the one endorsed in the proposed resolution, calls for a 16-foot clearance over London Bridge.

Merrick pointed out service stations which would lose pumps, others which would be completely wiped out, parking areas for businesses which would be taken in part or in entirety. The Pinetree Inn wall would be taken, he said, and "London Bridge for all practical purposes would disappear," except where there are recessed shopping centers like Pembroke Mall.

Hanbury said that he could not recommend exploring the six-lane configuration because of the number of cars which would be using the road. He said that the older businesses which will lose parking will be repaid for their losses.

Which road will lead to False Cape Park?

Virginia Beach were deleted, traffic on Battlefield Boulevard would be increased by one-third.

Mrs. Henley said that the city could deal with other access routes "as they come in."

Councilman R.L. Riggs, because of personal interests in the area, abstained from voting and Mayor Patrick L. Standing was absent. The remaining seven council members endorsed the resolution.

The roughage or bulk of fiber also contributes to a feeling of fullness without adding excess calories. Most vegetables are made up largely of water and fiber and are, therefore, lower in calories than meat, for example, which contains no fiber, little water and large amounts of fat, which is high in calories.

There does appear to be a relationship between low levels of fiber in the diet and diverticulosis. Diverticulosis is a condition of the lower intestine in which bulges or pouches develop in the bowel lining. These pouches can become inflamed and cause pain, fiber diets and diverticulosis, it does appear to be a credible hypothesis.

"If a little is good than a lot must be better" is not true for fiber just as it is not true for any food or nutrient. Claims that excessively large amounts of fiber will cure a variety of ills have not been substantiated by medical researchers. It all comes back to that well-known phrase -- everything in moderation. Excessive amounts of fiber have not been shown to be of any benefit in preventing or curing diseases and may actually be harmful.

Commercial vehicles allowed in neighborhoods

Only one single-family home is to be allowed per lot.

Removal of room overhangs from the section on height requirements.

Requiring all commercial parking spaces to be arranged so that all vehicles may enter the city street in a forward manner and not have to back out into the street.

Councilman Clarence A. Holland said that he was not sure that the parking of commercial parking of commercial vehicles in residential neighborhoods was that parking of commercial vehicles in residential neighborhoods was that much of a problem.

Councilman Donald Merrick said that he had neighbors who parked trucks over three-quarters of a ton in their driveways and "it was not the world's worst thing. That's the way the man makes a living."

The change was deleted from the motion approving the other three recommendations.

Seating and tableware for an outdoor party should be casual, cozy and centerpiece of flowers from your own garden. Paper plates save on dish washing, but paper napkins blow easily in an outdoor breeze, so use wash 'n wear napkins instead.

beach military update

Arey

Navy Lieutenant Commander Sheldon C. Arey, son of Mr. and Mrs. William O. Arey of Windward Shore Drive, Virginia Beach, recently participated in exercise "Solid Shield-79."

He is an officer assigned to the ocean minesweeper USS Affray, homeported in Portland, Maine.

"Solid Shield-79" is the 17th in a series of annual land and sea exercises designed to emphasize command and control of military forces. The exercise simulated military action between land, sea and air forces, including an airborne assault, naval mine warfare, harbor control, runway repair and tactical air support operations.

Squadron units conducted training exercises designed to clear harbor and approach areas and performed a full range of minesweeping and countermeasure operations off the mid-Atlantic coast.

Arey is a 1967 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.

Perry

Meritorious service at Edwards AFB, Calif., has earned the U.S. Air Force Commendation Medal for Staff Sergeant Mark S. Perry, son of retired Navy Master Chief Petty Officer and Mrs. Oscar L. Perry of John Hancock Dr., Virginia Beach.

Sergeant Perry, an aircraft egress systems technician, was presented the medal at Hill AFB, Utah, where he now serves with a unit of the Tactical Air Command.

The sergeant is a 1972 graduate of Floyd E. Kellam High School.

Riffey

Airman Gary A. Riffey, son of James E. Riffey of Windsor Woods Blvd., Virginia Beach, has graduated at Sheppard AFB, Tex., from the U.S. Air Force technical training course for dental specialists.

Airman Riffey, who studied dental anatomy and radiological techniques, is being assigned to the U.S. Air Force Academy, Colo. Completion of the course earned the individual credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman is a 1977 graduate of Kellam High School and attended Tidewater Community College.

Ottavi

Technical Sergeant Raymond J. Ottavi, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis A. Ottavi of S. Lake, Virginia Beach, is now wearing a distinctive service ribbon as a member of an organization which recently received the U.S. Air Force Outstanding Unit Award.

Sergeant Ottavi is a bombardment aircraft maintenance technician at Tinker AFB, Okla., with the 552nd Airborne Warning and Control Wing that earned the award for meritorious service from July 1, 1977 to June 30, 1978.

The sergeant is a 1967 graduate of Frank W. Cox High School.

Chappell

Pvt. William C. Chappell, son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Campbell, Joan Terrace, Virginia Beach, recently was assigned with the 1st Cavalry Division at Fort Hood, Texas.

Chappell entered the Army in January 1979.

Woods

Airman Erich Woods, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark E. Woods of Hannibal St., Virginia Beach, has been selected for technical training at Chanute AFB, Ill., in the Air Force communications field.

The airman recently completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex., and studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations. Completion of this training earned the individual credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Ouzts

Coast Guard Quartermaster Third Class Peter J. Ouzts, son of Walter D. Ouzts of Court Circle, Virginia Beach, has reported for duty at the 9th Coast Guard District Office, Cleveland.

He joined the Coast Guard in January 1978.

Beach man named state's first C.P.P.

Archie McDearmid

Archie McDearmid, head of the Photographic Arts Staff and audiovisual production specialist at the Norfolk Naval Shipyard, has been named Virginia's first certified professional photographer by the Professional Photographers of America (PPA) Inc.

McDearmid, who lives in Chesopian Colony in Virginia Beach, is currently serving on the 15-member board of directors of the PPA. The board is charged with the responsibility of establishing policy and overseeing all activities of the 15,000 member organization, as well as its 165 state, regional and international affiliates. His services as a speaker and teacher are recognized at all levels of the PPA.

In addition to many awards for excellence in the field of photography, McDearmid received the degree of master of photography in 1969, the degree of photographic craftsman in 1971 and was the first person to earn the Virginia degree of "fellow of photography." He is past president of both the Virginia and the Southeastern Professional Photographers Associations.

Advice from the Veterans Administration

Free tutorial assistance may be the answer for GI Bill students who encounter a difficult course while pursuing their educational objective, the Veterans Administration said today. Tutoring help is available to help veterans get the most from their college training, and the service isn't charged against the veteran-student's basic educational entitlement, according to VA Regional Office Director, W.H. Highfill Jr.

VA did not have authority to pay for tutorial assistance for World War II and Korean Conflict GI Bill students, Highfill noted, but under present law the agency can pay as much as $69 per month for such help up to a maximum of $828. In addition to veterans and active duty military personnel, tutorial benefits are available to widows, widowers, spouses and children studying under the VA's Dependents' Educational Assistance Program.

Veterans and service members attending school at the post-secondary level on at least a half-time basis are eligible if they are deficient in a subject required in an approved program of education, Highfill said.

Applications for reimbursement should be made on VA Form 22-1990T within a year of the tutoring and should be submitted to the VA regional office which maintains the veteran's claims folder. Applications should be certified by the school, according to Highfill.

Forms for tutoring assistance, and information on this and other VA programs are available at any VA office.

Q - I have a Veterans Administration education loan for $1,000. I terminated my school training on Dec. 15, 1978, and entered an on-the-job training program. When must I begin repaying the education loan?

A - Payments on your loan become due nine months from the date on which you terminated school training. Therefore, for a training program terminated on Dec. 15, 1978, the education loan becomes due Sept. 15, 1979.

Q - What papers must a veteran submit in order to establish eligibility for a Veterans Administration guaranteed home loan?

A - He must submit to his nearest VA assistance office originals or legible copies of his discharge or separation papers showing periods of military service and types of discharges. Also, obtain from VA and fill out a Request for Determination of Eligibility and Available Loan Guaranty Entitlement.

Q - I am service connected disabled for total blindness. Can I receive a guide dog through the Veterans Administration?

A - Guide dogs, including the expense of training the veteran to use the dog and the cost of the dog's medical care, are authorized services provided by VA to eligible veterans.

Gonzalez

Airman Jorge E. Gonzalez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jorge Gonzalez of 515 Tree Top Drive, Virginia Beach, has been assigned to Lowry AFB, Colo., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland AFB, Tex., the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations. Completion of this training earned the individual credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Airman Gonzalez will now receive specialized training in the supply field.

The airman graduated from high school in 1978.

Leming

Navy Seaman Recruit Eric F. Leming, son of Monroe F. and Jean R. Leming of Level Green Blvd., Virginia Beach, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in his studies were seamanship, close-order drill, Naval history and first aid.

Amick

Navy Aviation Machinist's Mate First Class Roy L. Amick, whose wife, Barbara, is the daughter of Zonie M. and Hellen Newman of Lillian Ave., Virginia Beach, recently returned from a deployment to the Western Pacific.

He is assigned to Carrier Airborne Early Warning Squadron 126, embarked at Naval Air Station, Norfolk. His squadron was embarked aboard the aircraft carrier USS Constellation, operating as a unit of the U.S. Seventh Fleet.

During the eight-month cruise, his squadron participated in a number of training exercises with other Seventh Fleet units and with those of allied nations. Additionally, while embarked aboard the Constellation, his unit transited the South China Sea and Indian Ocean in response to the turmoil in Iran and North Yemen. The Indian Ocean assignment has resulted in his eligibility for the Navy Expeditionary Medal.

While deployed, he had the opportunity to visit Japan, Korea, Singapore and the Republic of the Philippines.

Amick joined the Navy in December 1967.

July 4th festivities scheduled

On July 4th, the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation will hold its 6th Annual July 4th Family Fun Day at Mt. Trashmore Park. The festivities will officially begin at 1 p.m. with a Water Ski Show presented by the Virginia Beach Water Ski Club, and will conclude with a fireworks display at 9:30 that evening.

Activities of the day will include a log rolling contest, youth and family-oriented games and relays, a Great American Birthday Cake Give-Away, an Ice Sitting Contest, and performances by the Wappadoodle Puppets. Live entertainment will be given by Stetson, The Top Hats, Jamour, U.S. Armed Forces School of Music Stage Band, and the U.S. Navy Gale Force Band.

Raid date is July 7. In case of rain July 7, the event will be held July 8. For more detailed information, contact the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation at 467-4884.

The Gruesed Pole Climb is only one of the events that will be featured at the 6th Annual July 4th Family Fun Day at Mt. Trashmore Park. Also planned are relays, races, tag-o-war, peach bobbing, egg toss and plenty of live entertainment.

Uniform towing cost proposal to prevent summer price gouging

The City of Virginia Beach is studying the possibility of establishing uniform maximum costs for towing companies towing cars from private property and acceptable payment in some form other than cash.

City Manager George Hanbury said that he isn't sure that city council can establish a price ceiling on private property, but that there are definitely incidences of "price gouging, especially in the summer."

He said the city has a maximum for towing cars off city property.

Councilman J. Curtis

Payne Jr. said that signs listing prices of various towing companies could be placed in parking areas.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing said that "when they've got your car and you've got to go home, you're not in a very good bargaining position."

New tide of commercialism pushes south; local surfers make waves

A something-for-everybody solution to the surfers vs. bathers controversy has left both sides less than satisfied.

Surfers fear that development in the vicinity of the surfing areas will push them out as motel-hotel interests request bathing areas in front of their establishments.

The motel-hotel interests think that surfers have too much of the beach already and that bathers should have first priority.

For now, the city will restore to the surfers the 500-foot surfing area in the vicinity of the former steel pier. City Manager George L. Hanbury told council Monday afternoon that the surfers wanted to get back in the area which has been off limits because of the debris which remained after the demolition of the pier.

Steel pier area to be reopened

Hanbury said that the 10 to 15 pilings which present a hazard will be posted and marked with buoys to meet the requirements of the city's insurance underwriters. This should take about two days after which the area will be opened for the first time in two years. Hanbury said the city would also scrape the bottom and have divers make weekly inspections of the area.

In addition, the surfers will have 500 feet in front of the Dolphin Run Condominium. Two hundred feet was lopped off of this surfing area (formerly 700 feet) at the request of the Dolphin Run Condominium which wanted more bathing areas for its clientele.

The city had planned to compensate for this loss by adding 200 feet to the north which has no development on the abutting private property. However, establishments located behind the vacant property complained that they wanted the beach for bathing.

Something-for-everybody solution

To satisfy these interests, no action was taken to extend the area 200 feet to the north and to satisfy the surfers the old steel pier surfing area will be reopened.

This will give the surfers 1000 feet north of Rudee Inlet and 800 feet south of the inlet. The city has reserved approximately 3,300 feet of beach for surfing including Steel Pier, Dolphin Run, Croatan Beach, Camp Pendleton and Little Island Beach in Sandbridge.

Surfing is also permitted on all beaches before 10 a.m. and after 5 p.m. At an informal meeting of council Monday Hanbury said the city has requested a lease permit from the Army to permit surfing at Fort Story

Monday through Thursday, but surfers maintain there is little surf at Fort Story. Hanbury said that all of False Cape State Park is open to surfers. The only way to get there, however, is by foot or bicycle - when the tides are right.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing said, "I strongly feel we should establish a surfing area." He said that most of the vacant beach property at the south end of the beach is owned by his family and that although "we don't intend to build," whoever buys the property will want to build. He said the only way he could see around the problem is reserving a beach for surfing which is not in danger of being shunted aside by development. This leaves Fort Story.

At the formal council meeting, E. McCallum, owner of Ocean Lake Apartments said bathers outnumbered the surfers and "Why should a few dozen surfers take the beaches?" He said his hotel was for families only and that surfers are "not the basis of your income" and "come and go." He said there are "only 200 feet for actual people."

Robert Roskovich, representing Ocean Lake and Byrd Hotel, said that surfing was dangerous and that the beach in front of Dolphin Run is one of the few areas with a wide beach.

The Shadowlawn neighborhood, located in the back streets, consider this their beach, he said.

Councilman R.L. Riggs said that he lived in Shadowlawn and the residents there have children who surf.

Most surfers are residents

Henry Marks, attorney, represented the newly formed Virginia Beach Surfers Association. He said most of the surfers are from Virginia Beach, Norfolk and Chesapeake. The professional surfers, who move from place to place, stay away from Virginia Beach because the waves are not that good, he said. He said that surfers had no advance warning of changes in the surfing areas. "What good would a surfing area be if waves never break?" he asked, and said that Fort Story has no waves.

The surfing area at Little Island Beach, he said, has no waves although the surf in the swimming area there is excellent.

When there were no hotels or condominiums in the south end of the beach, he said, surfers were welcomed, while now they are shunted around.

Referring to a comment by McCallum, he said that surfers are "actual people."

Marks conceded that council has realized a need, predicted that surfers

Council approves boulevard expansion

The $40 million, eight-lane reconstruction of Virginia Beach Boulevard was approved by Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon in a resolution to the State Department of Highways and Transportation.

By a vote of 9-2 council adopted the resolution which approved the major design features of the proposed project including a 16-foot clearance over London Bridge Creek.

Opposition to the project from some merchants and a taxpayer failed to deter the council majority which was also faced with a net loss of a quarter of a million dollars or more if the project were dropped.

Two councilmen, along with speakers wanted to delay the vote to study alternatives, or at least get a second opinion on the project. But the majority seemed to agree with Councilman Clarence A. Holland that the road was needed for the future. "You're not talking about Virginia Beach today, but you're talking about Virginia Beach in the year 2000 when we may have 100,000 more people."

Councilman Donald Merrick said that the first time he saw the plans for the highway was two weeks before the March 13 public hearing. "I was flabbergasted by the number of businesses which will be destroyed." He said that some will be recompensed for their losses, but others, which will lose some of their land but will still be able to remain in business, will run into a cash flow problem during the construction of the road. He said he wanted a second opinion on the road.

The road will be improved from Newtown Road to Farmington Road.

The state has already spent $1.25 million on the road which would have to be paid for by the city if the plans were dropped. The city would also have to pay 100 percent of the cost of signalization for the highway or approximately $1 million if the project is discontinued. City Manager George L. Hanbury pointed out that it would, therefore, cost the city more to discontinue the project than it would to proceed as recommended since the city's share of the $40 million improvement is five percent or $2 million.

TRT Sunshine Special serves Beach residents

Tidewater Regional Transit (TRT) has begun its Sunshine Special bus service in Virginia Beach.

Designed to serve resident beach-goers and tourists, the Sunshine Special buses are equipped with special racks for carrying bicycles and surfboards to and from the oceanfront.

"Now in its fourth year of operation, the beach bus service has been highly successful the past three years," said Dr. J. Henry McCoy Jr., chairman of the Tidewater Transportation District Commission and Virginia Beach vice-mayor. The Sunshine Special will operate daily through Labor Day, Monday, September

This year, the Sunshine Special will be expanded to three routes. The returning routes, Kempsville and Pembroke, will follow the same routes as last year, serving Mount Trashmore, the Virginia Beach Recreation Center, and Independence Boulevard from Baygood Shopping Center to Pembroke Mall. This year's new route, Brandon, will serve the areas of Stafford Chase, Acredale, Brandon Woods, Brigadoon, and Woods Corner.

"This year's route expansion," said J. Curtis Payne, Virginia Beach councilman and TTDC commissioner, "will provide the opportunity for more Virginia Beach Residents to use this service."

Fares on the route range from 40 to 60 cents, with

Joyner appointed to Development Authority

Lawrence L. Joyner has been appointed to the Development Authority to fill the unexpired term of Willard P. Whitehurst who resigned.

Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon made the appointment which will run until Oct. 2, 1981.

Reappointed to the Authority for four-year terms were Norman Morris and John W. Wilson. Lois Bostic was appointed to a three-year term to the Tidewater Safety Commission. Reappointments included:

Councilman John A. Baum and Councilwoman Meyera E. Oberndorf for three year terms on the Southeastern Virginia Planning District Commission, and Swindell Pollack, John Robertson, Mrs. James Morrow and Mrs. William Campbell, to the Public Library Board for three years.

Beach residents to lead Tidewater Girl Scouts

Six Virginia Beach residents began this month to directly affect the future of Girl Scouting in Greater Tidewater.

Elected members of the Board of Directors of Greater Tidewater Council of Girl Scouts at the annual meeting, the group will make policy decisions affecting Girl Scouts in Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Suffolk, the seven Northeastern North Carolina counties and points in between.

Three-year terms on the board will be filled by Helen M. Eason and LaJon R. Hutton. Mrs. Eason, presently administrative assistant at Wesley Community Center in Portsmouth, has held a wide variety of Girl Scout positions. She is married to the pastor of Scott Memorial United Church and has one son and one daughter.

Major Hutton is currently Marine Liaison Officer with Naval Audit Service in Virginia Beach. In addition to serving as a Girl Scout leader, he has been both president and treasurer of parent teacher organizations.

Virginia Beach resident Sheila Escadja was elected to serve the Girl Scout Board for two years. Widely experienced in Girl Scouting, she is a 1977 graduate of Virginia Wesleyan College and has taught art in Virginia Beach elementary schools for two years.

To serve one-year terms are Sarah Holt Jett, Rosalee

C. Jewell and Sandra Brown Proctor, who will be a member of the Nominating Committee.

Mrs. Jett is director of volunteer services at Leigh Memorial Hospital. Before that she directed Portsmouth Child Service Center -- Holiday House and coordinated advocacy and membership services for the Tidewater Association for Retarded Citizens. She is married to a Navy Captain and has three children.

Mrs. Jewell is a Virginia Beach native and graduate of Norfolk Business College. She is currently with Virginia Beach Vacations, Inc. where she is bookkeeper, corporate secretary and treasurer. Her Girl Scout career parallels that of her daughter who rose from Brownie to Cadette level with her mother assisting troops at all levels. The Jewells have three children.

Mrs. Proctor is a native of Virginia Beach and received degrees from Norfolk State College and Rutgers University. Currently a teacher in the School of Social Work at NSC, Proctor's interest in Girl Scouting resulted from placing students for practicum experience with Greater Tidewater Council. She is married to a professor at NSC and has one child.

Others elected at the April meeting were Luch Salzbey, president; Nelda Pressly, executive vice president; Cheryl Melton, field vice president; and Leonard C. Lohman Jr., treasurer.

Local concerts highlight CBNU music seminar

Local concerts featuring top name Christian artists and premieres of major choral works will highlight the first CBN University Music Seminar June 24-29.

The seminar, to be held on the campus of Old Dominion University, is expected to draw hundreds of church musicians, college students and serious high school juniors and seniors to the Tidewater area. It is designed to educate, inspire and train present as well as future church musicians.

Two local concerts will be at the Virginia Beach Civic Center (Dome). On Monday night Doug Oldham will host musical guests Kathy Lee Johnson, the popular "Name That Tune" gal, Cynthia Clawson, The Hawaiians, Hale and Wilder, Neilson and Young, John and Mary Geigert and the Sharretts. On Thursday night at the Dome, former rock star Gary Paxton will host a talented group of entertainers including Truth, Stephanie Boosahda, John Michael Talbot, Andrew Culverwell, the Pat Terry group and Glad.

Choral premieres will take place at the ODU campus Tuesday and Wednesday night with premieres of "The Witness," written by Jimmy and Carol Owens, and "The Day That Never Ends," written by Otis Skillings. The Rock Church Choir will perform the latter work.

Classes will be held in such areas as orchestration, composition, church music and administration, church music promotion and advertising, choir rehearsal, children's choirs, worship and praise, the music business, television and radio in the church, sound systems, record production, travel groups, and other popular subjects.

Little Miss Neptune contest opens

The search is on for Little Miss Neptune. If your little girl is between the ages for four and seven she is eligible for the title. The contest is again being sponsored by the Beta Kappa Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha and the proceeds will again go to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

The winner will receive a $100 savings bond in addition to other prizes. The runners up will receive $50 savings bonds and other prizes. All finalists will also receive a prize.

Entry forms may be obtained from the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce. For more information call 466-0093 or 481-7449. Deadline for entries is August 1.

June 21: Longest day

When is the "longest day of the year?" Usually it's June 21st in the Northern Hemisphere, the first day of summer. When the summer solstice occurs in the Northern Hemisphere, the "North Pole" slants more directly toward the sun.

Warm up to your local branch of the Virginia Beach Public Library and start your summer off right! Check out a book to read while you're working on that sun-tan. Take the kids along since the summer reading club begins June 21.

TCC graduate is first in family

When Shiela Goodman graduated from Tidewater Community College on Sunday, June 17, she made history -- at least in her family. Shiela, who is the first member of her family to have completed high school, is the first to complete two years of college.

In addition to maintaining a B-plus average, Shiela plans to enter Norfolk State in the fall and hopes to continue her education until she has a master's degree in some area of social work.

"I hope someday to have a doctorate," says Shiela, "but I plan to go to school full-time until I have the Master's degree. Then I can get a job and work toward a doctorate later."

The fact that Shiela completes her Associate Degree in community and Social Services at the Virginia Beach TCC campus with honors is a source of obvious pride to her.

"When I was in high school," the 1973 graduate says, "the counselors told me I was definitely not college material." Four years out of high school and a series of "rinky-dink jobs" convinced Shiela she could do better. With the encouragement of family and friends, she entered Tidewater Community College at the Virginia Beach campus in the summer quarter of 1977 and has been a full-time student ever since.

Shiela says her career plans include social work, most likely in some area of counseling.

To prove something to herself, "TCC was my first choice, and I think my grades prove my happiness in the program."

Shiela says her career plans include social work, most likely in some area of counseling.

Wallace appointed as VWC's first full-time chaplain

The first full-time chaplain at Virginia Wesleyan College was appointed this week by Bishop W. Kenneth Goodson at the 197th session of the Virginia Conference of the United Methodist Church meeting in Roanoke. The Rev. Kenneth P. Wallace, 25, begins his new duties this month.

A native of Norfolk and a graduate of Old Dominion University in the class of 1976, Wallace completed his seminary training at the Candler School of Theology, Emory University in Atlanta, in March. Since April, he has been serving as an associate minister of Baylake United Methodist Church in Virginia Beach. Wallace entered the ministry from his home church in Norfolk, Ferebee-Halstead United Methodist Church.

Virginia Wesleyan has had a part-time chaplain since the college opened in 1966, sharing a minister with nearby Wesleyan Acres United Methodist Church. The Rev. Robert S. Brookover has served in that dual position for the past two years. Brookover is being assigned to a pastorate in Woodstock, Virginia.

"We are fortunate to have the Rev. Kenneth Wallace in this position," says President Lambuth M. Clarke. "His presence in a full-time capacity will allow us to expand our formal religious programs on campus and to expand Virginia Wesleyan's ministry through higher education programs in churches and organizations off the campus."

Virginia Wesleyan is one of five colleges related to the Virginia Conference of the United Methodist Church. About 25 percent of the students are United Methodists.

Ten local men appointed to service academies

Congressman G. William Whitehurst has announced that ten young men he had nominated to the service academies have received appointments and will be accepted for admission this summer to the Class of 1983.

Receiving appointments to the Air Force Academy are:

Merrill Jarvis Allgood Jr., a senior at Bayside High School. He is a son of Merrill and Virginia Allgood, Holladay Road, Virginia Beach.

Tim Allen Schoenhardt, a senior at Kellam High School. He is a son of Roger and Doris Schoenhardt, Windsor Gate Place, Virginia Beach.

Receiving appointments to the Military Academy at West Point are:

Jeffrey Scott Giger, a senior at Princess Anne High School. He is a son of Gene and Paulette Doe, Whitechapel Drive, Virginia Beach.

Steven Bruce Lowe, a senior F.W. Cox High School. He is a son of Cameron and Doris Lowe, Wakefield Drive, Virginia Beach.

Receiving appointments to the Naval Academy at Annapolis are:

James Henry Flatley, a senior at Portsmouth Abbey High School. He is a son of Capt. James and Nancy Flatley, 51st St., Virginia Beach.

Alan Paul Manglicmot, a senior at Kempville High School. He is a son of Justo and Salvacion and Monglicmot, Drexel Circle, Virginia Beach.

William F. Omberg Jr., a senior at Kempville High School. He is a son of William and Patricia Omberg, Balfour Drive, Virginia Beach.

William Blake Ramsey, a senior at First Colonial High School. He is a son of Capt. and Peggy Ramsey, Echo Cove, Virginia Beach.

William D. Tyree III, a senior of Lake Taylor High School. He is a son of William and Josephine Tyree, Hough Ave., Norfolk.

John Francis McLoughlin, a senior at Frederick Military Academy. He is a son of Howard and Elizabeth McLoughlin, Windward Shore Drive, Virginia Beach.

Grant goes to TCC

The Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College has received a $122,000 federal grant for Cooperative Education. The Title VIII grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare will be used to expand the Co-op Program which is designed to give students practical work experience in their fields of study.

This is the fourth year the college has received federal funds for Cooperative Education. The $122,000 total represents a $47,000 increase over the current Co-op grant.

Story and movie program to show at Great Neck library

The Great Neck branch of the Virginia Beach Public Library will present a story and film program for children ages six and up on Wednesday, June 27, at 10:30 a.m.

The story, "Gas Was a Mexican Ghost" written by Jane Thayer, will be told by Robbin Farrar, who is a storyteller at the Great Neck branch. Following the story, the movies to be shown are Mexican Boy - the Story of Pablo, Miguel: Up From Puerto Rico, and Pancho. The program will be 40 to 45 minutes in length.

The story and films are presented as part of the activities for the Summer Reading Club. The theme for the Summer Reading Club is "Reading Makes the World Go 'Round'" and children ages six to fifteen are eligible to participate in the club.

There is no registration or charge for the story or films. Adults are requested to wait in the library for children attending the program.

The Great Neck branch is located at 1251 Bayne Drive in the Hilltop area of Virginia Beach.

For further information about the program call Robbin Farrar at 481-6094.

Beach ballet company to give free performance

The Virginia Beach Community Ballet Company will perform on Saturday, June 23, at Plaza Junior High School auditorium in Virginia Beach.

The program will include "Miss Taylor's Private School for Girls: Annual Outing," choreographed by Betty Jean Walker. This selection, first seen at the company's spring performance, earned warm praise for its charm and joie de vivre. "Boquet to Strauss," a classical selection to music by Johann Strauss, and "Les Deux," a contemporary piece to Katchaturian's music, have also been choreographed by Mrs. Walker for this performance.

"Ole," originally presented by the Harkness Ballet Company, has been staged for this performance by Dorothy Fiori after choreography by Vincent Nabreda. Ms. Fiori, who formerly taught at the New York City High School of Performing Arts and is now associated with the Poughkeepsie Ballet Theatre, is artistic advisor to the Virginia Beach Community Ballet Company.

"Pippin Diddy," a Chaplinesque piece, will be danced to music from the Broadway musical "Pippin." "Music Maker," a jazz number, is set to music by Reba Rambo. Both were choreographed for the company by Mary Peacock.

The program will begin at 8 p.m. and admission is free. For further information call 340-9783.

Summer fun awaits teens and pre-teens at recreation center

Many hours of fun-filled excitement will be occurring for teens and pre-teens this summer at the Virginia Beach Recreation Center-Kempsville. In addition to the daily events, special events have been planned to highlight the summer.

The summer schedule begins with a fishing rodeo for pre-teens, ages 6-12 years at Mount Trashmore Park June 26. This adventure will leave from the VBRC-Kempsville at 9 a.m. Youngsters are requested to bring a bag lunch and their own fishing tackle. Following the fishing rodeo a trip to Little Island Park, a beach park, is planned for July 6. This trip is for youngsters between the ages of 8-12 years. Lifeguards will be on duty.

Planned for July 5 at 11 a.m. is the All-American Dog Show. Youngsters ages 4-14 years can bring the family pooch to compete for the funniest, best behaved, smallest, best trick, and best dressed dog categories. All dogs must be at least 6 months of age, be on a leash and have all local required immunizations.

For further information concerning the pre-teen and teen program contact the Youth Services staff at VBRC-Kempsville, 800 Monmouth Lane or call 499-1281.

Twenty winks or deep sleep? With wildlife it depends on whether you're predator or prey

Humans spend about one-third of their lives sleeping. But what about other animals — how much sleep do they need? Most animals require sleep or rest each day, according to Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine, but some need to put in more hours than others.

Most long sleepers are predators, which hunt other animals for food, explains the National Wildlife Federation's monthly publication for children. Cats, for example, have few enemies, and may spend up to 16 hours a day napping. Bats, which sleep 20 hours a day, and opossums, which sleep up to 19, are among the longest sleeping predators. "These animals pack a lot of living into the few hours they are awake," notes Ranger Rick.

Some short sleepers are animals which have hooves, such as donkeys and elephants. Although they usually log about four hours each day, these animals can get by without any sleep for long periods of time, sometimes even months.

Animals which must always be on the alert for enemies sleep very little, out in the open where they can watch for danger. Wild donkeys, for example, sleep in open grasslands. Wild guinea pigs nap aboveground, as do rabbits, which doze lightly on and off — up to 20 short naps in one day.

When night falls, most birds sleep perched on tree branches, their feet locked into place, and their beaks tucked under their feathers until daybreak. Owls, of course, sleep by day, as do a few other birds.

Many birds have "slumber parties," says Ranger Rick. Quail roost on the ground in a circle with all their tails together. Goldeneye ducks sleep in tight, floating bunches on lakes and rivers on cold winter nights. Wrens and many other small birds sleep huddled together for warmth.

Reptiles also sleep, but amphibians and fish only "rest," explains Ranger Rick. That is, they are always slightly aware of what's going on around them.

Insects are also resters, rather than true sleepers. At night butterflies hang their heads down on blades of grass with their wings tightly folded. Wasps and bees also rest in the grass, while ants huddle together in their underground nests. When ants become active again, they stretch and shake their six legs, and open their mouths widely, as if they were yawning.

Are other animals the dreamers that people are? Insects, fish, and other animals that aren't true sleepers don't dream, says Ranger Rick. Nor do reptiles. Birds dream only for short times, but all animals dream.

Flea markets — a collector's paradise

There is one place that has something for everyone, whether they be young or old, buffs or collectors.

That place is a flea market, and there's going to be one this Friday and Saturday at the Virginia Beach Convention Center.

Believe me, no matter what you're looking for, your chances of finding it are good. There will be antique furniture and glassware, primitives, crafts, jewelry (estate and new) plants, novelties and many more items too numerous to list in this column.

Dealers will be coming from all over Virginia, including many locals, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, North Carolina and Maryland. This is not a junk show, but one well worth your time and money to attend.

Flea markets began many, many years ago in Europe. People from all over gathered in one place to display and sell their wares. (An early form of shopping centers and malls.) Even in California today they are a booming business. Known there as "Swap Meets," they are attended by multitudes of shoppers looking for bargains.

There is also much fun in store for people who like to find what the are looking for and "haggle" over the price. And there's the joy of walking away with a real bargain.

If you have any questions about your antiques write to us, and we will answer in this column as many questions as space permits. Write to: the Sun News, 138 Rosemont Rd, Virginia Beach, Va., 23452.

Locked up energy

One of the facts eventually tossed out in any discussion of energy problems is that there is enough energy locked up in America's coal deposits to last us for centuries. But what are we doing about it?

Operators of coal companies paraded before a Senate committee recently to report that millions of tons of coal are being stockpiled for lack of a market. Miners are being laid off. The industry expects to produce 700 million tons of coal this year but could produce 100 million more if there were a market for it.

For at least five years it has been a national goal to reduce oil imports by making greater use of alternate energy sources, but we have barely moved from square-one in solving the problems of mining and using our most abundant alternative.

There are too many risks to public health and the environment to pursue a nonhold-barred policy of digging coal and burning it in power plants and industrial operations. But the coal operators are making an important point. Environmental laws often forbid the use of coal because of an air quality "standard," not because coal-burning would create an identifiable air-quality problem.

That distinction could have a bearing on whether California and other energy short states have enough electricity in the coming decade. The remotely located coal-burning power plants now contemplated might create no public health problems, but they would still have trouble satisfying air quality standards that limit the discharge of pollutants into the air.

Eventually we can hope to see smoke-scrubbers efficient and economical enough to resolve that dilemma, and it is possible to tap the energy in coal without burning it. Methanol extracted from coal can be used as a clean-burning fuel for automobiles.

Until these technologies are applied we are caught in a strange anomaly — a nation with a desperate need to curb its appetite for oil, and wondering what to do with a surplus of coal.

Gamblers slow down

The high rollers in Las Vegas are concerned about the lack of action.

People aren't staying away because they are afraid of losing money. They're scared they won't make it home.

Las Vegas leaders currently are studying the practicality of importing their own gasoline, from abroad.

The idea has some merit. They could even go a step farther. Slot machines in the service stations.

A motorist would drive in with an empty tank, slip a coin in the slot, pull the handle and come up with three plums — enough gas to get to the store line.

Three bells would mean enough fuel to reach home and a clean windshield. And three bars would gain the jackpot — not only a tankful of fuel but a lube job, two tickets to the Raquel Welch show at Caesar's Palace, and a kiss from a six-foot showgirl.

Your tank runneth over.

A candidate's view

Ratepayer or stockholder — Who should pay for utility advertising?

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

The State Corporation Commission on Wednesday, June 7, issued a call to Virginians to present their views on public utility advertising.

Specifically, the SCC is interested in citizens' thoughts on two aspects of utility advertising:

1. Who should pay for the ads: ratepayers or stockholders?

2. How can advertising by a utility be divided into categories if the SCC allows some of the advertising as a proper business expense of the utility?

As a citizen, who, like most of you, writes a check each month to Veeco and to the telephone company and as a candidate for the Virginia Senate, I'd like to share my views on these questions.

Fundamentally, I believe that the costs of advertising by utilities should be borne by the stockholders of the utility and not by the ratepayers.

I recognize that the question is a complex one. The SCC has been studying this issue since 1975 and continues now to seek more information and more guidance from individuals, civic and consumer groups, and any other groups in the Commonwealth.

Advertising costs historically have been part of a successful free enterprise system and such costs, in normal business, have been reflected in the fiscal soundness of a business. Such costs are borne by the business and, where there are stockholders, ultimately by the stockholders in terms of what their stock in the business is worth.

I can find no valid reason why utility companies should not be required to treat their advertising, whether it is institutional advertising or advertising for a competitive product, as a cost of doing business and, as such, chargeable to the company and its stockholders. Not the ratepayers.

The customer of a utility company is already burdened with development costs of new methods and new plants when he or she receives a bill.

Because utilities in most aspects of their operations have no direct competition, it seems unnecessary to expect them to spend large sums on advertising and it seems very unfair to make the ratepayer responsible for such an optional expense.

The current advertising campaign by Veeco is an excellent example. Many of you have read newspaper ads, placed by the power company, on the necessity and benefits of nuclear power and nuclear plant development. While I am sensitive to the general public concern about nuclear plants since the tragedy at Three Mile Island and while I understand the desire of utility companies to explain their view, I do not believe that ratepayers ought to bear the costs of such advertising messages.

Again, I recognize that the issue is complex. As a candidate, I expect to explore with the proper utility company officials their views on this subject. I intend to do this to insure that my position represents the strongest possible position for the protection of the ratepayer and his or her pocketbook.

But until I am persuaded otherwise by facts presented by utilities, I am strongly opposed to ratepayers bearing the cost of utility company advertising.

I also have very definite thoughts, if the SCC should decide on how utilities should separate their advertising costs. While I oppose the ratepayer bearing any of the costs of advertising, I am aware that compromise is sometimes necessary for both sides of an issue.

Failing a straightforward decision by the SCC to have stockholders of utilities bear all advertising costs, I would propose the following, if necessary:

1. That the cost of all institutional or informational advertising be borne by stockholders of utilities.

2. That the cost of only advertising that is clearly designed to call attention to the benefits of a product or service, for which there are alternatives in the free-enterprise marketplace (an example might well be the cost of telephone instruments now available from both telephone companies and private enterprises) be chargeable to ratepayers.

It is my desire, as a candidate for the Virginia Senate, to always take stands that are consistent with the best interests of the citizens, both individuals and businesses, in the Commonwealth.

Just as the State Corporation Commission has requested expressions of opinion from the public on the matter of utility advertising costs, I request your views as your candidate.

My request is made especially to all residents who will vote in November for the next senator from the Eighth District. But I also extend this request to all interested citizens and to the appropriate representatives of the utility companies which could be affected by the SCC study.

Only in that way do I feel that I can make the best and most enlightened decision for the good of the greatest numbers of people in the Eighth District and in the state. Please send your views to: Bruce G. Murphy, State Senate Candidate, Eighth District, Post Office Box 1027, Virginia Beach, VA 23451.

Virginia Beach mayor signs proclamation to honor America

Virginia Beach Mayor Patrick L. Standing has declared the 21 day period from Flag Day, June 14, through Independence Day, July 4, as a time to Honor America. During this time period, Virginia Beach residents are called upon to hold public gatherings and activities in celebration of this country's heritage.

Sponsored by the American Historic and Cultural Society, Inc.,

Honor America is a program designed to remind Americans of the freedom they enjoy as a result of living in the United States. This society feels that in a time when millions of people are witnessing the destruction of freedom in other nations, it is appropriate that Americans take time to acknowledge the privileges of living in a democracy.

TIDEWATER COMMUNITY COLLEGE-VA. BEACH

Today College Counts

By Dr. William Bridges
Director of Continuing Education

Older adult peer counseling training

The Virginia Beach campus, in conjunction with Hampton Institute and Norfolk State College, has just completed a workshop for training older adults in peer counseling.

The project was conducted under Title I of the Higher Education Act, Continuing Education and Community Services. It is the result of research which indicates that about ten percent of the older adult population have needs for mental health services which are not being met. The use of peer counselors, people whose age and experience are similar to those who need counseling, has been found to be an effective way to meet their needs.

The sessions were attended by 27 participants from the Peninsula and Southside areas. Their ages ranged from 60 to 70. The participants all serve as volunteers in a variety of service agencies, and they will take their newly-acquired counseling skills back to those agencies to help people of their own age group with a variety of problems.

The training program, in which the participants attended five-hour sessions daily for a two-week period, covered areas of verbal and non-verbal communication, the counseling interview, group dynamics, empathic modeling, and community referral. In short, the participants learned how to listen to the problems of others and discover ways to help them find solutions. The program emphasized the development of practical skills through participative exercises.

All the participants reported favorable on their involvement in the program. In view of the project's success and the way it fits the needs of the community's older citizens, the Older Adult Peer Counseling Training Program will be offered again next year. The Virginia Beach campus Office of Continuing Education looks forward to repeating its participation in next summer's project.

No matter what your age or interest, Today college counts!

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Your number's up

By Harvey J. Ridinger, Field Representative

Evidence is required to obtain a number

Everyone who applies for a social security number must provide evidence of his or her age, identity, and U.S. citizenship or lawful admission status.

In addition, a person applying for a replacement card or changing his or her name or other recorded information must provide evidence establishing his or her identity.

Proper evidence of age is a public or hospital birth record established before age 5 or a religious birth record established before age 5.

Evidence of identity includes: Driver's license, State identity card, voter's registration, school record, report card, school identity card, marriage record, divorce decree, work badge, building pass, draft card, military ID, U.S. passport, U.S. citizen ID card, baby's hospital wrist band, newspaper birth announcement, baby book, adoption record, court order for name change, church membership or confirmation record, welfare case record, clinic, doctor or hospital record, vaccination certificate, insurance policy, day care or nursery school record, child's membership in Boy Scouts, or Girl Scouts or other youth organization, or any other document showing identifying data.

In addition a person 18 or older who is applying for a social security number for the first time must apply in person.

More information about applying can be found in the leaflet, "Applying for a Social Security Number." Free copies can be obtained at any social security office. The Norfolk Social Security office is on the 6th floor of the Federal Building, located at 200 Granby Mall, Norfolk. The phone number is 441-3201.

Beach business and real estate

By LIN J. COOPER
Director of Communications Tidewater Builders Association

A look at the city's survey: Limiting population growth

An interesting statement and an interesting response surfaced in Virginia Beach's recently unveiled report, "Civic Orientations Toward Selected Municipal Services." The survey posed eleven questions on policy including the following one:

The city government should attempt to limit the growth of the city's population to not more than 40,000 residents by the year 2000.

Of those polled, 65 percent agreed with this statement of policy; 24 percent disagreed and nine percent didn't know.

The Division of State Planning and Community Affairs has predicted that the population of Virginia Beach will be 432,000 by the year 2000. The Southeastern Virginia Planning Commission Water Study thinks the number will be 423,188. Either way, if those predictions hold true, the city's population will far exceed the 40,000 persons the majority of people polled thought was reasonable or desirable.

What conceivably might the city do to attempt to limit the population increase? Would it entertain ideas about asking residents to participate in some sort of voluntary, family limitation program? I seriously doubt it.

Would the city try to slow commercial or industrial development which might act to slow population ingress? Unlikely, since it has consistently voiced its commitment to this type of development. Could it just say, no more persons will be allowed to move here after such and such a date? That would be impractical not to mention downright unconstitutional.

What's left? What can you control that will limit population? Housing perhaps, and this leads to the question of what a municipality can reasonably do to control its growth rate by controlling its rate of land development.

Strengthening public control over the timing of the development of vacant land is desirable to most people. This is the basis of orderly, sensible growth. Being able to relate private development (housing, businesses, manufacturing) to public development (roads, schools, water, sewer, etc.) in some sort of comparable timetable goes to the heart of most land use plans.

This "sensible growth" should be distinguished from random growth which assures the continued sprawl of housing across the landscape and the excessive transportation, sewer, and other environmental costs that flow from this pattern of development. It should also be distinguished from crude "moratoriums" or other "no growth" policies that neither plan for nor commit public resources to support population growth. Virginia Beach has not fallen into either trap.

Some cities have tried various sorts of exclusionary policies in order to limit population growth. Most of them have been struck down by the courts.

Generally, the courts look askance at policies that encourage commercial or other types of growth but not residential growth. An example might be seen in the wooding of a major manufacturer at the same time the city has a moratorium on residential building permits.

The courts have also frowned on exclusionary policies that exclude certain income groups from housing. An example might be a policy of allowing only large-lot zoning in an attempt to hold down population density. Such a policy usually ends up being discriminatory, since only the wealthy can afford to buy. The Washington Post, in looking at the situation in suburban northern Virginia and Maryland, said, "No government has any business using its planning power to constrict the housing supply in order to filter out all but the most prosperous fraction of a growing population."

increases through housing contain a very real danger. That danger is that the children of today's homeowners, the children of the very respondents who participated in the Beach's survey, might well not be able to find a home in which to live when they reach adulthood. It has happened before in other parts of the country.

Finally, it has to be recognized that the problem of housing Virginia Beach's every increasing population won't fade away no matter how many artificial barriers are created. People migrate here because it's an attractive place to live. Trying to curb population growth through control of housing or land development raises serious legal and constitutional questions.

Gordon H. Glover

Easton appointed

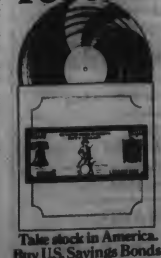

Dr. Richard Easton has been appointed jail physician effective July 1, succeeding Dr. Ira Hancock who will retire.

Virginia Beach City Council, which made the appointment Monday afternoon, also approved the appointment of a new assistant city attorney, R. J. Nutter III.

First Virginia promotes Glover

James F. Babcock, president of First Virginia Bank of Tidewater, announced the promotion of Gordon H. Glover, manager of the Kempville office to assistant vice president. Glover graduated from Old Dominion University in 1974 with a BS in business administration and joined the staff of the bank. After serving in various capacities within the bank, Glover was named manager of the Kempville office in 1977.

Prepare for a treat with 'Peach Know-How'

That "Queen of Fruits" -- the peach -- will make her seasonal debut in Virginia about the first of July, and this year's crop promises to be a good one. According to Division of Markets apple and peach supervisor, P.H. Dollins, Jr., with the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, there was plenty of moisture early in the growing season, making for big seeds which naturally produce big peaches. In fact, he said the size of the peaches should run larger than those of last year's harvest.

All in all, there will be ample supply of quality peaches to eat fresh and to can, freeze or preserve for next winter. Following are some "Peach Know-How" tips.

How many peaches?
1 bushel = 48 pounds
32-48 pints
18-24 quarts

1 lug box = 20 pounds
13-20 pints

2 to 3 pounds = 1 quart

1 pound peaches =
3 medium-size peaches
2 cups, sliced
1 cup pulp

8 medium-size peaches =
approximately 5 cups sliced, enough for 1 pie

Be a professional picker
When picking peaches, look for a creamy yellow to gold background color at the stem end which indicates eating quality fruit. Since the red blush on peaches will vary by variety, remember to look for that creamy background color.

A green tint in the background color means the peach is on the immature side. If picked in this condition, the fruit will never have the sweet flavor and juiciness of tree-ripened fruit.

For proper picking, it is best to "palm" peaches and give a slight twist upward. Using the fingers and "pulling" peaches off the tree bruises the fruit and tears the skin. Deterioration is rapid once the skin is torn or bruised.

Storage
Use tender loving care when handling peaches. They are ready to eat when they feel barely soft. Let firm ones soften at room temperature, uncovered. Store soft ones in the refrigerator.

Remember, when buying peaches in quantity, use soft peaches first. Sort carefully since spoilage spreads rapidly.

Peach tips-before you begin
1. Dipping small amounts of peaches in boiling water, then in cold water to remove skin (blanching) is not recommended for peeling peaches. Peaches are delicate fruit. Holding them in boiling water too long can cook the top layer of the peach, making its quality less desirable for canning.

However, if you do decide to blanch, lower a small amount of peaches into boiling water. The ratio of fruit to water should be such that the water doesn't stop boiling -- a pound of peaches to a gallon of water is a common proportion. The blanching time should be

Type and Variety	Peach varieties and uses
	Fresh	Canning	Freezing

Redhaven	Good	Fair	Exc.
YELLOW FREESTONE
Sunhigh	Exc.	Good	Good
Halehaven	Fair	Good	Good
Blake	Good	Good	Exc.

Redskin	Good	Fair	Good
Jefferson	Exc.	Good	Good
Rio-Oso-Gem	Good	Good	Good

NO LONGER THAN 15 SECONDS. Then immediately dip the fruit into the same proportion of cold water.

2. Crystalline or a powdered ascorbic acid mixture is added to fruit in order to prevent it from darkening. Peaches, whose skin has been removed, darken very quickly. Any type of citrus fruit juice such as orange or lemon juice (full strength) may be used to prevent this action.

However, it is usually more economical to purchase ascorbic acid under such brand names as "Fruit Fresh" and "Mrs. Wages."

An older but less effective method of preventing darkening is to drop peach halves or slices into water containing two tablespoons each of salt and vinegar per gallon of water. Peaches treated in this manner must be drained before packing.

3. Syrup consistency for canning and freezing:

Thin Syrup (30 percent) -- mix 2 cups sugar with 4 cups water or juice.

Medium Syrup (40 percent) -- mix 3 cups sugar with 4 cups water.

Heavy Syrup (50 percent) -- mix 4 1/2 cups sugar with 4 cups water.

Sugar improves the flavor and texture of canned peaches but can be omitted.

Basic preparation
Canning peaches

Wash peaches and remove skins. Cut peaches in halves; remove pits. Slice if desired. Add ascorbic acid according to package directions. Use thin, medium or heavy syrup to suit the sweetness of the fruit and family preference.

Raw pack -- Pack raw peaches in jars. Cover with boiling syrup, leaving 1/2-inch headspace. Remove air bubbles by running spatula or knife between jar and food. Adjust jar lids. Process in boiling water bath canner (212 degrees F.) -- Pint jars 25 minutes and quart jars 30 minutes.

Hot pack -- Heat peaches in syrup. Pack hot peaches in jars. Cover with boiling syrup, leaving 1/2-inch headspace. Remove air bubbles by running spatula or knife between jar and food. Adjust jar lids. Process in boiling water bath canner (212 degrees F.) -- Pint jars 20 minutes and quart jars 25 minutes.

Freezing peaches
Wash peaches and remove skins and pits. It is better not to blanch peaches that are to be frozen. Slice if desired.

Syrup pack -- Drop peaches into cold 40-percent syrup to which ascorbic acid has been added. Pack peaches into containers. Add syrup to cover. Place a piece of crumpled wax paper on top of the peaches to hold them under the syrup. Leave 1/4 to 1/2 inches headspace -- the smaller amount for wide-topped pint containers; the larger amount for narrow-topped quart containers. Seal. Freeze; store at 0 degrees F. or below.

Sugar pack -- Add 1/2 cup sugar and 1/4 teaspoon crystalline ascorbic acid dissolved in 1/4 cup cold water to each quart of prepared fruit. Mix well. Pack into containers leaving headspace as in syrup pack. Seal. Freeze; store at 0 degrees F. or below.

P.A. Plaza Garden Club hosts awards luncheon

The annual installation and awards luncheon of the Princess Anne Plaza Garden Club was held Saturday, June 2 at the Pine Tree Inn. Mrs. Dolores Moody, president presided.

Awards were presented to Mattie Snead for most points in flower arranging, and Virginia Swartz for horticulture. Doris Mozingo was the recipient of the Novice award for most points in flower arranging by a new club member. The Allegra Winters award for having the second most points in flower arranging went to Shirley Boon and Donna Buckman won the Allegra Winters award for outstanding work by a committee chairman.

The Reba McClanan award for the Hardest Working Club Member went to Jean Williams.

New officers for the club were installed in ceremony conducted by Jean Dunn. Each officer was presented with a corsage made by Mrs. Dunn and and Linda Etheridge.

The new slate of officers for the coming year are: Shirley Brendle, president; Shirley Boon, first vice president; Donna Buchman, second vice president; Dot Hamilton, recording secretary; Evelyn Eaton, corresponding secretary; Mattie Snead, treasurer; and Reba McClanan, parliamentary.

After the installation, Mrs. Dunn presented eight past presidents of the club with corsages. They were Dottie Goss, 1964-65; Roslyn Boxley, 68-69; Marion Froehner, 69-70; Reba McClanan, 70-71; Vi Barnes, 71-72; Allegra Winters, 73-74; Joan Forinash, 74-75; Margaret Colona, 75-76; JoAnn Cayea, 76-77; and Dolores Moody, 77-78.

More soil than usual up the wrong way for gets embedded in your vacuuming. Then use the shag carpets and rugs at risk to smooth the pile the this time of year. Use a opposite way so it has a shag rake to stand the pile grainy appearance.

Picking your own vegetables can be enjoyable, profitable experience

Higher retail food prices and the back-to-nature interest are only two reasons for consumers considering alternative food marketing outlets. One example of this is the increased popularity of pick-your-own operations. The Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services publishes yearly directories of farms participating in the pick-your-own programs. The current directory listing vegetable producers who sell pick-your-own or fresh-picked produce in the Commonwealth is available by writing to: Division of Markets, VDACS, 203 North Governor Street, Richmond, Virginia, 23219.

Should you decide to take advantage of this alternative food marketing here are a few suggestions to insure the experience will be enjoyable and profitable. First, check the directory information on produce available, ripening dates, days and hours open and location. The majority of farms have picking containers available but you will need to bring containers to take your "harvest" home. Sturdy pasteboard boxes or bushel baskets would be good.

Always, call before traveling to the farm. Ripening dates are approximate and one telephone call will dispel any doubts. Allow yourself ample time for travel and picking, and dress appropriately considering recent and present weather conditions. Before leaving your home estimate the quantity of produce you can properly handle. Locate all equipment, utensils and recipes for canning, freezing or preserving your fresh produce and arrange your schedule to process it immediately. Some growers will accept personal checks; however it is advisable to have cash on hand. Upon arrival at the farm heed signs and requests in regard to parking or other instructions. Talk with the grower if you have questions concerning the signs of maturity of the vegetables you plan to pick and how to pick them correctly.

If not posted, inquire the price per unit. Most vegetables are priced per pound with the exception of corn which is priced per dozen ears. Farms have field supervisors who will assign you a specific area in which you should pick. While picking, walk down rows, not across them, and handle all vegetables and plants with care.

If you keep in mind that you are a guest on a personal farm and should offer the same courtesies you would expect, your excursion will provide fond memories while you are enjoying the fruits of your labor this winter.

Bay fishing slows—Tuna off shore

By-Ed Lewis
Sun Outdoor Writer

As I told you last week, I wasn't going to let another day off go by without going fishing and I was true to my word.

Wednesday morning Dick Reinhart, Don Hartley, Buddy Barber, and Larry Wright accompanied me on a 21 mile trek from my dock in Great Bridge to the bay. We left at 4:30 a.m. and took our time. Willoughby Bay Marina didn't open until 7 a.m. and I wanted to top off my fuel tanks before entering the bay. We cruised along at 10 knots enjoying the early morning coolness and the sunrise along the inland waterway. That has got to be one of the most enjoyable parts of an all day fishing trip.

After fueling at Willoughby we decided to head straight for the Fourth Island to try and pick up a few grey trout and flounder. We arrived at 8:30 only to be greeted by dozens of boats clustered at both ends of the island. I had no desire to put the "Sharon Kay" in that mess, most of them were drifting into each other while they jigged for trout, so we decided to watch for a while to see how the action was going.

After about 45 minutes of drifting for flounder and only seeing a couple of trout caught we decided to set a course for the Concrete ships at Kiptopeake, and troll for blues while en route. We didn't get the first strike. I think a couple of my crew members who had not fished with me before were getting a little discouraged, but a good captain can always buy a little time as long as he has beautiful weather and a case or two of cold beer.

Upon arriving at Kiptopeake, we could see that the few boats there were having very little luck on the trout so I decided to break out the minnows and drift for flounder. We started drifting on the inside of the ships on the string farthest north. We were averaging two to three fish a drift, and sometimes we would bring in trout.

We were putting minnow on the bottom hook and strips of squid on top. The squid was attracting the trout and about half of the flounder we caught, however the larger flounder were caught on minnow (bull gudgeons).

Around 2 p.m. the wind started to pick up out of the southwest and the bay was getting a little rough, so we decided to head back to the shelter of the western shore. We had plenty of fish and enough beer to last the crew one day, and that early morning start had everybody including the captain eager for that 45 mile run back to Chesapeake to end.

As it turned out it appears we did pretty well because most of the areas in the bay reported things a little slow. The only real hot spot I could find was buoy 36 which is 10 miles north of Cape Charles. Emmitt Bailey of Bailey's Boat Works and his son, John Rogers of Cheriton caught an 8 1/2 lb. flounder and an 11 1/2 lb. trout there and brought them in to register them for citations at his place. Irving Wyatt of Cape Charles caught 56 lbs. of grey trout at buoy 36 and saw one boat that had 300 lbs. If you plan on going to buoy 36 be prepared for jigging in deep water.

Up at Wachapreague, April Mason told me the action has been great. Most of the charter boats have been bringing in around 100 flounder per boat. April's best news was the large catches of yellow fin tuna. She said that off shore boats were averaging 30 to 40 fish per boat with the largest so far weighing in at 42 lbs. That is some real heavy fishing.

Although Wachapreague has gained the fame for flounder, many of the channels between the barrier islands and the mainland of the Eastern Shore from Chincoteague to the Chesapeake Bay are yielding just as fine of flounder catches. So if you are adventurous you might want to find your own hot spot.

On this side of the bay the fishing piers are reporting things a little slow with the exception of crabs. I have reports of a few spot, croaker, trout and small flounder being caught but to be honest it is still a little slow for this time of the year.

At the Rudee Inlet Sport Fishing Center, Pat McGhee told me that her boats had been doing real well. She said that Albert Stone Jr. caught a 94 lb. citation bluefin tuna this weekend and that most of the boats have been averaging around eight fish per boat. She said the headboats are catching plenty of seabass and grey trout at the wrecks.

Down at Nags Head, Milton at Tatem's Bait and Tackle told me that the bottom fishing has picked up. Pier fishermen are catching plenty of spot, croaker, trout, blues and a few sea mullet. Milton said the beach fishermen are only having good luck on the croaker, with the exception of Oregon Inlet where they are catching plenty of small flounder.

On the fresh water scene Otis Nelson, at the Northwest River Campgrounds, told me that there are plenty of fish for those who know where to go and how to catch them but a lot of people come down there who really don't know what they are doing. They will catch a few fish but not like the regulars that frequent the area. These anglers on a slow day will catch a nice creel of fish.

Tackle care is probably one of the most overlooked aspects of fishing. All tackle requires some care and when used in salt water it should receive extra attention. After a day's fishing in salt water the rod and reel should be washed and dried before storing. Do not use hot water or too much pressure as it will remove the reel's lubrication. Reels, of course, should be lubricated periodically.

All lures exposed to salt water should be washed and dried before being returned to the tackle box, as well as your bottom rigs and hooks. Failure to take this precaution could result in corrosion and rust on the equipment and an inoperable reel. At today's prices it pays to take the time to care properly for your equipment.

If you are planning a fishing trip to Oregon Inlet here is a tide table for the week of June 22 through 28. The table is calculated for Oregon Inlet, to obtain Cape Hatteras subtract 41 minutes for high tide and 58 minutes for low tide. Have a safe fishing trip and be conservation-minded — don't litter or be wasteful.

Know your boat instruments

To enhance both the pleasure and safety of operating your boat, consider installing additional instruments on the dashboard.

You can find quite a variety of instruments at marine dealerships. And each one can impart some very useful information.

Before installing a new instrument, do read the instructions carefully.

Boating authorities warn that each type of instrument tends to have its own peculiarities.

If not properly installed, it can give incorrect readings.

Compasses, for example, are sensitive to steel cores inside the rims of molded plastic steering wheels.

The pickup tubes of speedometers tend to be sensitive to variations in water pressure or flow caused by being too close to propellers, or directly behind strips molded into boat bottoms.

Few people realize it, but the many small strands in electrical wire enable it to act much like a candle wick.

If one end of a wire is in a place where it is immersed in bilge water or receives a lot of spray, it can actually draw water into the vitals of an electrically operated instrument.

So, follow instructions! Before making a hole in a dashboard, look behind and make sure there is space to accommodate the instrument and that you won't foul any wires or cables already there.

Wildlife Federation receives grant to reduce toxic hazards in Virginia

The National Wildlife Federation (NWF) has received a $44,640 grant from the Virginia Environmental Endowment to support a year-long project to improve toxic substances regulation in Virginia. Matching funds of $24,560 will be raised by NWE.

"If we are to prevent future Kepone-like disasters, we must set up a system so that those chemicals having the greatest potential for hazard to people and the environment receive the greatest regulatory and public attention," said Kenneth Kamlet, an NWF attorney who will serve as project manager. Dr. Edward Segel, a chemist, will be the project coordinator.

In order to identify Virginia's most hazardous chemicals, NWF, with the help of the Virginia Environmental Endowment, will select a segment of a Virginia waterway for intensive study. With the assistance of law and science students from several Virginia universities, and of volunteer organizations, NWF plans to identify the chemicals being discharged into the selected waterway. These chemicals and their sources will then be ranked as to their hazard potential.

The NWF project will also identify river and harbor areas in Virginia which, because of the likely presence of toxic chemicals in bottom sediments, could be hazardous to public health and the environment. "As the Kepone situation dramatically illustrated," Kamley explained,

"bottom sediments can serve as long-term reservoirs of toxic chemicals and can contaminate the human food-chain and the food-chains of other important

Nolsy anglers can scare fish

Fish can "hear" sounds in the water through a dual system of nerve cells along the lateral line, plus an inner ear.

These two systems detect vibrations in the water that come from noises on the surface.

Knowing this, anglers need to be especially quiet when fishing from a boat because water amplifies sound and carries it a long way.

To get an idea of the noise-producing level of your boat, simply stick your head underwater and listen as a friend produces a few common sounds inside the boat.

A beverage can dropped inside a fiberglass boat by one group of fishing experts was heard loudly 60 feet away in a clear water lake.

And a tackle box scraped across the bottom of the hull could be detected at 40 feet.

Not all sounds bother fish. Outboard and electric fishing motors have little effect on fish so long as the sound is constant.

Some fish are even attracted to certain sounds. Lure manufacturers realize this and try to make products which produce sounds similar to those a fish might expect to hear from minnows or bait fish.

It pays to mute sounds inside your boat and to avoid unnecessary noise.

Wear rubber-soled sneakers, glue a piece of scrap carpet to the bottom of your tackle box, and don't throw things down inside the boat.

The result of these precautions will be improved fishing success.

A handful of Arctic lupine seeds holds the world's record for living in an inert state. The seeds began to sprout in a dish of warm water after lying frozen deep in the Arctic tundra for 10,000 years.

service being provided seven days a week from 8 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. An all-day pass, good for unlimited rides along the Oceanfront for one day from 2nd Street to 40th Street on Atlantic Avenue, is also available. It will cost 10 cents if purchased when a regular fare is paid, and 50 cents if purchased at the Oceanfront or when a regular fare is not paid.

Persons interested in obtaining further information about the Sunshine Special should call TRT at 623-3222.

TRT has also announced plans to begin a new bus route in Virginia Beach.

The new route, to be known as #36 - Independence, will provide service from Little Creek Amphibious Base along Independence Boulevard to Pembroke Mall and from there to Mt. Trashmore, Edwin Drive, and along Princess Anne Road to Carper Apartments, Tidewater Community College and the Virginia Beach Municipal Center.

Passengers on Route 36 will be able to make connections to other TRT routes at Pembroke Mall such as #20 - Virginia Beach Boulevard and the Sunshine Specials.

organisms. Kamlet said he hopes to work with Virginia regulatory authorities through the project.

The Virginia Environmental Endowment was created in 1977 after the Allied Chemical Corporation was fined $13.2 million for illegally discharging Kepone and other chemical wastes into the James River at Hopewell, Va. The fine was later cut to $5 million after Allied agreed to contribute $8 million to a fund to "enhance the quality of Virginia's environment."

The one-year project will build on the results of a current NWF toxic substances project being funded by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. At the conclusion of the Virginia project, NWF will recommend ways of strengthening Virginia's toxic substances program.

The mammal whose manner of sleeping and dreaming most closely resembles ours is the chimpanzee. There are some differences, however. After sunset, a chimp looks for a good firm place in a tree, such as a fork or a branch. Then the chimp bends down nearby leafy branches to make a nest, often grabbing at a handful of leafy twigs to use as a pillow.

Not our idea of a safe and snug bed, but it's perfect for a chimp's forty winks.

Boulevard expansion ok'd by city

Clayton Davis, owner of the Pinetree Inn, said that the proposed right of way would take 50 to 100 feet of his property. The restaurant, he said, has only an 18-foot setback on North Lynnhaven road which also is scheduled for widening.

He said the two businesses to the east of him, Mr. Jim's and a used car lot will be eliminated.

Since 1922, Davis said, the Highway Department has "nibbled" on his property in 12 to 25 foot segments totalling 75 feet. This time, the effect of the widening will destroy the property as a business site, he said. Each of the past losses in the property as a business site, he said. Each of the past losses in singly has not been sufficiently detrimental to the property, but Davis said that the accumulated effect has been drastic. In addition to the property loss, he said, there will be disruption in the traffic flow for six years during the construction.

"To ask and individual to make a sacrifice for the benefit of the community is one thing," he said, "to ask for something of questionable benefit is another thing." He said he shuddered to think about traffic from the parking lots of the businesses lining the Boulevard backing into traffic.

His recommendations were that an individual should not be required to make sacrifices for which there is no benefit to the community, that the road improvement be discontinued because it will encourage more traffic — a new east-west road would be better; that the council not be tempted because easy federal millions are available. He said the road would be more dangerous and that it may not be needed if the energy shortage leads to a reduction in traffic.

"Professionals can sometimes make mistakes," he said.

D.C. Blac, of 602 20th Street, said he had no interests on Virginia Beach Boulevard except as a taxpayer seeing his taxes constantly increase.

He suggested that if the city synchronized the lights on Virginia Beach Boulevard now, the wide road widening might not be needed.

John W. Fowler, representing the Thalia United Methodist Church, said that the small businesses between Newtown Road and London Bridge will have to close.

He suggested that "a lot can be done to improve the feeder lanes." Making a "U" turn, which will be necessary on the eight-lane road, will have to interfere with two lanes of traffic.

Fowler, a civil engineer, said the road would have no shoulders, detours would create a problem during the construction, and relocating utilities will further disrupt traffic.

He said closing businesses would mean a reduction in tax dollars and that the church did not want sound barriers in front of its property.

When asked by Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr. how he would improve the feeder roads, Fowler suggested walkways and one-way feeder road traffic.

McCoy said that one-way traffic was tried, but it didn't work. To Fowler's suggestion that the city get an opinion from another expert, McCoy said, "I don't see that's much of an argument. I thought the Highway Department had a bunch of experts."

Councilman John A. Baum said that "when we widen major highways a lot of people are going to be hurt. Strip commercial development brings major headaches."

Councilman Reid Erwin noted, "Some of us have gotten Welded into a position." He said without going into a long study, the council can get enough update for another opinion.

He said that the March public hearing was the first, and that if council had been told "we would spend two million before we got a look at it," the outcome of the 1972 resolution vote might have been different.

Ervin served on the council in 1972 which unanimously approved the resolution indicating the Beach's support of improving Virginia Beach Boulevard.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing, who has said that the road already has eight lanes counting the two, two-lane feeder roads, said that he hated "to guess how many alternates the State Highway Department had looked at."

Holland said that the attitude of the people about the road is, "I do not want it in my neighborhood."

Referring to Ervin's remark that council would be in error if it did not seek another opinion, Dr. McCoy said, "We're more in error if we don't get more east-west movement."

Merrick said that if he had been on council at the time the 1972 resolution was approved, he would have voted in favor of the project, but that after seeing the plans, he "would like to see a second opinion."

Hanbury said that the lights will be synchronized within 18 months and pedestrian crossings will be improved. He said that the state has reviewed "all alternatives."

In the 9-2 vote for the resolution, Ervin and Merrick dissented.

Easy checklist wipes out windshield cleaning problems

Several things can go wrong with your car's windshield cleaning system, but if you know what to look for, most are easy to find and fix.

Experts at ANCO, the windshield wiper people, offer this trouble-shooting checklist:

Switch on, nothing happens — Most wiper motors are electric. The motors, however, are extremely durable and seldom require repair or replacement. Check for a blown fuse, frayed wires, corroded terminals, or a broken switch.

Wipers on, but washer doesn't work — First check the reservoir to see that it is full. If the fluid level is low, fill with solvent to the proper level. Before filling, though, be sure the filter screen at the bottom of the tank is not clogged.

Check the spray nozzles for obstructions. If they're plugged, push a thin wire or straight pin through the opening.

Inspect hoses for leaks, breaks, or kinks. If there are obstructions, remove the hose ends from the spray nozzles or the pump, and blow air through them. If the air can't get through, free the clog by threading thin wire through the hose.

Look for a blown fuse or faulty electrical connections between the dash switch and the washer pump. If everything checks out to this point, you probably need a new washer pump. Replacement units are available at service stations and automotive parts stores. Installation is easy, using the instructions provided with each motor.

Wipers streak or smear — To remedy this problem, check the wiper blades or refills. If the refills are hardened or cracked, replace them. If they're in good condition, they and your windshield may be contaminated with an oily road film. Wash your windshield and blades with soap and water to remove the film.

Wiper blades chatter — "Chatter" can result from a variety of causes. Check to see that the wiper arm tip at mid-stroke is parallel to the glass. If it isn't adjust the arm to a parallel position by gently bending it with an adjustable wrench.

Chatter can also result from a permanent lip on the wiper caused by cold weather or age. Removing the blade and washing it in warm water or exposing it to warm air frequently solves the problem. If the condition still isn't corrected, replace the refil.

An improperly installed blade or refil can also cause chatter. Proper reinstallation will remedy the problem.

Obviously, it's wise not to wait for a problem to develop before checking your car's windshield cleaning system. Periodic checks and regular maintenance will help avoid problems and help ensure safe and trouble-free motoring.

Mortgage mischief

Preparation for home buying should include an awareness that public records are not infallible when it comes to reflecting the status of title to real property.

Although a search of records at the court house may indicate the title to a home is clear of problems, this may not be true. Mistakes can and do occur in the records. And, there are hidden hazards of land title that even the most thorough search will not locate.

In a midwestern state, a buyer of real property had completed his purchase when he was surprised to receive notification of a lawsuit to foreclose a delinquent mortgage. The action also included a substantial claim for punitive damages.

Before completion of the purchase, a title search of the public records had shown the mortgage to be released from the property. But subsequent investigation revealed the release document was a forgery, leaving the mortgage to continue as a valid claim against the property.

Under the owner's title insurance obtained by the buyer at the time of his transaction, the title insurer decided to pay the mortgage debt plus related costs to clear up the matter without financial loss to its insured.

As you learn the facts on home buying, remember that owner's title insurance is always based on a title search that makes it possible to point out hazards of record so they can be removed when possible and a transaction can proceed. Owner's title insurance includes protection against problems a search will not disclose—such as forged documents, mistakes in the records, claims by previously undisclosed heirs and others.

It's so easy...advertise the things you no longer need in the classified columns of your hometown newspaper. In practically no time at all, people in your neighborhood will know what you have to sell.

Complain effectively!

Each year people lose considerable sums of money by failing to complain effectively about defective goods and services. Knowing how to complain may one day make a big difference in your budget. Here are a few tips offered by the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute to help you obtain redress.

1. If you have a complaint, bring the item back to the dealer who sold it to you. Explain the problem and request that the dealer arrange for the repair. Be polite but firm.

2. If the dealer will not accommodate your request, write to the manufacturer's customer complaint department. Provide a detailed description of the product (model number, serial number, etc.), and enclose a photocopy of the check you wrote to pay for it and the register receipt if you still have it. Explain what transpired between you and the dealer.

3. If you speak to someone on the phone at the manufacturer's, keep a record of the person's name so you can refer back to the conversation at a later time, if necessary.

4. If the problem is not resolved at this level, write to the Consumer Complaint Department of the Attorney General's Office in your city or state capital. You may also wish to contact your city or state Department of Consumer Affairs.

You deserve what you pay for. Reputable stores value your continued patronage, and reputable manufacturers stand behind—and want you to be satisfied with—their products.

It's a fact!

In the United States, where people of legal drinking age actually drink less than most Europeans, drinking is a pleasant social custom, rather than a problem, for most people.

Although the U.S. has the greatest amount of discretionary income in the world, it ranks 23rd among nations in estimated per capita consumption of alcohol. Every year Americans devote less of their incomes to distilled spirits.

beach military update

Smith

Marine Private Casey Smith, son of Sara J. and Carol C. Smith Jr. of Alanton Drive, Virginia Beach, has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C.

During the ten and one-half-week training cycle, he learned the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline were emphasized throughout the training cycle.

Van Horn

Michael A. Van Horn, son of Hubert P. and Jung M. Van Horn of Whispering Waters Way, Virginia Beach, has been commissioned a Navy Ensign and received a Bachelor of Science degree upon graduation from the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md.

As a midshipman at the Academy, he underwent four years of extensive study of engineering, mathematics, physical and marine sciences, management and government. In addition to an active physical fitness curriculum, he studied military justice, leadership and Naval history and completed a variety of elective courses leading to his baccalaureate.

He is a 1975 graduate of Osbourne Senior High School, Manassas, Va.

Tata

Robert M. Tata, son of Robert and Jeraldine M. Tata of Gleneagle Drive, Virginia Beach, has been commissioned a Navy Ensign and received a Bachelor of Science degree upon graduation from the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md.

As a midshipman at the Academy, he underwent four years of extensive study of engineering, mathematics, physical and marine sciences, management and government. In addition to an active physical fitness curriculum, he studied military justice, leadership and Naval history and completed a variety of elective courses leading to his baccalaureate.

He is a 1975 graduate of Kempsville High School.

Koller

Navy Senior Chief Machinist's Mate Wayne F. Koller, son of Virginia Hardin of Broad St., Virginia Beach, recently participated in exercise "Solid Shield-79."

He is a Crewmember aboard the amphibious transport dock USS Shreveport, homeported in Norfolk.

"Solid Shield-79" was the 17th in a series of annual land and sea exercises designed to emphasize command and control of military forces. The exercises simulated military action between land, sea and air forces and included an airborne assault, naval mine warfare, harbor control, runway repair and tactical air support operations.

Koller joined the Navy in October 1963.

Stephenson

Parks E. Stephenson III, son of Elizabeth D. and Parks Stephenson Jr. of Meighan Drive, Virginia Beach, has been commissioned a Navy Ensign and received a Bachelor of Science degree upon graduation from the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md.

As a midshipman at the Academy, he underwent four years of extensive study of engineering, mathematics, physical and marine sciences, management and government. In addition to an active physical fitness curriculum, he studied military justice, leadership and Naval history and completed a variety of elective courses leading to his baccalaureate.

Summer programs provided him with an opportunity to gain professional experience aboard naval vessels and at Navy and Marine Corps shore installations.

He is a 1975 graduate of Kempsville High School.

Palo

Pvt. Jeanne M. Palo, daughter of Alex Palo Sr., Windemere Ct., Virginia Beach, recently completed, with highest honors, a patient administration specialist at the Academy of Health Sciences of the U.S. Army, Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Students were trained in preparing and maintaining Army medical records and reports. Instruction included basic administration, and introduction to medical science, social dynamics, and dental terminology.

Palo entered the Army in June of last year.

Being a Navy Photographer's Mate does not mean spending all day in studio or darkroom. Petty Officer Marc Bizzell has found the adage "a good photographer is never seen" holds especially true in field exercises. Not only will this practice enable him to get some good pictures, but it may save his life in a real combat situation.

Son of Virginia Beach couple in a picture perfect job

GUANTANAMO BAY, Cuba -- Located on the southeastern shore of this Caribbean island is a 45-square-mile piece of property consisting of palm trees, rocks, sand, cactus, scrub brush, iguanas, and sailors, all of which may become targets for the lenses of Marc F. Bizzell.

Bizzell is a Navy Photographer's Mate Second Class. He is assigned to the base photo lab where duties range from identification card portraits to aerial reconnaissance photos.

He may be called upon to photograph an awards ceremony, make a record of damaged parts or take pictures for an historical document. But photography is only one form of visual craft Bizzell is involved in.

Bizzell is a 1974 graduate of Kellam High School, in Virginia Beach. He was as interested in sports as most boys growing up; he played on local little league baseball, basketball and football teams. But Bizzell found more pleasure in forms of expression that were artistic and creative. His real talent was in ceramics and painting.

"Marc was always Marc," says his father, Norwood W. Bizzell Jr., a minister at the Rock Church in Kempville. "He was the architect of the family, his room was always full of models. He was always building something artistic." Mr. and Mrs. Bizzell reside on Onondaga Rd. in Virginia Beach.

His father retired after 22 years in the Army, and went into full time ministry. The Navy, however, seems to have been young Bizzell's fate from the start. His Army father smiled as he told the story, "We were on our way to California and we had stopped in Jacksonville, North Carolina to visit friends when Marc came along. The Marine base, Camp Lejeune, was almost across the street from where we were staying."

"Marc wasn't going to wait. He was born in the Navy hospital there."

Norwood Bizzell and his wife are planning a missionary trip to Germany this fall.

"We tried to teach Marc to thank God for whatever situation he found himself in," Mr. Bizzell said. And the young Bizzell has done just that.

Guantanamo Bay does not offer everyday-to-day necessity or luxury of life Bizzell enjoyed while living in the United States, but he's not living in total isolation.

Guantanamo is self supporting and has been since 1964 when the Castro government cut off the water and electricity supplied by Cuba. A seawater conversion plant, capable of producing 3 million gallons of fresh water daily, also provides 25,000 kilowatts of electrical power.

The base has a modern, fully equipped hospital, dental services, a color television station, AM and FM radio stations, a bowling center, several free movies daily, restaurants, one commissary (supermarket) and two base exchanges (retail stores).

Petty Officer Bizzell said he likes it on "the Rock" because of the year round tropical climate and because Cuba "has some of the best scuba diving in the world."

"Gitmo duty has its advantages," Bizzell said. "It makes you appreciate what you left back in the states even more."

Bizzell is married to the former Lori Butts of Pensacola, Fla., and they, along with their six-month-old son Christopher, are enjoying their time on the island.

"My wife was looking forward to coming here," Bizzell said. "She was glad we could be together. She seems to like the 'small town' atmosphere that the base here gives us."

Petty Officer Bizzell still hopes to visit many of the surrounding islands while stationed in Cuba. Rest and relaxation flights are available to base residents who wish to spend a weekend in Jamaica, Puerto Rico or Haiti.

According to his father, Bizzell maintains strong spiritual convictions and applies them to his naval career and his tour in Guantanamo Bay.

ASNC publisher retires after 52 years

Time for retirement has come for Fred L. Jack Robinson, editor and publisher of military-oriented periodicals for more than five decades and probably the dean of such publications in America. Robinson, best known as Jack among his friends and associates--and they are legion--chose July 1 as the date he will retire, approximately 2 1/2 months before his 70th birthday, October 31.

For the past fourteen years, Jack has administered the Armed Services Newspaper Corporation, which publishes the monthly Navy News, Army News, USAF News, USMC News, National Veterans News, and Armed Services.

After his retirement, Jack plans to become a voluntary advisor to the Non-Commissioned Officer's Association. He will also be working on his memoirs of the World War II era, during which "Fred L. Jack Robinson" was a well known byline among far flung newspapers affiliated with the International News Service.

As an INS correspondent, Jack covered many of the domestic news happenings of the period. He frequently accompanied the then Secretary of the Navy, Frank Knox, on his inspections of military bases here and elsewhere.

Jack was a familiar figure in the coterie of newsmen privileged to interview surviving crew members of merchant ships sunk by German U-Boats during World War II. Upwards of 125 such interrogations were held in the Norfolk area alone during the war years.

A native of Greenville, S.C., he entered the Navy in 1926 at Patterson, N.J. He did his recruit stint at Newport, R.I. The ensuing quadrennial which intervened before Jack returned to civilian life were memorable years.

Once recruit training was behind him--and almost as quickly as you could say "Jack Robinson"--Jack was an official correspondent of Our Navy, the highly respected service magazine.

Later, he was on the U.S. Navy Review staff of writers and proved quite adept at furnishing that publication with sports items of interest to its readers.

Jack not only wrote Navy sports news in those days, but made it. He fought 42 bouts as a lightweight pugilist and won most of them. In earlier years, Jack liked to kid around about his "fighting days" by saying he set a new Navy record in not ever answering the bell for the "second round." That simply isn't true.

Upon leaving the Navy, Jack went to work for George L. Carlin, best known publisher of service periodicals in that era. He soon branched out, founded Navy Sports News, later absorbed U.S. Navy Weekly before expanding his publishing ventures into Navy Pictorial News.

A "hail fellow well met," Jack has always found time for worthwhile civic and other pursuits. Aside from his Navy exploits, Robinson was a member of the Douglas MacArthur Academy Endowment Fund and athletic commission. During the Vietnam War, he was associated with the Forrestal Memorial Trust Fund, contributions to which were acknowledged in Navy News and other publications. Over $80,000 was raised for the education and welfare of children of the 134 crew members who died in the disastrous fire aboard the carrier in the Bay of Tonkin.

In 1974-75, Jack served as Senior Commodore for the Virginia Boating Association, which represents 120,000 registered boat owners in the state. During this time, he also founded and published Boating News.

He has been active in various Chamber of Commerce organizational pursuits and is a former Little League manager.

Now at the apex of an interesting career, Jack credits much of his success in later years to his wife, Lillian Surman Robinson, a former "Miss Portsmouth". He has two grown children, Linda Lee Luskin; and Casey F. Robinson with the Virginia Beach Fire Department.

Today, Navy News has its headquarters at the Navy News Building, 2403 Virginia Beach Boulevard, Virginia Beach.

Beach briefs:

Ferrell takes no chances, votes against ordinance

Councilman George R. Ferrell is taking no chances. He isn't about to approve an ordinance which permits people to go topless in the City of Virginia Beach.

With the ERA Equal Rights Amendment Organization campaigning for equality, that could mean females could go topless, he said.

So Monday evening he cast the sole vote against an ordinance which repeals a law making it unlawful for "any person over ten years of age to appear on the west side of Atlantic Avenue in the Borough of Virginia Beach, in bathing trunks, without being clothed in some additional garment which substantially covers the upper portion of the body."

Ferrell said that he had received two or three calls about the agenda item from people who were concerned that girls would be going around with no tops.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing said that the "ordinance is past its time" and includes an area to Kempville Road.

City manager George L. Hanbury said there are other sections of the code, which address themselves to the possibility of females going topless. "We have a decency code."

"What about the ERA?" Ferrell asked, and voted against the change.

Beach is "far ahead" with program for aged

The City of Virginia Beach has been awarded a $27,214 grant from the National Institute of Mental Health of the Department of Health Education and Welfare to provide training for 20 community leaders, 11 City Council members and 12 Mental Health Services Board members.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said that Virginia Beach is one of two cities receiving the grant "because we have a Mayor's Committee on the Aged."

Mayor Patrick L. Standing said, "If you compare our program for the aged, the handicapped and youth, you'll find we're far ahead."

Garage apartments voted down

Fearing a proliferation of garage apartments, Virginia Beach City Council voted down 8-3 an ordinance which would permit garage apartments as a conditional use in the A-1 Apartment District.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said that the purpose of the ordinance is to make garage apartments, which have existed since before the Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance went into effect, legal. They are now non-conforming uses and as such, Hanbury said, may have difficulty obtaining a loan for renovation.

City planner Robert Scott, said that the ordinance actually affects only the Beach borough where a large number of garage apartments are in deteriorating condition. He said that the advantage of the ordinance is that they might be put back in good repair with more accessible credit.

Councilman Clarence A. Holland said that the ordinance seemed to encourage garage apartments while he would rather discourage them.

The change was suggested by the Planning Department and recommended by the Planning Commission. At present garage apartments are allowed in the R-8 Residential District as a principal use and R-7 Residential District as a conditional use.

As a conditional use, council would still have to approve the apartment.

Voting against denial were Councilwoman Barbara Henley, Councilman J. Curtis Payne Jr. and Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr.

Programs provide jobs for youths this summer

Over 400 youths are working this summer in programs operated by three non-profit organizations, the Southeastern Tidewater Opportunity Program, the YMCA and the Concerned Athletes In Action.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said that organizations are providing jobs normally administered by the city, in the 1979 Summer Youth Employment Program.

STOP is overseeing the youth in jobs in Seatack and Dam Neck, areas nearer their home, eliminating the transportation problem.

The Y is working with Ben Moore, Industrial Development Director, in clean community activities.

Athletes in Action have youth working in the Beach area, cleaning up, building sand fences, rebuilding the dunes, and planting core grass.

Boardwalk composition

An aerial view of the 24th annual Boardwalk Art Show reveals the swarm of activity the event generated in Virginia Beach last Thursday through Monday. A mixed-media work by Walter Gode III was named Best in Show. Awards of excellence went to eight other artists: Nancy Stineoff, Corliss Abbott, Peggy Simmons, Jeanne Brady, Madeline Poir, Roy Ray, Ray Bess and Sobek Wilson. Over 150 artists exhibited their works in the show, which netted $277,622.74 in sales.

New water rates approved

New water rates in Virginia Beach, effective July 1, will be approximately 4.2 cents per 1,000 gallons of water higher.

City Council Monday evening approved the new rate schedule to absorb the 4.2 cent increase on water sales to the city by the City of Norfolk beginning on April 13.

Virginia Beach held off passing the increase to its customers until July 1.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said the minimum water usage fee of $2.50 a month remains the same, but that an increase in the minimum would be considered with the next rate schedule.

New rates are:

For 0-4,000 cubic feet, $.705/11 cubic feet (from $.67 or $.942/1000 gallons).

For 4,001-40,000 cubic feet, $.69/100 cubic feet (from $.66 or $.922/1000 gallons).

For 40,001 and above cubic feet, $.675/100 cubic feet (from $.64) or $.902/1000 gallons.

Bad debts acquired with the purchase of the Norfolk water system in Virginia Beach in 1972 should be completely written off with City Council's charging off of $344,326.42 in delinquent accounts.

City Manager George L. Hanbury told council Monday evening that he thinks that all of the city's unpaid utilities accounts will be written off with the resolution authorizing dropping the accounts as uncollectible, approved Monday evening.

He said that the total represents 2.48 percent of the total billings of the Utilities Department and that he did not anticipate a large amount of uncollectibles in the future.

Some of the bills represent double billings, but the largest were left by people who moved and left no forwarding address. Some of the bills, as low as $1, are too small to try to collect through legal action.

Council also approved writing off a total of $28,192.57 in uncollectible accounts from other departments. Collection has not been possible, Hanbury said, because parties have moved away, businesses have been closed, documenting charges have been incomplete or duplicate or erroneous charges were made.

Departments involved include Planning, Police, Animal Control, Public Works and Finance/Insurance.

Catamarans, swimmers scramble for beach

The catamarans, 30 or 40 of them, lined up on each side of 69th Street are a beautiful sight — to catamaran aficionados.

But to the residents and vacationers of the area who want a place in the sun and room to swim safely in the water, they are a problem.

Like other problems at the beach, the concentration of catamarans in one area is not one to be resolved easily. It's a matter of everybody wanting to be on the same strip of beach at the same time.

Councilman Reid Ervin brought up the matter because he said a fair number of older people live in the area.

Nobody suggested banning the cats — just dispersing them, but the boat owners are attracted to the site by the flat entrance to the beach.

City Manager George Hanbury said that one year the city got immediate action by ticketing all the boats. Another time the city tried to restrict the boats to a zone like surfing.

David Grochmal, assistant to the city manager, has been working with the people involved in an effort to come up with a plan which will be agreeable to everybody.

Hanbury said he also wants to go ahead with plans to clear debris from the surfing area around the former steel pier so that surfers can return to the area. He said he didn't think the city should wait for an opinion from the attorney general to determine who is responsible for cleaning up the debris.

He said that he has talked to the Marine Resources Commission and to the attorney general. Hanbury said that the pier owner was supposed to have dug down below the ocean bottom to cut out the piers, but Hanbury doesn't think he did this.

The city plans to scrape the bottom, at a cost of $10,000 to $15,000 and expects to finish the job in five or six working days with favorable winds. Northeast winds have slowed down work in the area.

Life-saving effort makes heroes of two Beach men

Robert Hodges and Leo Olivarez are heroes. The two framed citations said they were and the father of one of the boys they saved said they were. And the presence of the boys, alive and well, was testimony enough.

Only Hodges and Olivarez didn't seem quite sure that they had done anything.

After brief ceremonies in the Virginia Beach Council Chambers Monday evening honoring the two, Hodges said, "It was something that had to be done."

Olivarez agreed. Hodges, a resident of 925 Clubhouse Road, King's Arms Apartments, on May 22 was called by his wife who had witnessed an accident on Lynnhaven Parkway at Dozier's Creek Bridge.

Hodges called his neighbor, Olivarez and went to the car which had overturned into the creek under the bridge.

They went into the water over their shoulders and pulled out Randy Pope from the front seat and Tom Cali from the back seat. Both were administered artificial respiration, were taken to the hospital by the Rescue Squad and survived.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing presented each man with a certificate for their life-saving effort and council passed a resolution in their honor. The Virginia Beach Safety Council also presented the men with an oversized framed citation. Nick Pope, father of Randy Pope, publicly thanked the men who were responsible, he said, for saving both boys, who were also in the council chambers.

Attendance lags at p.m. meetings

Only a handful of people showed up for Virginia Beach's Monday night council meeting, its first since the fourth Monday in May and its last until the fourth Monday in August.

The once-a-month council meetings were started about a year ago for the convenience of people who could not get to the afternoon meetings.

Monday evening Councilman George T. Ferrell asked whether the one-year trial period was up yet.

Ferrell, who hasn't been enthusiastic about night meetings but went along with the rest of council in establishing the trial period, said Monday he wasn't "crazy about them."

Councilman Reid Ervin asked that the records be checked to find out exactly when the one-year trial period is up. Then, he said, council might get impressions from the public. "If the public is not all that interested, we will go back to day meetings."

Other night meetings have attracted large numbers of people. Monday's agenda items, which contained few controversial items of general interest, were apparently responsible for the small turn-out this month. As one Councilman noted, even the press showed up in small numbers and there was no TV coverage at all.

Planetarium takes you on journey through space in July

The Virginia Beach City Public Schools Planetarium public program for July will be "From Mercury to the Asteroid Belt." The program will begin with "The Origin of the Solar System" which presents the popular theories concerning the formation of the solar system. It further suggests how the planets may have been evolved, and how life may have begun on Earth.

The final part of the program is presented as a Journey through space from Earth to Venus and Mercury, and back out to Mars and the asteroid belt. Included are illustrations of possible bases on the moon, Mars, and the asteroids.

Planetarium hours are: Sunday: 7 to 8 p.m., July 1, 8, 15, and 29; Tuesday: 7 to 8 p.m., July 3, 10, 17, 24, and 31. There will be no program on Sunday, July 22.

The planetarium seats 120 people and is easily accessible from the 44 toll road by taking the Lynnhaven Exit to Lynnhaven Parkway and turning right at the first street, South Lynnhaven Road, to Plaza Junior High School, where the planetarium is located.

Telephone the main office at Plaza Junior High School, 486-1971, for reservations. Admission free; children under age 12 may be refused admission unless accompanied by a mature person.

Posidia Institute announces summer class schedule

Posidia Institute has announced its summer classes, to be held at the Institute offices, 508 N. Birdneck Road, Virginia Beach, throughout July and August. The summer program emphasizes Posidia's ongoing involvement with research, investigation, documentation and dissemination of information on all aspects of the science of parapsychology.

The first week's seminar, July 2 through 7, is described as a "Well Person Clinic," utilizing doctors, counselors, chiropractors and educators to design a health-giving program of prevention and cure for the individual. The second week follows on with "Counseling for Personal Growth," an intensive experience in self-analysis guided and directed by Posidia's professional counselors.

Then comes a detailed examination of the family unit, including the one-parent family, creative parenting, and working with infants. "Creativity and Dreaming are explored in a further week."

The fifth week sees the introduction of a new Psychic Development class designed especially for children. This is followed, the next week, by a more detailed Introduction to Psychic Development for adults. Then comes Advanced Psychic Development, and the summer ends, as it began, with a Well Person Clinic.

The special summer schedule supplements Posidia Institute's regular eight and twelve week classes in Integrative Group Therapy, Psychic Development, Belly Dancing, Astrology, Yoga and Tai Chi.

Complete details of all schedules, together with registration forms, may be obtained from the institute or by calling 425-0715.

Think slim

Chicken is popular among calorie conscious

Tried on last year's bathing suit yet? Or are you having to purchase another, not because last year's wouldn't do, but because winter's excess calories are showing more than you'd like? At any rate, it's that "think slim" time of the year. For most, though, "thinking slim" is a watchword all year long with more awareness of health and physical fitness.

One of the easiest ways to watch calories and enjoy is by meeting a friend — the Calorie Conscious Chicken. Chicken contains fewer unwanted calories than most popular meats. When the skin is removed a 3 1/2 ounce serving of broiled chicken has only 136 calories. And, it is high in body-building protein since this service contains 31.2 grams of 52 percent of the average adult daily requirement. Today's broiler-fryer chicken also contributes other valuable nutrients. Among them are vitamin A, thiamine, riboflavin, niacin, iron and phosphorus.

Chicken is lower in fat than other meats. Compare the 9 grams of fat found in 3 ounces of broiled chicken with skin, to double and triple the amounts in equal portions of other meats. Even chicken skin contains only about 17 percent fat and that is a small amount for the flavor it offers. If cholesterol is a factor, two-thirds of the fat that is present is unsaturated.

Versatility and satisfaction can sum up the good things offered by chicken. For those watching calories, monotony is something with which to be dealt. But with chicken, a slight change of seasoning produces an entirely new taste. After all, when satisfying hunger pangs, it is nice to know that chicken is there supplying nutrients that do more than "just fill."

Team chicken with a bounty of low-calorie vegetables and herbs and spices for pleasant weight watching.

The Great Commission Company

Christian musical group appears at Community Chapel

The Great Commission Company, a contemporary Christian musical group, will appear at the Virginia Beach Community Chapel, 1261 Laskin Road, Virginia Beach, at 7 p.m. Sunday, July 1.

Sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ International, the group of vocalists and instrumentalists travels throughout the United States and Canada performing in churches, on military bases, before student groups and at mass rallies.

The Great Commission Company launched its ministry at EXPLO 72, a conference of 80,000 sponsored by Campus Crusade in Dallas, Texas, in June 1972. After the initial performance in Dallas, the group began to tour regularly.

In 1976, Campus Crusade consolidated all of its North American based choral groups under the Great Commission Company name. Thus, one New Folk group, three solo performers and four companies are based in the United States, with one company in Canada.

Besides touring in North America, each of the five Great Commission Companies performs a yearly international tour. The companies are part of Campus Crusade's music ministry which comprises musical groups in North America, Asia and Europe.

Know your limit during holiday week

Holiday travelers must be alert to the hazards of alcohol and know their limit to avoid highway mishaps this Fourth of July.

"One of the greatest dangers on the highway is the careless motorist who mixes drinking with driving," according to John T. Hanna, director, Virginia Department of Transportation Safety. "Some seven of every 10 motorists on the road consume alcoholic beverages. But, few motorists realize a driver's ability becomes impaired before reaching a blood alcohol concentration (BAC) of .10 percent, the presumptive level of intoxication in Virginia. After four or five drinks most motorists' BAC levels reach this percentage and the chances of being involved in a crash increase seven times."

To combat this problem, the Department's Virginia Alcohol Safety Action Program (VASAP) and participating Alcoholic Beverage Control stores are distributing "Know your limit" litterbags during the Fourth of July holiday period.

The bright yellow litterbags are printed with colorful BAC charts which show the number of drinks an individual of a specific weight can consume in a two hour period and still drive safely.

"It takes approximately one hour for 1.0 oz. of 80 proof liquor, 12 oz. beer or 5 oz. wine to be eliminated from the bloodstream. Drinkers must use good judgement and limit their alcohol intake to a maximum of one drink per hour to prevent highway crashes," said Hanna.

Last year a total of 23 fatalities occurred during the four-day Fourth of July holiday period. Motorists can prevent such tragedies by driving defensively, realizing the danger of alcohol abuse and planning ahead for a sober individual to take the wheel when others are drinking.

"Why not pick up a free litterbag at a participating ABC store or ASAP office for the Fourth of July and use it in your vehicle as a safety reminder?" suggested Hanna. "Knowing your own personal limit and staying within it will make the holiday safer and more enjoyable for everyone."

No safety in fireworks, warns Society for the Prevention of Blindness

An estimated 6,139 Americans were treated in hospital emergency rooms for fireworks-related injuries last year, according to the National Society to Prevent Blindness (NSPB), Virginia Affiliate.

With the Fourth of July approaching — the prime time for use of fireworks and other pyrotechnics — the society has issued a warning that all kinds of fireworks are a threat to life and limb, especially to eyesight.

"Eye damage accounted for some 20 percent of last year's reported injuries from pyrotechnics," Roland L. Pitts, president of the Virginia Affiliate pointed out. "This figure represents only a fraction of actual injuries since there is no way to estimate how many were treated in doctors' offices, at home or by direct hospital admission," he added.

"All fireworks — ranging from bottle rockets and firecrackers to punks and sparklers — are harmful to the eyes. Seemingly harmless sparklers burn at heats exceeding 1500°F," Pitts said.

Since children are most often the victims of injuries from fireworks, the society advises parents to keep even the smallest firecrackers away from them. "Almost 60 percent of the fireworks-related eye injuries reported last year were suffered by children under the age of 15. With the cooperation and supervision of concerned parents, such unfortunate — and needless — accidents can be avoided this year and in the future," Pitts asserted.

For many years, the NSPB has urged that the use of all fireworks be restricted to licensed public display. This recommendation has already been enacted into law in many states and municipalities. Still, bootleg fireworks regularly appear on street corners and in under-the-counter sales.

Awards presented to Beach students

Two Virginia Beach residents attending the Medical College of Virginia at Virginia Commonwealth University were recipients of awards at MCV's recent Medical Students' Honors Day.

Receiving awards were Bruce A. Kahan and Nelson M. Karp. Kahan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Kahan of Virginia Beach. Karp is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Karp of Virginia Beach. Each received a Merck Scholarship of $1,050.

Stagg earns degree in theology

Arthur Joseph Stagg Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stagg Sr. of Virginia Beach, recently graduated from Southern Missionary College, Chattanooga, Tennessee, with a major in theology.

Ford earns B.A. in Florida

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren W. Ford, 441 Good Speed Road, Virginia Beach.

Randolph-Macon announces grads

Local students in the 1979 graduating class at Randolph-Macon College are as follows:

Bachelor of arts — Elizabeth Boykin Baldwin, psychology; Patricia Lynn Callaway, political science; John Stuart Correll, biology.

Bachelor of science — Hal Westley Breedlove, biology; Horace Lafayette Butler II, mathematics/computer science; John Allen Fears, economics and business; Jules Adrian Stern, political science.

Denison awards degree to Marshall

Elizabeth G. Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Marshall Jr., 45th Street, Virginia Beach, has received the bachelor of science degree with honors and a major in biology from Denison University in Granville, Ohio. She was named to the dean's list during her sophomore and junior years. During her senior year she served as a Biology Fellow and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa national scholastic honorary. She was a member of the editorial staff of the "Denison Journal of Biological Science".

Hahn scholarship goes to Virginia Beach students

Virginia Tech's College of Engineering has awarded Marshall Hahn Engineering Scholarships for the 1979-80 school year to Steven D. Grove and Susan Marie Ailes of Virginia Beach.

Hurd accepted at Marietta

John W. Hurd, a 1979 graduate of Kempville High School, has been accepted at Marietta College. His acceptance to the four year liberal arts college was based on his high school scholastic record, performance on national college entrance examinations, and recommendations from counselors and teachers.

Active in school where he served on the staff of the school's paper, Hurd is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hurd, Astor Lane, Virginia Beach.

Motyca accepted at D & E

Margaret J. Motyca, a former graduate of First Colonial High School, has been accepted for admission to Davis & Elkins College, West Virginia, for the fall term beginning in September.

Miss Motyca is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R.L. Motyca of Virginia Beach. She plans to pursue a career in social work at D & E.

Bayside grad receives scholarship

Ruth Ellen Bergdoll of Drum Castle Court, Virginia Beach, is one of twenty-five high school seniors from Virginia and throughout the United States who are recipients of Mary Washington College Regional Scholarships for 1979-80.

The scholarships, which recognize and reward outstanding students who want to pursue an education in the liberal arts and sciences, carry an award of $1,000 per year for each of the four years of study at the college.

Miss Bergdoll is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Bergdoll Sr. and is a graduate of Bayside High School.

Smith graduates from WCSC

Karen A. Smith of Covert Ct., Virginia Beach, has graduated magna cum laude from West Chester State College. She earned a B.A. in social welfare.

Beach students triumph in Special Olympics

Thirty-three "special" Virginia Beach students returned home triumphant after successfully competing in the state's 1979 Special Olympics, held this month at the University of Virginia's Lannigan Field in Charlottesville.

The handicapped youngsters had won a total of 29 first place gold medals, 23 second place silver medals, and 11 third place bronze medals in five field events — 50-meter dash, standing long jump, softball throw, 220-yard run, the 440-yard relay. Students placing 4th, 5th, and 6th in the events received ribbons for their efforts.

The Virginia Beach students were winners in the city's special olympics held in May. They were accompanied to Charlottesville by parents, volunteer high school students, and George Middleton, Virginia Beach Public Schools special olympics coordinator.

The winners were:

First place: Gary Lilley, 10, standing long jump (SLJ); Gail Billups, 14, SLJ; John Carter, 14, softball throw (SBT); Edward Cason, 13, SBT, 50-meter dash (50 MD), and 440 relay; Vernon Hawk, SLJ and 50 MD; William Kuykendall, 50 MD and SBT; Lawrence Phillips, 14, SLJ and 50 MD; Juanita Walton, 13, SBT; Vincent Smith, 14, 440 relay; Alfred Allen, 15, SBT; 220-yard run and 440 relay; Hartley Jorday, 16, SBT; Jackie Baird, 17, SBT; Max Everton, 15, SBT; Michael Phillips, 15, SBT, 50 MD, and 440 relay; Jackie Ferebee, 19, SLJ; Lucinda Evans, 12, 50 MD and SBT; Andrew Smith, 11, 50 MD and SBT; and Sherry Wallace, 11, 50 MD.

Second Place: Doneya Baxter, 11, 50 MD and SLJ; Terrell Anderson, 50 MD and SLJ; Gary Lilley, 50 MD; Latasha Brooks, 8, 50 MD and SLJ; Gail Billups, SBT; Theresa Phelps, 15, SBT; Patricia Baugh, 15, 50 MD; Vincent Smith, 50 MD; Max Everton, 50 MD; Darlene Laurent, 10, SBT and SLJ; Jackie Ferebee, SBT; Gladys Gardner, 9, SBT and SLJ; Michelle Gray, 12, SBT; Patricia Phillips, 12, SBT; Belinda Tillery, 10, SBT and SLJ; Portia Brown, 12, SLJ; and Quinton Perea, 12, 50 MD.

Third Place: John Carter, Vernon Hawk, William Kuykendall, and Lawrence Phillips, 440 relay; Theresa Phelps, SLJ; Jackie Baird, 50 MD; Michelle Gary, 50 MD; Patricia Phillips, SLJ; Doug Sterrett, 12, SBT; Sherry Wallace, 220-yard run, and Quinton Perea, SBT.

Thomas Warner, 18, finished 4th in the 50 MD; Doug Sterrett finished 4th in the 50 MD; and Portia Brown finished 4th in the SBT.

Baldwin Cole, 11, finished 5th in the SBT and 6th in the 50 MD.

School board vice chairman travels to Puerto Rico to prepare college for accreditation

Dr. Roy A. Woods, vice chairman of the Virginia Beach School Board, will travel to Puerto Rico in September to help the College of Education at the University of Puerto Rico prepare for accreditation.

Dr. Woods, who retired a year ago as vice president for academic affairs at Norfolk State College, has been the chairman of the evaluation board of the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE) for several years.

He was invited to the university by the dean of the college of Education at the Rio Piedras Campus, Puerto Rico, Lydia L. Diaz de Grana. While there, Dr. Woods will assess the progress made by the school in the implementation of a new four-year elementary teacher's preparatory program.

The program was begun on an experimental basis in 1977, and the first group of teachers will graduate in May, 1980. An NCATE accreditation team will visit the school in 1981. Dr. Woods will assist the school officials in preparation of reports needed to comply with NCATE standards. He has visited the college previously, and says that the program there is well underway.

While he is in Puerto Rico, Dr. Woods will live at the university campus hotel.

Dr. Woods has been a member of the Virginia Beach School Board since 1966, and became its vice chairman in July, 1973.

Famous last words

A collection of deathbed utterances is not as morbid as you might think. While some are sad, and some banal, others are simply hilarious.

Here are some comments from a collection in the July Reader's Digest.

Marie Antoinette stepped on her executioner's toe on her way to the guillotine. "Monsieur, I beg your pardon," were her final words.

Sir Walter Raleigh had this to say about the axe poised above his neck. "This is a sharp medicine, but a sure remedy for all evils."

warm," she whispered to a relative. "John Rogers did," Holmes retorted with his last breath. John Rogers was burned at the stake as a heretic in 1555.

There are those who are all business right to the end. Financial editor and publisher Clarence Walker Barron's last words were, "What's the news?" and physician Joseph Henry Green's last word, after feeling his own pulse, "Stopped."

When the doctor told Lord Palmerston of the severity of his situation, the nobleman replied, "Die, my dear doctor! That is the last thing I shall do," and it was. Douglas Fairbanks, game to the end, uttered these last words, "Never felt better."

Save gas and money while driving this summer

To help reach conservation objectives in the face of tight oil supplies and rising prices, President Jimmy Carter called on all Americans to drive 15 fewer miles a week. The potential savings, if each driver met that goal, would be 450,000 barrels of oil a day—oil that would not have to be imported.

The savings alone would amount to almost one half of the reduction necessary to meet the nation's conservation objectives by the end of 1979.

A new way to lose weight - walk it off!

Increasing evidence suggests that dieting may be the wrong approach to losing weight—that exercise is the real key. This is good news for many people, who find that dieting doesn't work very well anyway. A recent medical journal noted that probably no more than 20 percent of those trying to lose weight, and possibly as few as five percent, have any long-term success with dieting.

Can you really walk off your excess weight? At the University of California, Dr. Grant Gwinup told a group of 34 overweight patients to forget about dieting and to start walking—gradually increasing time and distance. A year later, the 11 patients who stuck it out had all lost weight—from ten to 38 pounds.

A study of overweight youngsters compared with those of normal weight revealed that while the overweight teenagers ate less than their thin counterparts, the lean ones exercised more. The conclusion: inactivity is of greater importance than excessive food intake in the development of obesity in adolescents.

In an hour of walking, you will burn between 240 and 300 calories. An hour of tennis uses between 420 and 480. Bicycling burns between 360 and 420 calories. A spokesman for the Stanford University Medical School says, "There are essentially two approaches to weight loss. You can increase energy expenditure and enjoy eating. Or you can cut down on food intake and be miserable because you can't eat. If you can get your exercise level up to something reasonable—perhaps 40 minutes four times a week—then maybe you won't have to count calories the rest of your life."

Car repair act becomes Va. state law July 1

On July 1, the Virginia Automobile Repair Facilities Act becomes law. Automobile repair facilities across the state will post signs outlining customer's rights as provided under this new law.

The Auto Repair Act, sponsored by Senator Charles Waddell, addresses many of the problems encountered with auto repair transactions:

First, upon the consumer's request, the act requires written estimates including a description of the problem, an estimated cost for labor and parts as well as an estimated time of completion. This will help prevent unexpected charges and unapproved work. The legislation applies to repairs costing more than $25. Repair facilities may limit preparation of estimates to between the hours of 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The auto repair business would be allowed to charge a reasonable fee for the estimate if quoted in advance.

Second, at the time the repair work is authorized, the act requires the facility to offer the return of replaced parts to the consumer.

Third, the act requires giving the customer a written invoice which indicates work performed, including charges for parts and labor, separately stated. This is designed to help prevent misunderstanding about work done.

For further information about the act, contact the Virginia Office of Consumer Affairs at 804-786-2042.

Longer grass helps save gas

The State Department of Highways and Transportation will let the grass grow a little higher to help save fuel.

C.O. Leigh, state maintenance engineer, has announced two changes in the mowing standards which should result in fuel savings. On the interstate, arterial, and major primary roads, the maximum height allowed for vegetation has been raised to 15 inches from 10 inches. In addition, mowing will not start until the vegetation has reached 10 inches, according to Leigh.

For Fourth of July vacation plans, it will be necessary to keep energy conservation in mind, perhaps by keeping closer to home or staying in one vacation spot longer than in previous years.

No matter what the destination, money and gasoline can be saved by practicing these driving suggestions, which will save the amount of money listed if gasoline is selling at 80 cents a gallon.

Drive at a moderate speed.
Start and drive at a smooth steady pace.
Drive "defensively."
Warm engine correctly.
(All of these steps together can save four cents per gallon.)

Combine trips and eliminate unnecessary trips.
Take public transit if available.
Check tire pressures regularly and keep tires at recommended pressure.
(Will save two cents per gallon.)
Replace all four tires with radials. (Will save two cents per gallon.)

Check and change oil and oil filter at recommended intervals and use a good quality SE multigrade (multiviscosity) oil.

Get tune ups and adjustments when needed. (Will save three cents per gallon.)

If a new car is purchased, replace the old car with one that gets at least 10 miles-per-gallon more. (Will save 14 cents a gallon.)

These figures are based on information from the U.S. Department of Energy.

Here's how to find a bicycle built for you

Bicycle riding is one of summer's most enjoyable recreations. But, a bicycle can offer more than just weekend fun to those who want healthful exercise, or an economical way to run neighborhood errands or make daily commuting trips. For these reasons, more and more people buy bikes each year. The Better Business Bureau advises that a good bike, properly used and cared for, can be a sound and enjoyable investment for years to come.

What Bike To Buy?
Bikes are built to serve a variety of uses. The first considerations should be what use it will be put to, such as for recreation or transportation, and what type of terrain it will be ridden on. While the heavy-frame, balloon tire bikes are comfortable, they are not the best choice for long rides and hilly roads where ease of operation is so important. Lightweight or "racing" type bicycles offer the advantages of lighter-alloy frames and either three, five, or ten speed gears designed to minimize the amount of effort needed to pedal. The higher seat position and turned-on handlebars of most lightweight bikes may take time to adjust to, but they can make riding easier and more comfortable.

In addition, proper frame size is an important consideration. Don't buy a bike that can't be adjusted to fit. The rider should be able to straddle the bicycle with both feet flat on the ground and with no less than one inch clearance between the frame's top tube; or, on a lady's bike, where a top tube would be.

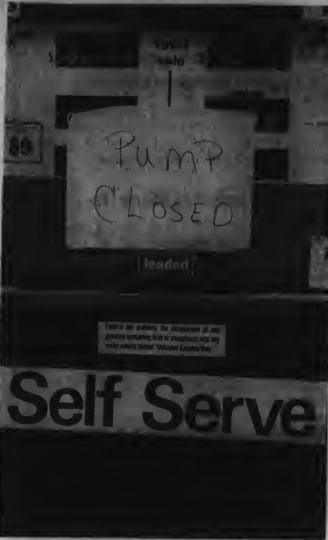

What To Look For
When shopping for a bike consider its safety features. Look closely at all potentially sharp edges that could cause injury. Check all parts of the frame to be sure joints are properly welded and there are no cracks or fractures, even hairline ones, that could cause the metal to break.

There should be no gear shift controls or other protrusions that extend more than 3/4 inches back from the handlebars. Brakes should be easy to operate and give quick, easy stops. Caliper-type brakes should be carefully checked for adjustment and grip on both the front and rear wheels. Be sure there is a chain guard to prevent clothing from being caught. Check for safe cornering by putting one pedal in the down position and leaning the bike toward it at a 25 degree angle. In this position, the down pedal should ride clear of the pavement.

Outa' gas

This sight grows more familiar daily as local gas supplies run low in the final days of June.

Safety And Maintenance
Most communities have regulations about registering bikes. Some have inspection requirements as well. In any case, be sure your bike has a loud bell and dusk/night road visibility. Have a properly certified headlight with a 500 foot beam, a rear reflector with a 600 foot reflection, plus either spoke or pedal side reflectors. Always ride defensively, single file, in the same direction as other vehicles. Use proper hand signals and obey all traffic lights and signals.

Remember that steering, brakes and tires are important to safety. Know how to inspect and adjust them before you ride. Check wheels to be sure they are "true" and don't wobble. See that seat, handlebar, wheel, and pedal bolts are properly tightened. A good chain and lock should be part of any bike investment. Use a heavy-duty, case hardened chain and shackle, and lock your bike whenever leaving it.

Statistics show that most bicycle injuries result from the rider losing control through carelessness or taking chances.

'Gas Alert' program is service to Beach visitors

The Virginia Beach Innkeepers Association and the Tourist Division, Virginia Beach Department of Economic Development, have launched a "Gas Alert" program as a service to its visitors.

David Hendrix, president of the Innkeepers Association and Jim Ricketts, the city's tourism coordinator, have announced a program designed to inform both current visitors and vacationers planning to visit Virginia Beach this summer of gasoline availability at the oceanfront.

The Innkeepers Association is conducting week-to-week surveys of approximately 20 service stations serving the oceanfront as to gasoline availability, hours of service and a forecast of availability for the upcoming weekend.

This information is printed and made available to all hotels and motels at the oceanfront for use by visitors. It is also distributed to offices of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce.

The Tourist Division of the Department of Economic Development is issuing gas availability bulletins and forecasts to newsmen throughout Virginia, Washington, D.C., Maryland, Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia and New York. This service is being provided also to the Associated Press and United Press International.

Out-of-state visitors can also get up-to-the minute information of the local gasoline availability by calling a toll-free Wats line number at the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce. Virginia residents can call 800-582-8064. Out-of-state residents can call 800-446-8038.

The information is for gasoline availability of service stations at or in close proximity to the Virginia Beach oceanfront only and is not intended to reflect availability conditions of the entire city.

Happy birthday to U.S.-Americans

Voluntarism is a typical USA characteristic that has helped shape the image of U.S. citizens in many countries. Americans are frequently pictured as friendly, outgoing and self-reliant.

Such a flattering concept probably dates back to the Revolutionary War era when our fledgling nation was struggling to survive. Self-reliance was then an essential quality.

These facts take on renewed significance as the nation prepares to celebrate the 203rd birthday of the United States of America. The American Historic and Cultural Society, Inc., has vigorously promoted patriotic community programs through the preceding 21 days extending to Flag Day. The 21-day Honor America concept is a parallel to the 21-gun salute to honor a head of state.

This period was officially created by a joint resolution of the Congress and signed into law by the President in June 1975. Members of Congress, governors and mayors have actively joined in supporting this campaign and have called on their constituents to participate.

A Census Bureau survey in recent years produced the estimate that 37 million people in the United States above the age of 13 years are engaged in volunteer work in the spirit of helping others.

Such a figure reflects a wholesome, generous attitude that has helped this nation become the leader of the world's democracies.

This total denotes a substantial bloc of Americans that by its example invites others to enter the field of voluntarism. To a casual observer it might seem that so many willing hands could dispose of the bulk of the country's social problems. Unfortunately, emergencies of assorted types, adversities and personal hardships continue to multiply.

Other circumstances call for different approaches. In Oregon, a 100,000-acre site formerly used as a rocket test range was turned over to farming by an aerospace company. The land lies in an arid region and the belief prevailed that "Nothing will grow here." But new methods of cultivation have produced rewarding crops and helped to revive the area economically.

In another corner of the country, Robert Sanchez, 29, worked with two scientists of the University of New Mexico to develop a program to produce nuclear drugs. This breakthrough enables hospitals to use the drugs as tracing agents for locating tumors.

Such undertakings contribute to the health and wealth of the nation. But these events are large and complex and beyond the scope of the average American.

But much can be accomplished at the local level to Honor America. You and your neighbors can arrange for appropriate patriotic decorations, centering around the American flag. Remind your club, your union or other organization to lend impetus to such observances, possibly of a financial nature.

Remember John Adams' note to his wife Abigail: "...this great anniversary festival ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by seldom acts of devotion to God Almighty..."

One point, at any rate is clear: no matter of organizational gadgetry can make a great society. It takes people to make a society great—righteous, justice-loving, idealistic, freedom-loving people.

Join us in giving America a Happy Birthday this Fourth of July.

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

As a teacher at Churchland High School, with eighteen years of experience in the Portsmouth Public Schools, I organize and escort groups of high-school students on educational tours to Europe. There are many young people throughout Tidewater who eagerly desire this opportunity, and who would profit greatly from the experience, but whose families cannot provide it for them.

In many communities civic organizations and community leaders are able to assist these worthwhile activities, and I have had a number of local residents ask about the possibility of similar aid for Tidewater youth. Perhaps among your readers there are individuals or organizations who would be willing to sponsor deserving students on such a tour.

It is, of course, too late for this summer's trip, but two later groups are now forming. One group, directed by the American Institute for Foreign Study, will leave December 26, 1979, for an eight-day tour of England. They will visit London, Oxford, Stratford, Windsor, Salisbury, and Stonehenge and will attend several theater and athletic events. The cost for the tour is $649, including all expenses except daily lunches and spending money. Adults as well as students may participate for this price.

Another group next summer will visit England, Scotland, France, Germany, and Switzerland for a twenty-two day tour, the exact cost of which is not yet determined.

All groups are accompanied by local teachers as well as European guides, and they effectively combine cultural and recreational experiences.

Persons or groups interested in these tours or in sponsoring students may write me or telephone (397-4346). Tidewater does indeed have many young people for whom this travel experience would be invaluable. I hope that civic-minded persons will find it possible to assist some of them to take advantage of this tremendous opportunity.

Sincerely yours,
Ronald A. Audet

I believe

I believe in the supreme worth of the individual and in his right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

I believe that every right implies a responsibility; every opportunity, an obligation; every possession, a duty.

I believe that the law was made for man and not man for the law; that government is the servant of the people and not their master.

I believe in the dignity of labor, whether with head or hand; that the world owes no man a living but that it owes every man an opportunity to make a living. I draw of today and tomorrow.

I believe that thrift is essential to well ordered living and that economy is a prime requisite of a sound financial structure, whether in government, business or personal affairs.

I believe that truth and justice are fundamental to an enduring social order.

I believe in the sacredness of a promise, that a man's word should be as good as his bond; that character—not wealth or power or position—is of supreme worth.

I believe that the rendering of useful service is the common duty of mankind and that only in the purifying fire of sacrifice is the dross of selfishness consumed and the greatness of the human soul set free.

I believe in an all-wise and all-loving God, named by whatever name, and that the individual's highest fulfillment, greatest happiness, and widest usefulness are to be found in living in harmony with His will.

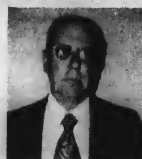

I believe that love is the greatest thing in the world; that it alone can overcome hate; that right can and will triumph over might.

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Your number's up

By Harvey J. Ridinger
Field Representative

Although social security touches the lives of everybody in one way or another, there are some aspects of the program that have special meaning to women. These features are discussed in a booklet called "A Woman's Guide to Social Security" which is available at your nearest social security office.

The booklet is interesting and informative. It focuses on how social security treats women in their varied roles as mothers, widows, divorcees, singles, or married. A special publication for women was first published in 1964, and the present guide represents the latest of several revisions. The different changes reflect how the social security program changes in response to the changing needs of women as breadwinners and heads of households in their own right.

Today women constitute 40 percent of the total work force and 47 percent of all women work. They make up 24 percent of all heads of households, according to the Department of Labor's Women's Bureau.

As a worker, a woman earns social security protection for herself and her family on the same basis as a male worker. She gets benefits if she retires or becomes disabled after having worked long enough under social security. Her dependents also may be entitled to benefits when she retires or becomes disabled. If she dies, her widower and minor children, or dependent parents 62 or over may be eligible for payments.

Until recently, one difference between the woman and male worker was that the husband of a woman worker generally had to prove he was dependent on her in order to qualify for social security benefits, while a wife did not. Recent Supreme Court decision deleted the dependency requirement for husbands.

Thus, if you are getting disability or retirement benefits, your husband may also qualify for payments on your earnings record if he is 62 or over. To qualify for survivors benefits on your social security record, he must be 60 or older, or between 50 and 60 and disabled, or caring for their children under 18 or disabled.

The booklet points out that a wife, regardless of age, can get social security payments if her husband becomes disabled or retires if she is caring for a child under 18 or a disabled child who is entitled to benefits. Without a child in her care, a wife must be 62 or older to get social security benefits when her husband retires or becomes disabled. The amount of the payment at age 65 is 50 percent of what the husband gets at age 65, but a wife can elect to draw reduced benefits at age 62. Medicare also starts at age 65.

A widow with minor children in her care may be entitled to widowed mother's benefits at any age. The payments continue until the youngest child reaches age 18 and later if she is caring for a child who becomes disabled before age 22. Widows without dependent children may get reduced benefits at age 60.

Ordinarily a widow cannot receive social security benefits if she remarries. But if she remarries at age 60 or older, her widow's benefit can continue. If her new husband receives social security checks, she can get a wife's benefit on his record if it would be larger than her widow's payment.

The booklet includes other such useful tips as a reminder to notify social security whenever you change the name you use in employment, and how to report wages of household help for social security purposes.

If you're interested in getting the booklet, drop by your nearest social security office or call us, and we'll mail it to you. The Norfolk office is located in the Federal Building, 200 Granby Mall - Room 600. Our phone number is 441-3401.

TIDEWATER COMMUNITY COLLEGE-VA. BEACH

Today College Counts

By Dr. William Bridges
Director of Continuing Education

On-base educational opportunities

Tidewater Community College provides on-base educational opportunities for military personnel and their dependents. The Virginia Beach campus offers classes each quarter at Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base and Oceana Naval Air Station. In addition to these programs, the college is prepared to respond to requests for educational programs at any area military installation.

TCC has a history of cooperation with the military community. The college was one of the founding institutions in the Navy Campus for Achievement (NCA) program, which assures maximum credit for past service and educational experience. Under the NCA program, credit earned at any educational institution will be accepted at full value by participating NCA schools. That means that military personnel can be assured of not losing college credit because their careers necessitate frequent moves. Since the NCA program has participating institutions near all major installations, military students can feel assured that their credits will transfer readily.

In response to a study of on-base educational programs recently conducted by the Council on Postsecondary Accreditation, the college is prepared to offer military personnel and their dependents the opportunity to earn a General Studies degree without leaving the military base.

The General Studies curriculum is a six-quarter (two-year) Associate in Science degree program designed to offer flexibility to students who are uncertain of their educational and vocational goals, so that the courses they take will transfer to a four-year school and count toward a baccalaureate degree.

A special feature of the General Studies curriculum is that students are not required to declare a major course of study for the two-year program.

In addition to the general admission requirements established for the college, entry into the General Studies program requires the satisfactory completion of high school or the equivalent.

The curriculum for the General Studies degree consists of courses in the area of general education - English, history, social sciences and electives. A minimum of 97 credits is required.

The Counseling Center can provide assistance in helping students plan their programs of study and choose their fields. Students planning to transfer to a four-year school should check the academic requirements for admission in their fields of study.

A counselor from the Virginia Beach campus is available at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base each Wednesday from 0900 to 1600 in Building 3005. Counseling services can be arranged at NAS Oceana by contracting the NCA office on the base.

Tuition for military personnel and their dependents is now the same as that for Virginia residents - $8.50 per credit hour.

The quality of the courses taught on base is exactly the same as on-campus TCC programs. Classes are conducted during the evening hours by regular full-time and part-time TCC faculty members.

Because many military dependents do not speak English as their native language, TCC offers a course in English as a second language in its on-base programs as well as at the TCC campus.

Beach business and real estate

New state law requires registration of home improvement contractors

Effective July 1 certain home improvement contractors must comply with a new State law and furnish the State Registration Board for Contractors certain information on the structure of their business.

The new law is a result of legislation introduced by Senator Babalas in an effort to confront incompetent, fraudulent or fly-by-night home improvement contractors which are now operating throughout the state.

The new law will allow the State Registration Board for Contractors to keep tabs on home improvement contractors by recording the location and name of the business as well as the name and address of the responsible individuals that operate the business. Once the home improvement files are set up, this information will enable the board to collect the consumer complaint data on each contractor which responds to the complaint. The information would be a matter of public record and could be an excellent resource for citizens to verify the performance of a contractor as well as resolve complaints.

The new law does not exempt the home improvement contractors need to take out any licenses, bonds, etc. required by local ordinances.

Section 54-145.2 of the Code of Virginia requires that home improvement contractors must register with the State Registration Board for Contractors, Department of Commerce, 2 S. Ninth Street, Richmond, Virginia 23219.

Who is defined as a home improvement contractor?

Any person or business who provides material or labor for repairs, improvements or additions to residential buildings or accessory structures where any payment of money or other thing of value is required. Who must register?

All home improvement contractors must register if:
• The business grosses in excess of $15,000 in any year, or

• if any work requires a building permit.

How to register

• The following information is required: Name — place of business — place of residence — name of registered agent for out of state corporations.

• A pre-addressed postage paid card which will be available after July 1 should be completed and mailed to the State Registration Board of Contractors. Forms can be obtained from the State Board and will also be available in most county and city building inspection offices as well as offices of the Commissioner of Revenue. Selected suppliers of building materials and supplies will also carry a supply of forms for the convenience of their customers.

• Contractors who currently hold a certificate with the State Board need not register as a Home Improvement Contractor.

• No fee is required.

Notes from the shelter industry

Keeping plumbing in shape is part of basic maintenance

By LIN J. COOPER
Director of Communications Thermostat Builders Association

Keeping the drains in your home free-flowing and in good condition is a must item on your home maintenance list. In by continuing glossary of maintenance tips and suggestions, the following information is offered on drains.

Drains

Each plumbing fixture in your house has a drain trap, a sideways-S-shaped piece of pipe designed to provide a water barrier between your home and the danger of sewer gas. The trap holds water, which prevents the air-borne bacteria and odor of the sewer gas from entering the house. If any fixture is used infrequently (such as a basement shower), it should be turned on at regular intervals to replace evaporating water and ensure that the barrier remains intact. Traps, because of their shape, are also the point at which drains are most likely to become clogged.

Bathtubs, Sinks, or Showers. When the drain pipe from a tub, sink or shower stops up, first use a plunger. Be sure the rubber cup of the plunger covers the drain opening and that the water comes well up over the cup edge.

Working the plunger up and down rhythmically 10 to 20 times in succession will build up pressure in the pipe and do more good than sporadic, separated plunges. Be sure to plug the overflow outlet, if there is one, with a piece of old cloth, and close the other drain when working a double sink.

If the plunger doesn't work, try using a plumber's snake. (These can be rented or purchased at a hardware or plumbing store). Be sure to turn the handle of the snake in the same direction when removing it as you did in inserting it. This will keep any matter attached to the snake from coming loose before it is removed.

If the drain can be partly opened with the plunger or snake, boiling water (140 degrees for a plastic pipe) may finish the job. If not, you can open the trap under the fixture. (Access to a tub or shower trap is usually obtained through a small panel in an adjoining closet wall or floor.) Put a bucket or pan underneath to catch the water in it. A piece of wire may help to dislodge the blockage. The snake can also be run in at this point.

Although it is sold commercially as a drain cleaner, never use caustic soda to open a drain. It will combine with the grease from soap or food waste to form an insoluble compound. Potash lye or caustic potash may be added to finish opening a drain, but never use them on a completely stopped-up drain. They may take as long as overnight to work, and if you have to open the trap, the chemicals would be a hazard.

Warning: Because potash lye and caustic potash are highly corrosive, always pour them slowly into the drain to prevent splattering. Never pour water into the chemicals. Wear old clothes, rubber gloves, and goggles or safety glasses. Never use a plunger on a drain after chemicals have been added; the water may splash and cause an injury or damage nearby surfaces. If the stoppage is in the line past the trap, try using the snake at the clean-out plug nearest the blockage. These plugs are located on the drain lines throughout the house.

Toilets. With some exceptions, treatment of a stopped-up toilet is the same. The trap is built into the toilet and is therefore less accessible. Instead of a snake, you use a coil spring-steel auger. (It can be bought or rented from a hardware or plumbing store.) Insert the auger so that the point goes up into the trap. Turning the handle of the auger will break up the blockage or catch is so that it can be removed. It is easier to use if one person holds the auger and another turns it.

A final word on prevention. To avoid stopped-up drains, a cardinal rule is never to pour grease into a drain or toilet. Ordinary washing soda (not baking soda) added to a drain on a regular basis will help to keep it clear of grease from soap and cooking utensils. Run hot water through the drain, turn off the water, add three tablespoons of washing soda, and pour with just a splash of hot water to wash it down the drain opening. Let it set for 15 minutes and run more hot water.

Amaranth salad?

'Foods of tomorrow,' now scorned by man, may someday feed world's hungry millions

Ever dine on an amaranth leaf salad? Or feast on a winged bean casserole?

These are just two of the earth's little-known edible plants that may soon find their way onto our supermarket shelves, according to the current issue of International Wildlife magazine.

These and a dozen other "foods of tomorrow" — now available but little used—may also help relieve the world's food shortage, says the bimonthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

There is no reason we should confine our menus to the couple of dozen vegetables Americans now eat, according to several scientists quoted in the report.

"You can't tell me we're getting the best foods available by concentrating on corn, rice, wheat, and a few conventional vegetables," says the Smithsonian Institution's chief botanist, Edward Ayensu. "There are many other edible plants with high protein content that we've never tried and know nothing about."

Perhaps 80,000 species of the earth's 350,000 known plants are edible. Over the course of history, people have used just 3,000 species for food, and today 95 percent of all our calories and protein are supplied by just 30 species.

Why have so few plants been exploited? In the U.S., the highly mechanized agribusiness has concentrated on wringing tremendous yields from a small number of crops primarily for economic reasons, explains International Wildlife. History played a part, too. Europeans who administered the new world colonies introduced the crops and foods they were accustomed to—potatoes, cabbage, barley, and so on. And today's Americans are reluctant to accept new foods.

In order to feed an ever increasing glut of people, scientists are urging that we broaden our horizons. Biologically, they say, there is safety in diversity. Whereas bad weather, disease, and long-term climatic changes can play havoc with a few conventional crops, many different crops can provide a hedge against natural disasters.

They might also mean better nutrition for more people. Many of the new crops can grow in difficult environments where traditional crops cannot.

While the need for new foods may be more urgent in other parts of the world, the U.S. is interested, too. A recent National Science Foundation study came up with 54 potential new crops for the U.S. The most promising included the pigeon pea, the buffalo gourd, the tepary bean, the pinyon pine, the Chinese water chestnut, the black walnut, wild rice, cattails, and amaranths.

In the humid tropics, the rising star of the new crops is the winged bean, a slightly sweet vegetable resembling green beans, says International Wildlife. A few years ago the winged bean was virtually unknown despite the fact that every part of it is tasty and nutritious. Thanks to some pushing by Noel Vietmeyer, a chemist with the National Academy of Sciences, the winged bean is now grown in more than 70 countries.

It may now be at the point where the soybean was in the U.S. 50 years ago, when it suddenly took off to become the most important new crop of this century. A native of China, the soybean was brought to this country from France by Benjamin Franklin. It received little attention until the 1920s.

Vietmeyer points out that many of the new crops, including the winged bean, "may not, in a global sense, ever be huge crops." But, he contends that some of these new foods may be crucial for a particular region with a difficult environment. "It's time," he insists, "that we begin to capitalize on the global wealth of nature."

Remember that the next time someone offers you a plate of fried cocoyams.

Mowers and trimmers: use with care

Summer is the time to care for and enjoy yards and gardens. It may be a grim thought for some that lawn and garden care means using power mowers and hedge trimmers. However, whether gasoline or electric powered, these units can save hours of work and give professional-looking results. But watch out! Almost all outdoor power equipment will cut what it touches; grass, hedges, hands, and feet.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission reports some 77,000 injuries each year to users of power mowers alone. Statistics also show that the majority of power equipment injuries are caused by improper use, not by equipment failure. The Better Business Bureau has some tips on how to buy and use power equipment safely.

Before Buying

Safety features are an important consideration when shopping for power mowers and hedge trimmers. While the outdoor power equipment industry adheres to a voluntary set of safety standards, the various safety features can effect the cost of a given unit. Paying a little more for a safer-to-use unit could be a good investment in terms of performance and safety.

A mower should have a rear guard to prevent blade contact with hands and feet. The blades should be recessed inside the machine to reduce the chance of rocks or other sharp objects being thrown into the air. The discharge chute should aim down and away from the operator. All controls should be designed so the unit can be shut off or stopped easily and immediately in case of emergency.

Tractor or rider-type mowers can be hazardous in terms of tipping over or injuring others if improperly used. Be certain the unit under consideration is designed for the kind of work it will be used for, whether level, slope, or hillside mowing. Safety features should include secure, balanced seating and quick stopping.

Properly designed hedge trimmers will have cutting teeth closely set and guards placed so that hands or fingers cannot come into blade contact. Trimmers should have two handles, with the wide forward handle set well above the blades. The unit should be light enough to hold and use for extended periods of time and the power switch should be designed for easy and immediate shut-off.

Before Using

Be sure to read and thoroughly understand all operating and safety instruction for a power unit. Terms of warranties and guarantees are equally important. Learn the terms of both the manufacturer's and seller's warranties for parts and servicing. Be sure the unit is maintained according to these terms to keep warranties in effect. Before using the unit, practice emergency shut-off or stopping procedures to avoid or minimize accidents.

Practical Safety

When it is time to mow lawns or fields take a few minutes to clear the ground of stones and other debris. Never adjust or leave the machine with the motor running. Mow only when grass is dry. Remember, steer a power mower across slopes (never up and down), but drive a riding mower up and down slopes for better stability.

When using a power hedge trimmer, do not change hand positions when the unit is running. Use a properly rated extension cord with a three pronged plug. Do not Marshmallows were once made from the long, parsnip-like roots of the marshmallow plant. After the roots were mashed and boiled, the resulting syrup was used as medicine for sore throats and coughs, and as ointment for burns.

Unless steps are taken to halt erosion and sedimentation, the Panama Canal may be useless to oceangoing vessels by 1980, the year the U.S. turns it over to Panama.

Will one of these obscure plants become the next superstar of world food production?

Winged Bean A dried, pea-like bean which contains up to 37 percent protein. The pod tastes like green beans, the leaves like spinach, the flowers (when cooked) like mushrooms, and the roots, eaten like potatoes, are nutty in flavor. The vines are grown in parts of New Guinea and Southeast Asia.

Cocoyam With its potato-sized root tubers, it thrives in dry or swampy soils at various altitudes, and can be baked, boiled, fried, or ground into flour. The plant now grows mainly in tropical Central and South America and in West Africa.

Amaranth In the 16th century, they were the major crop for the Aztecs and Incas and played an important role in Indian religions. The grains are higher in protein than cereal grains and the plant's leaves make a spinach-like boiled vegetable.

Buffalo Gourd Indians of the American West have eaten the seeds, which contain 35 percent protein, for many centuries. The wild-growing plants are hardy perennials which thrive on semi-arid, otherwise marginal land. It is being cultivated in Lebanon and Mexico.

Quinoa Another grainlike crop grown by the ancient Incas, the plant is still a staple for the Indians and campesinos of the High Andes. Hardy and adaptable, the plant is rich in protein and could become an important crop in the tropical highlands of other continents.

Taro First grown by the Indians 1,500 years ago, the protein-packed seeds also yield a fine cooking oil. The seeds are bitter and must be soaked in running water. It's a tough plant that grows in various kinds of soil, resists pests, and withstands frost and drought.

Beach, blind & boat:

Anglers land pair of citation channel bass

By ED LEWIS

Virginia Beach Sun Outdoor Writer

Easterly winds over the past week have definitely slowed the bottom fishing in the bay. Most of the usual hotspots along the Eastern Shore reported muddy water and a lot of grass.

Emmet Bailey of Bailey's Bait and Tackle at Cape Charles told me that about the only time you can keep a line in the water on the seaside is at slack tide. He said when the tide is running the grass just piles up on your line.

Emmet did say that they are still catching a few cobia but the water hasn't quite warmed up enough to run any large schools in yet.

I figure we need about a week of 80 degree weather to really put a little life into the fishing.

Although the easterly wind has messed up the bay and the sea side fishing, it hasn't hurt the off shore boats. Charter boats out of Wachapreague, Lynnhaven and Rudee Inlet are having good luck on bluefin and yellowfin tuna. Down at the Rudee Inlet Sports Fishing Center, Jennifer told me that their boats have been catching plenty of tuna and blues. She had these citations for me this week:

Dr. Juan Ponce of Virginia Beach caught a 197 lb. bluefin tuna.

Phillip Gilstrap of Chesapeake caught a 92 lb. bluefin tuna.

On the fishing piers things have been slow but steady. If you have the time to stay a while you

Nature's bulldozers

Earthworms are a favorite bait

Earthworms are like miniature bulldozers when it comes to shoving dirt around.

Scientists estimate that as many as 50,000 worms live in an acre of soil.

Earthworms are a favorite bait because they are so easily obtained and because most species of fish like to eat them.

Here are some tips about where and when to find earthworms, and how to keep them alive until you go fishing.

Worms thrive in moist, cool places where the dirt doesn't dry out in summer.

Look for them wherever there is a combination of moist ground, decayed vegetation, and cool earth.

In the country, choose the ground alongside streams.

In town, look along fencerows and yard borders where leaves may lay, and in vacant lots under shade trees.

Use a spading fork to turn the earth and expose the worms. In dry weather, they may go 18 or more inches deep.

Another way to get a supply of worms is with a flashlight at night.

Being nocturnal creatures, they seldom venture out of their burrows in daylight.

Although they don't have eyes, worms are sensitive to light, with the exception of red light.

Night hunters of worms cover flashlight lenses with transparent red tape to avoid spooking the worms back into the ground.

Don't waste time looking where street or house lights strike the ground.

Take along a small garden fork to loosen the dirt and pull the worm out.

should end up with a mess of fish. Both Harrison and Lynnhaven piers reported an increase in the spot activity but they are not up to their usual abundance for this time of the year. The Sea Coll pier on the bay bridge noticed an increase in the flounder activity over the weekend, and it also noticed a slight increase in the spot.

Down at Nags Head the easterly winds have put a damper on the surf fishing, but pier fishermen are still picking croaker, spot, trout and a few sea mullet. At Oregon Inlet flounder fishermen are having a little success but not quite as good as it was last week. It should pick up if the wind would come around to the westward for a few days.

A couple of Chesapeake anglers did have pretty good luck on the channel bass at Oregon Inlet. Debbie at Robbie's Bait and Tackle Shop told me that David Johnston and Kenny Jackson, both of Chesapeake, went down to Oregon Inlet Friday night and both caught themselves a couple of citation channel bass. David's weighed in at 49 lbs. and Kenny's was 50 1/2 lbs. Congratulations gentlemen, those are a couple of real fine fish.

Speaking of fine fish, Cecil Castellow and MacLari (Sonny) Burns, both of Chesapeake, went over to the Creeds section of Back Bay to do a little bass fishing Saturday afternoon, and the bass seemed as anxious as they were. They caught nine bass, none of which were under two pounds. Cecil caught a 7 lb. 11 oz. bass that he has already turned over to a taxidermist to have mounted. Sonny almost got did Cecil but not quite, he caught a 7 lb., 4 oz. beauty and decided he was going to eat his.

Down at the Northwest River Campgrounds things are looking pretty good. On Friday, Reverend Carter caught a nice string of bass, one of which weighed in at 12 oz. He released all but the big one. On Monday he went again but only caught three.

Billy Tanner of Chesapeake had a little better luck. He brought back seven bass but did not keep track of how many he released. "The River Rat" (Rowland Marshall) did his share on Monday to uphold the reputation of the Northwest River. He brought back a string of ten catfish and a few perch.

This week's fishing tip comes from Paul Dodge of Chesapeake. Paul is probably one of the better fishermen in the area and if he says it will work you can bet on it. Paul told me that when flounder fishing you can put a strip of squid on the same hook with your minnow. It will give the appearance of a small fish with the squid strip in his mouth swimming along.

Also I have seen flounder skip the minnow on the bottom hood and hit the wquid on the top which is the way I normally bait my bottom rigs. By putting both baits on you are giving the flounder a variety. When the water is muddy the strip of white squid will stand out better and act as an additional attraction.

The week of July 4 is usually one of the busier boating holidays. there will be a lot of boats out fishing, sight seeing, sailing and water skiing, and not all of their skippers will be as safe as you and me. Be alert — even though you know what you are doing it is possible the other guy might have had a little too much to drink and his ability to handle his boat might be impaired.

Pay attention to the weather forecast. Fast moving thunderstorms can be deadly when on the water. If you have an inboard gasoline engine check for gas leaks and be sure to vent your bilge before starting your engine. Make this fourth of July boating holiday a safe holiday.

If you are planning a fishing trip to the Outer Banks, here is a tide table for the week of June 29 through July 5. The table is computed for Oregon Inlet. To obtain Cape Hatteras subtract 41 minutes for high tide and 58 minutes for low tide.

Down at the waterfront you hear more and more talk about "float plans."

The phrase applies to information given the people on shore about where boaters intend to go and when they will arrive, or return.

Some boat owners simply tell stay-at-homes where they're going and when they intend to return.

Others leave the information, either by word-of-mouth or written on paper, with likely parties such as a bait dock operator, a harbormaster or a local coast Guard unit.

According to boating authorities, the basic idea is to make sure that someone has a reasonably good idea of where you might be if someday you should be overdue on your return or arrival.

Or where to contact you if something happens ashore.

There are already busy boating centers that have their own float plan schemes in operation.

Make use of such setups where they are available.

able! If you tell stay-at-homes where you're going, remember that they may not be as familiar with local waters as you are.

So it can make sense to show them on a map where those places are and leave them a written float plan.

With the DuPont Certified Painting System, the exterior of your home will be painted to exacting DuPont specifications with DuPont's newest and best quality paint—DUCO® DUCO is certified by DuPont to be the finest premium performance paint ever formulated by DuPont, with outstanding durability and hiding power.

The work will be done by highly experienced, professional painters using special surface preparation and painting techniques. When necessary, high-pressure water jets are used to remove loose paint and dirt. In many cases, airless spray equipment is used to apply extra thick single coats of paint.

The end result is a rich-looking, attractive paint job that will last for years.

The DuPont Certified House Painting System includes a three-year limited warranty on exterior paint.

jobs. If, under the terms of the contract you sign with DuPont, any defect in the workmanship or paint should occur, DuPont will see to it that it's corrected. At its own expense.

So before you have your home painted this season, learn more about the new DuPont Certified Painting System. You can add value to your home for years to come. For a free information kit, with details on the limited warranty, just call 800-523-7600 toll free, or mail the coupon.

Behnke

Marine First Lieutenant Patrick J. Behnke, son of Clarence A. and Mary J. Behnke of Kerswick Court, and whose wife, Theresa, is the daughter of Carl W. and Willodean Carroll of Hudgins Drive, all of Virginia Beach, recently departed for a cruise in the Mediterranean.

He is an officer assigned to Marine Composite Helicopter Squadron-264 (HMM-264), based at the Marine Corps' New River Helicopter Air Station, Jacksonville, N.C.

His unit is the aviation element of the 34th Marine Amphibious Unit (MAU). The 34th MAU is the force-in-readiness for the U.S. Sixth Fleet; on-call to project combined air-ground forces ashore.

During the cruise, HMM-264 is scheduled to participate in training exercises with other Sixth Fleet units and with those of allied nations. Port visits are scheduled in several mediterranean coastal cities.

A 1972 graduate of James Barry Robinson High School, and a 1976 graduate of the University of Texas, Austin, Tex., with a bachelor of business administration degree, Behnke joined the Marine Corps in May 1976.

Atwood

Navy Fire Control Technician Second Class James R. Atwood, whose wife, Cindy, is the daughter of William and Margaret Kohl of Harbour Gate, Virginia Beach, recently completed an Atlantic strategic deterrent patrol.

He is serving as a crewmember aboard the fleet ballistic missile submarine USS George W. Carver, homeported in Groton, Ct.

His ship operated from its advanced overseas base at Rota, Spain and, during the patrol, remained submerged on station, maintaining a state of constant readiness.

He joined the Navy in July 1974.

Hicks

Pvt. Allan W. Hicks, son of Mrs. Thelma Disberry, General Stuart Drive, Virginia Beach, recently was assigned as a wheeled-vehicle mechanic with the 7th Infantry Division at Fort Ord, Calif.

Hicks entered the Army in January of this year.

The private is a 1978 graduate of Frank W. Cox High School.

Mulcare

Timothy M. Mulcare, son of Donald R. and Virginia J. Mulcare of Hudgins, Virginia Beach, has been commissioned a Navy Ensign and received a Bachelor of Science degree upon graduation from the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md.

As a midshipman at the Academy, he underwent four years of extensive study of engineering, mathematics, physical and marine sciences, management and government. In addition to an active physical fitness curriculum, he studied military justice, leadership and Naval history and completed a variety of elective courses leading to his baccalaureate.

Summer programs provided him with an opportunity to gain professional experience aboard naval vessels and at Navy and Marine Corps shore installations. During training cruises, he received practical instruction in basic seamanship, navigation, ordnance, gunnery and communications. He participated in battle drills and learned to control and fire shipboard weapons.

A 1975 graduate of Princess Anne High School, Mulcare joined the Navy in July 1975.

Chivvis

Marine Corporal Richard E. Chivvis, whose wife, Sandra, is the daughter of Joseph S. and Virginia M. Gibson of Greenwell Road, Virginia Beach, recently participated in exercise "Solid Shield-79."

He is a member of the 1st Battalion 2d Marines based at the Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N.C.

"Solid Shield-79" was the 17th in a series of annual land and sea exercises designed to emphasize command and control of military forces. The exercise simulated military action between land, sea and their forces and included an airborne assault, naval mine warfare, harbor control, runway repair and tactical air support operations.

Chivvis joined the Marine Corps in August 1976.

Didier

Navy Seaman Howard J. Didier Jr., son of Helen Brooks of Captain Adams Court, Virginia Beach, has completed the Navy's Basic Electricity/electronics Course.

Four weeks of study at Navy Service School Command, Orlando, Fla., included review of basic mathematics, fundamental electrical formulas plus the principles of alternating and direct current circuits. Students also received instruction on basic circuit testing methods, including the use of multimeters and audio signal generators.

A 1976 graduate of F.E. Kellam High School, Virginia Beach, he joined the Navy in January 1979.

Air Force Reserve Airman Kimberly R. Brown, daughter of Mrs. Ray E. Person of Saxon Pl., Virginia Beach, has graduated at Lackland AFB, Tex., from Air Force basic training.

The airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations. Completion of this training earned the individual credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Airman Brown now goes to Chanute AFB, Ill., for specialized training in the aircraft equipment maintenance field.

The airman is a 1979 graduate of Princess Anne High School. Her grandfather, George V. Barnes, resides on Linden Ave., Chesapeake.

Orlando

Senior Airman Richard A. Orlando, son of retired U.S. Navy Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. James V. Orlando Jr. of Gotham Road, Virginia Beach, is a member of the organization selected as the best civil engineering squadron in the Air Force for 1978.

Airman Orlando is an entomology specialist at Spanghlem AB, Germany, with the 52nd Civil Engineering Squadron which received the Robert H. Curtin Award. The award is presented annually by the Society of American Military Engineers.

Unit personnel were honored for providing outstanding mission support through utmost efficiency, sound management and total dedication from Jan. 1, 1978 to Dec. 31, 1978.

The airman graduated in 1972 from Princess Anne High School and attended Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

Henshaw

Marine Major James E. Henshaw, son of Susan L. Henshaw of Peckness Way, Virginia Beach, was graduated from the Marine Corps Command and Staff College.

The 43-week course was conducted at the Marine Corps Development and Education Command in Quantico, Va. The curriculum centered on detailed study of amphibious operations and was designed to prepare students for future assignment as a regimental commander or a member of a high level staff. The student body was composed of senior officers from all the U.S. Armed Forces and from several allied countries.

Emphasizing the Marine air/ground task force in amphibious operations, the course included lectures, seminars and individual research projects. Additionally, students studied military management; defense and foreign affairs planning; financial programming, budgeting procedures and resources control, plus managerial use of automatic data processing.

A 1965 graduate of University of Louisville, Louisville, Ky., with a Bachelor of Arts degree, he joined the Marine Corps in June 1965.

Hicks

Pvt. Kenneth L. Hicks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clevon E. Hicks, Delk Court, Virginia Beach, recently completed basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C.

During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map readings, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

Babunis

Marine Staff Sergeant Frankland P. Babunis, son of Victor P. and Helen A. Babunis of Culver Lane, Virginia Beach, has reported for duty at Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N.C.

A 1971 graduate of Floyd E. Kellam High School, he joined the Marine Corps in December 1971.

Oceana commanders have much in common

At Naval Air Station Oceana in Virginia Beach, four Navy commanders serving in positions as department heads or equivalent, learned they have much in common.

According to Commander William D. (Bill) Paschall, NAS Oceana Administrative Officer, "In a casual conversation one day with Harry F. (Skip) Holden Jr., Fighter Wing One Maintenance Officer; Robert D. (Bob) Duff, Aircraft Intermediate Maintenance Department Officer, and Verlin C. (Vic) Henson, Supply Officer, the four of us were surprised to learn of background similarities in our Naval careers.

"All of us started our Naval careers as enlisted men, went to boot camp at San Diego, California in 1949, are former chief petty officers and former limited duty officers (LDOs)," said Paschall.

Commander Paschall has served as Administrative Officer at NAS Oceana since he first reported aboard in January 1978. Commander Holden has been Fighter Wing One's Maintenance Officer since August 1977. Cmdr. Duff AIMD Officer since September 1978, and Cmdr. Henson Supply Officer since May 1978.

Having approximately 30 years each of active service in the Navy behind them, the commanders have collectively totaled slightly over 120 years military service to their country. While in the ancient world, the adage "all roads lead to Rome" had merits for reality, the reality for four commanders is that "their roads all led to NAS Oceana".

Advice from the Veterans Administration

Q -- I served in the U.S. Army during peacetime and had no service connected disability. Am I eligible for VA hospitalization?

A -- Veterans who are not receiving retired pay or compensation may be provided necessary hospitalization on a space available basis if they state under oath that they are unable to pay the expense of needed hospital care elsewhere. The "ability to pay" requirement does not apply to veterans 65 years of age or older or those receiving VA pension.

Q -- I am a student in college and will graduate in the middle of a month. When will I receive my final GI Bill check from the Veterans Administration?

A -- You will be paid the first of the month following your graduation.

Q -- Will the VA help with expenses caused by my leg brace tearing my clothing?

A -- Yes. A veteran receiving service connected disability compensation for a disability which requires a prosthetic device (including wheelchairs) may receive an annual clothing allowance of $218.00.

Q -- I am now receiving treatment for a service connected disability in a VA hospital. I have been awarded a temporary rating of 100 percent. How long will I retain this rating?

A -- Following hospitalization the temporary total rating may be continued in monthly increments for a period not in excess of six months, depending on how much time is required for convalescence before you can resume employment. Then your disabilities will be re-evaluated based on the hospital report.

Q -- What burial benefits does the VA provide?

A -- VA will pay up to $300 toward a wartime veteran's burial expenses. Up to $150 additional will be paid as a plot or interment allowance provided the veteran is not buried in a national cemetery. If the veteran's death is service connected VA will pay up to $1,100 of burial expenses. Under certain circumstances, cost of transporting remains from place of death to place of burial is also payable.
